Bill Changes Would Save Thousands Of U. S. Jobs

Apppropriation Unit Asks Senate to Put Number of Items Back Into Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday made recommendations that would save the jobs of thousands of Federal workers in approving the Independent Offices and Agriculture appropriation bills. These were among the recommended changes:

That $900,000 be made available to the Public Buildings Administration to return to this city nine decentralized agencies that have 4566 jobs. It was estimated that only 2511 of the employes in them would move back here with their agencies, providing about 2000 jobs here for laid-off employes in other agencies. The House refused funds to PBA to move back the agencies.

That Veterans Administration be given an additional 27 million dollars which it would use to keep 10,000 employes which the House ordered to be fired. Some of these employes already have been given provisional 30-day notices.

That the Office of Government Reports be given $400,000 which could be used to retain about 100 of its 145 employes. The House ordered this agency abolished. However, the Senate committee added a rider which would place a $7500 ceiling on salaries in this agency.

That the Maritime Commission's limit on salaries be raised $1,439,000 over the amount approved by the House. The increase would be sufficient to permit the recall here of at least 600 of the 1100 employes who are on payless furloughs because of the House action.

Maritime also would get $561,000 to continue the operation of its five shore terminals. The House made no appropriation for this money-making activity. However, the Senate group slashed four million dollars from the House-approved Maritime training fund.

That the House riders that would cut salaries of some employes in both the National Archives and Atomic Energy Commission be eliminated.

That the War Assets Administration be given 25 million dollars more for salaries than was approved by the House which would prevent an immediate wholesale layoff in this surplus - selling agency.

These were among the smaller increases approved and which would allow modest expansions in the staff of the affected agencies if finally approved by the House:

Council of Economic Advisors, $50,000; Federal Communications Commission, $400,000; Federal Power Commission, $200,000; Federal Trade Commission, $200,000;

Bullish Traders Bid Up Leading Shares $1 to $3

New York, July 11 (AP).—Prices of leading stocks were bid up $1 to $3 a share by bullish contingents in the market today.

Analysts said inflationary sentiment in Wall Street stemmed from coal wage and price boosts and anticipation of higher costs in a number of affected industries.

The Associated Press average price of 60 stocks climbed to $67.30, its highest point since February 24, with the industrial section reaching a new high for the year at its best level since August, 1946.

A total of 1,590,000 shares changed hands. U. S. Steel at $75 was up $2.25; Chrysler was ahead $2.75 at $116.75, Colgate-Palmolive $3.25 at $48 and International Harvester $2 at $94.

Commodities also rallied sharply. On the cotton futures market at New York the July, 1947, delivery touched 39.49 cents a pound, highest price since 1920. Wheat futures jumped the daily permissible limit of 10 cents a bushel at Kansas City and Chicago but closed somewhat below the top.

Police Probe

Senate Investigators to Call Young, Barrett for Hearing

(Crime increase higher here than other cities. Page 12)

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

A special Senate group was appointed yesterday to examine police methods of law enforcement and administration preliminary to a proposed full-scale investigation.

District Commissioner John Russell Young and his recent appointee, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, will be called to testify at the public hearing at 2 p. m. Monday in the Senate District Committee room, Senator J Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) said.

The Post was asked also to present at the hearing evidence it gathered during its investigation which showed widespread hiding of crime complaints. Nearly all of the "pocketed" crime complaints uncovered by Post reporters came as the result of Detective Bureau action while Barrett was chief of detectives.

Senator McGrath said that the results of the hearing would be used in asking the Rules Committee and Senate to approve $25,000 for a "full and complete study and investigation with respect to law enforcement and police administrations" in Washington.

The Senate District Committee decided upon that resolution as the result of The Post's expose. The Federation of Citizens Associations also asked for a congressional investigation and a grand jury probe of Metropolitan police.

Named to the group which will probably also conduct the full investigation if approved by the Senate are: McGrath, chairman of the Public Service subcommittee, Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), John S. Cooper (R., Ky.), Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), and Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.).

The three Republicans and three Democrats, all members of the Senate District Committee, were appointed by Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.).

The Post reporters, limiting their investigation only to robberies, found that during the period of July 1, 1946 to May 31, 1947, more than 1350 robbery complaints were made to police. Official police records showed only 761.

The remainder were hidden in secret files of the Detective Bureau's robbery squad and in precinct records. Those in the precincts were mostly marked "hold" at the request of detectives.

In the course of their investigation, the reporters found numerous complaints, in crime categories other than robberies, also marked "hold."

Senate Group Ups VA Funds By 27 Millions

Increase to Let Agency Keep 10,000 More Employes

(Related Stories on Pages 12 and B-1)

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday voted to give Veterans Administration 27 million dollars—and 10,000 personnel—more for fiscal 1948 than granted by the House.

In two other important actions affecting veterans, the committee:

1. Turned down an indirect request for 100 million dollars extra to provide 28,000 more personnel and further expand VA's medical program.

2. Supported the House in ordering postponement of hospital construction at the Nevius site, on the Virginia side of the Memorial Bridge, until the House Appropriations Committee investigates.

Allows 110,000 Employes

The Senate Committee altogether voted 905 million dollars for VA services to veterans, a sum which permits VA to keep 110,000 employes on its rolls.

The committee raised the House personnel ceiling after a plea by Gen. Omar N. Bradley that the limitation would "jeopardize" service to veterans and their dependents.

Senator Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.) moved to increase the VA appropriation by 100 million dollars, on the basis of correspondence between himself and Dr. Paul R. Hawley, VA medical director. In response to a direct question by Senator Green, the VA medical chief said that the 100 million dollars was needed to carry out in full the medical program desired for fiscal 1948.

Green's motion was voted down in committee. The Rhode Island legislator said, however, he will continue to fight on the floor.

The committee sustained House action holding up funds on veterans' hospitals planned for the Nevius site and at Tallahassee, Fla., pending investigation. The committee upheld the House legislation despite a plea by Representative Joe Hendricks (D., Fla), senior minority member of the House Appropriations Independent Offices Subcommittee.

Hendricks pointed out that the Nevius and Tallahassee hospitals were struck out of the VA appropriations bill through a parliamentary maneuver by Representatives Howard Smith (D., Va.) and Gene Cox (D., Ga.). He said:

"If we permit two members . . . to strike out sites . . . we will then open the door for every member . . . so that there is certain to be a log-rolling situation here that we would all be ashamed of sooner or later."

GOP Leaders Fail to Act on Housing Bill

Veterans' Terminal Leave Pay Also Left Off Senate Program

Senate Republican policy makers yesterday failed to include long-range housing on a two-week schedule for the remaining days of Congress.

The committee-approved Wagner-Taft-Ellender long-range housing bill was left off of the Senate worksheet but a resolution halting the President's reorganization plan No. 3, unifying Federal housing and home finance agencies, was put on it.

Also left off the Senate program immediately ahead was House-passed legislation permitting veterans to cash terminal leave pay bonds, the Federal aid-to education bill and proposed Federal health programs.

Program Not Final

Senate Republican Steersman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) told reporters, however, that the program wasn't final. He said it still may be possible to crowd in Senate action on the W. E. T. bill, cash for terminal leave bonds and some other measures. He said there is no chance, however, for Congressional approval this session of any of the proposed Federal health programs.

A Majority Policy committee statement said the list if bills booked had been selected "largely because it is hoped they can be disposed of without long debate. The statement added: "Several other important measures apparently involving more controversy are under consideration for action befoe adjournment on July 26."

Leadership sentiment meanwhile was reported swinging in favor of a recess, subject to recall by Republican leaders, in lieu of a flatly final sine die adjournment on July 26. In other words, GOP

Senate Confirms Jones to FCC Post

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Representative Robert F. Jones (R., Ohio) as a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

The action came after only brief discussion during which Senator Pepper (D., Fla) called attention to charges by Columnist Drew Pearson that Jones had been a member of the Black Legion, but was glad to hear that the committee had given Jones a clean bill.

The Senate also confirmed Harley Hise of California as a member of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Worried About Catboat

Five Teen-Age Girls Rescued By Chesapeake Bay Freighter

A tale of shipwreck and rescue in Chesapeake Bay was told by five teen-age girl seafarers yesterday as they returned to their homes in greater Washington and at Shady Side, Md.

The girls—four of them high school students and the other a junior aide at Emergency Hospital—arrived in Baltimore aboard a freighter which had rescued them when the mast on their 18-foot craft snapped in a squall.

The young salts, who were more worried about the damage to their catboat than any danger they may have passed, are:

Ann Flagg, 19, a student at Western High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale H. Flagg, 2828 N. 24th st., Arlington, Va.

Pat Tobey, 18, junior aide at Emergency Hospital, who was graduated from Western High School last month, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tobey of 515 20th st. nw.

Anne Fenton, 17, senior at Holy Trinity High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Fenton of MacArthur blvd. and 2d st., Cabin John, Md.

Margaret Crumbaugh, 18, daughter of Mrs. Ruby Crumbaugh, Halifax st., Cabin John; and Pat Keen, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Keen of Shady Side, Md. and a student at Southern High School, Lothian, Md.

Senate GOP Plans Action On Tax Bill

Session Called Today as Drive to Repass 4-Billion Measure Starts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Republican leaders last night called the Senate into Saturday session and threatened to hold members deep into the night in a drive to repass the four-billion-dollar tax cut.

An outbreak of proposed amendments, including eight by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), forced abandonment of plans to pass the bill yesterday.

Morse termed the revived Knutson bill a "boom and bust" measure and proposed amendments indefinitely, delaying its effective date and rewriting its basic provisions.

Fight Reopened

Bipartisan advocates of extension of community property tax privileges to married couples in all States meanwhile reopened their fight.

Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) offered an amendment bearing 24 Senate signatures, including 3 Republican names.

GOP leaders claimed the votes to repass the bill without a single modifying change but the acid test lay ahead of the delayed passage vote.

President Truman's promise to hand it back with his veto was beginning to pay dividends in a stiffened Democratic last stand.

Veto May Be Sustained

Odds were that the veto will be sustained by the narrowest of margins if all but one ailing Senator (Wagner of New York) is on hand. Two or three Democrats, with inclinations toward the bill, were reported resolving their doubts in favor of the President.

Administration forces took on more hope when Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) strongly supported Morse's position on the bill. Until last night Morse was believed the lone Republican likely to vote to sustain.

The decision to drive ahead on the bill today in an effort to reach a vote tonight was announced by Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.)

Millikin said today's session will run late unless agreement can be reached to vote at a definite time Monday. Morse has indicated he will object to a unanimous agreement fixing the voting time.

Haste Criticized

The Oregonian, whose amendments will be first up today, criticized the leadership for "haste to obtain action on an ill-conceived program of tax reduction."

A reduction of taxes at this time, he said, would be "little short of a betrayal of our foreign policy" and the Marshall plan to help Europe help itself.

He said there is no domestic excuse either for cutting taxes at this time, when inflationary pressures are still strong, employment and production levels high, and vast Federal obligations unmet.

He proposed a system of tax cuts that would not become effective until economic conditions warrant, and in no event before January 1, 1949. Another Morse amendment proposed three percentage point tax cuts in most income tax brackets, with far greater relief for persons earning under $2000 taxable income.

Other proposed Morse amendments struck at tax exempt securities, double taxation of smaller corporations, and present treatment of estate and gift taxes, earned income and capital gains, and carry back and carry forward provisions. In addition, he called

16 Countries Convene Today To Implement Marshall Plan; 35 Millions Aid Sent Greece

Griswold Reveals Military Surplus Is Shipped for Use Against 'Bandits'

The United States has already shipped 35 million dollars' worth of surplus war material to Greece to help the Greek army in "anti-bandit" work, former Gov. Dwight P. Griswold, chief of the American mission to Greece, disclosed yesterday.

The phrase "antibandit" drew a laugh from a press conference Griswold held on the eve of his departure for Greece.

He said the war material included light mountain artillery, ammunition, trucks and jeeps, army rations and mules for use in the rough Greek border country. He predicted shipments of military supplies would continue into the fall as part of the 300 million dollar aid program.

The former Nebraska Governor insisted that efforts to maintain security in Greece were essential to economic recovery, since "it would be hard to build a bridge and have it blown up right away."

"We believe the reconstruction program will help break up the guerilla bands," he said.

He gave reporters the first preliminary breakdown of the ways his mission plans to use its dollar funds, as follows:

Seventy-five million dollars for food, clothing and other civilian goods, 48 million for rebuilding ports, highways and industries, 19 million for the restoration of agriculture, 3 million for control of malaria and tuberculosis, and other health work, and 1½ million for training Greek nationals, some presumably in the United States.

In addition, he predicted the sale of civilian goods would produce about 75 million dollars in Greek currency which would be used locally on the aid program.

Contracts are now being negotiated, he said, for rebuilding a bridge over the Corinth Canal at a cost of $1,500,000 and for 13 smaller railroad bridges.

Marshall Takes Plan to 'Hill,' Talks With Senate Committee

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall began laying the American political groundwork for the European reconstruction program yesterday by going to Capitol Hill for a meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

It was the first of more frequent and perhaps regular meetings which the Secretary intends holding from now on to make sure that his policy has congressional understanding and support.

In this he was reviving a practice followed by Secretaries Hull, Stettinius and Byrnes. In Secretary Hull's day the meetings were "seminars" which played an important and perhaps decisive part in winning bipartisan support for the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and the United Nations Charter.

Senators were unusually reticent after yesterday's meeting, which lasted an hour and 45 minutes. It was described as a "seminar" much like Hull's, in which Secretary Marshall talked persuasively about the entire world situation, with special reference to the European economic problem.

It could be assumed that the Secretary explained the background of today's conference in Paris, the possible effects of the boycott by eastern Europe, and the probable timetable of the next few weeks in the European reconstruction effort.

The start of these meetings was only one of several signs yesterday of intensifying Administration activity to prevent economic collapse in Europe.

The first of these was the news that high American and British officials would meet in Washington soon to seek agreement on how to boost coal production in the Ruhr.

American and British negotiators in Germany have been wrestling with this problem for weeks without reaching agreement. Coal production in the Ruhr has been limping along at 213,000 tons a day, compared with a target of 250,000 tons set for July 1.

Now Secretary Marshall and Foreign Secretary Bevin have taken the matter out of the hands of Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Lieut. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the military commanders in Germany.

They have decided to tackle it on what are called "higher governmental levels."

From Secretary Marshall down, every official here knows that the first requirement of European revival is to get more coal out of the Ruhr mines, and to get it before next winter. There have been al-

Russians Hope To Wreck Efforts, Set Up Rival Plan, Diplomats Believe

Paris, July 11 (AP).—Sixteen nations of western Europe tomorrow will launch an attempt to rebuild their war-torn economy with the promise of United States aid.

Russia and the countries within her orbit will not participate.

Emphasizing the gravity of the split between east and west, Russia will be absent from a major conference involving the future of Europe for the first time since the end of World War II.

Diplomats gathering for the opening meeting declared they were convinced the Soviet Union was out to break the Marshall program if possible, or at least limit its effectiveness.

Russia refused to act with Britain and France as a sponsoring power for the conference and all eight nations now tied to the Soviet orbit rejected invitations issued by the British and French.

Finland Last to Refuse

Finland was the last nation to decide. Its cabinet turned down the invitation at a meeting this morning.

A Finnish communique said that Finland, "which will stay outside the world political conflicts, unfortunately finds it impossible to participate in the Paris conference."

Czechoslovakia alone of the Russian bloc accepted, but later withdrew under Soviet pressure.

With the cosponsors, Britain and France, the nations attending the conference will be Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Eire, Greece, Turkey, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Iceland, Austria, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

The conference grew out of a statement of United States Secretary of State Marshall on June 5 at Harvard University that the United States would aid European rehabilitation, provided the European countries would see what they could do for themselves and come up with a definte program.

Committees to Be Set Up

The French and British Foreign Ministers met in Paris with Russian Foreign Minister W. M. Molotov, but the conference collapsed when Molotov refused to accept the Marshall plan which he charged would mean interference into internal affairs of the European countries, and divide Europe into east-west blocs.

The conference is expected to set up committees to determine what European nations can do for themselves and how much U. S. aid might be required.

Some diplomats noted with interest reports that the Soviet shortly would initiate an aid program for eastern states which stay out of the Marshall plan. This was

Hawaii Strike Hits Pineapple Plants, Docks

CIO Stevedores Join Cannery Workers On Picket Lines

Honolulu, July 11 (AP).—CIO workers went on strike against Hawaii's multimillion-dollar pineapple industry today, and the paralysis quickly spread to the waterfront as stevedores joined the cannery picket lines.

Randolph Sevier, vice president of Castle and Cooke, Ltd., declared the waterfront union action "is in violation of its contract and is contrary to assurances given us yesterday when a union official denied there would be a sympathy strike."

Robert McElrath, publicity director of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said there was no sympathy strike, but that "stevedores simply reported on the picket lines before the pineapple plants and did not report for work."

He said the men "acted of their own free will and the union had nothing to do with it."

Sevier said that when some stevedores reported for work "they were turned away by squads of militant unionists from ILWU headquarters."

As a result, he added, five ships, including one laden with perishable foods, were idle in Honolulu Harbor.

Jury Indicts Five In Missouri Vote

Kansas City, July 11 (AP).—A Federal grand jury investigating the 1946 primary election here, returned a secret indictment naming five persons, to Federal Judge Albert A. Ridge and then recessed until July 29.

The indictment came after four days of investigation by the grand jury which had devoted most of its time to the Tenth Precinct in the First Ward. Early in the day the grand jury sent letters to 80,000 Kansas City voters, asking their help in its investigation into the primary election.

Navy Backers Victors Over Economy Bloc

Joint Congress Parley Approves Additional Funds for Defense

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense-minded legislators won a victory over the congressional economy bloc yesterday as a joint Senate-House conference committee approved additional funds for more planes, men and ships for the Navy.

The long-deadlocked conferees agreed to allow the Navy $3,516,766,100 in cash and contractural authority in the fiscal year 1948—about 215 million dollars above what the House allowed and 44 millions under the amount voted by the Senate.

Normally a Formality.

When approved by the two Houses—normally a formality—the conferees, agreement will give the Navy:

1. An average of 395,000 enlisted men this year—40,000 more than voted by the House and the full number proposed by the Senate.

2. Probably the total number of 293 combatant ships in operation allowed by the Senate. The report did not specify the number of warships to be in the active fleets, but this is largely determined by personnel strength.

3. Almost all of the 5793 naval operating planes voted by the House—some 250 over the aircraft strength allowed by the House.

4. Approved the additional 78 million dollars in contract authorization granted by the Senate—above President Truman's budget figures—for procuring 53 large land-based reconnaisance and anti-submarine planes. They will be similar to the record-holding P2V "Truculent Turtle."

Yesterday's agreement will give the Navy $3,268,766,100 in cash and 248 millions in contract authority in fiscal year 1948. The House had allowed $3,135,481,100 in cash and 170 millions in contractual authority. The Senate

Children's Hands Burned by Mother As Punishment

Detroit, July 11 (U.P.).—A 27-year-old mother was accused today of holding the hands of her two young sons over the flames of a gas stove as punishment for taking $8 from her purse and a piggy bank.

Policewoman Vesta Martin said Mrs. Phyllis Papretsky's two boys, Steven, 7, and David, 5, appeared at a city playground today with their hands loosely bandaged.

Questioned by recreation leaders, Steven was quoted as saying: "Ma burned us."

Mrs. Martin said the mother first said the burns were accidental, but then admitted she had inflicted them herself.

"I don't think they were hurt," Mrs. Papretsky said.

Officials at receiving hospital said the children were burned seriously.

Maid Didn't Want Any Pay, 'Slavery' Defendant Claims

San Diego, Calif., July 11 (AP).—Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls testified today that Dora Jones, by her own wish, was paid for only one year of work since 1907 and then related how she was "horrified" by an affair between her first husband and the Negro maid.

Mrs. Ingalls is on trial with her present husband on a Federal charge of enslaving the maid under threats of jail and hell for the old affairs.

She said Dora's pay was stopped because her first husband, Walter Harman of Washington, D. C., received only $1200 a year and wanted to attend Georgetown University Law School.

'Dora' pleaded to stay' 'without pay, the witness testified, and added: Since then, she never would accept any pay."

It was about 1911, Mrs. Ingalls stated that she learned of the affair because Dora became pregnant.

She testified that Harman, in a three-hour" confession in a field beside the Potomac River, pleaded for forgiveness and asked her to think of his and her families.

"He groveled on the ground and even ate the dirt of the field," Mrs. Ingalls stated. "I had never seen such exhibitions."

Mrs. Ingalls todl how she first met Dora Jones.

She was then Miss Elizabeth Kimball of Newburyport, Mass., and was teaching at Trinity Mission School in Athens, Ala.

"I was only 20," she testified, "and this little girl (Dora)—who is now 58) was very loving to me. She brought gifts of flowers and eggs and other things."

In 1905, the witness recalled, she married Harmon and in October, 1907, Dora came to the home in Washington to serve as personal maid and companion.

She said that Dora liked to get up around 4 a. m. and do personal laundry and that after Harman started to law school he also arose early, saying he wished to study.

"It was four years later," Mrs. Ingalls testified, "before I learned anything about what was going on. Dora came to me and told me she was pregnant. She said first it was the milkman then the gas man, then Harman."

Mrs. Ingalls, who divorced Harman in 1918 and married Ingalls, testified she was "furious" and refused to believe the maid.

Mrs. Ingalls' elder daughter, Mrs. Ruth Harman Castendyk, who testified for the prosecution yesterday, was then a child.

Reject 15% Rent Rise if Unjust, Rep. Wolcott Advises Tenants

By The Associated Press

Representative Wolcott (R., Mich., chairman of the House Banking Committee, suggested yesterday that tenants refuse to agree to a 15 per cent rent increase "unless they are convinced it is fully justified."

They should not, he declared in an interview "be blackjacked into agreeing to voluntary increases under the threat of eviction or larger boosts when the present rent control law expires next March 1."

If necessary, he said, Congress will continue controls beyond next March 1.

[Wolcott's Banking and Currency Committee originally voted last spring for an over-all 10 per cent rent increase. The committee reversed itself under the whiplash of House Speaker Joseph Martin (R., Mass.), who held a lengthy conference with Wolcott on the political repercussions of such a step. The "voluntary" 15 per cent increase was subsequently adopted by the House committee, and an attempt to substitute the flat 10 per cent raise instead was defeated on the House floor.—Editor's Note.]

"Certainly," Wolcott said," Congress is not going to sit by and permit hardship to exist when the present law expires. If the housing problem isn't licked by then, I believe we will continue the controls."

Wolcott said many tenants have the mistaken idea that the new

No Funds Voted, Senators Likely To Miss Payday

For the first time anyone at the Capitol could recall some Senators may have a payless payday next week.

Between 1400 and 1500 Senate employes also are affected.

This developed yesterday when Senate Financial Clerk Oco Thompson sent out a formal notice that the Senate's July 15 payday is postponed until further notice."

The notice, printed in red, explained: "The Legislative Branch Appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1947, not having been enacted, there are no funds available for Senate salaries."

voted $3,312,044,300 cash, plus 248 millions contract authority.

Other Differences Settled

Other differences settled yesterday by the Senate-House conferees:

An average officer strength of 42,000—the total allowed by the House.

Set the maximum number of enlisted men on duty at the Naval Academy at 1025—a House victory.

Accepted a Senate amendment providing three million dollars additional to allow 3000 young men to begin Naval ROTC courses at civilian colleges this fall under the "Holloway plan."

Barred Marine sergeants, Navy gunners' mates and other regular enlisted personnel from being assigned as servants in the quarters of ranking admirals or at officers' messes. Men specifically enlisted for duty as officers' stewards and cooks, however, may be given such duty.

Compromised the amount allowed for caring for the natives on Pacific islands handled by the Navy at three million dollars, splitting the difference between the Senate and House.

leaders would reserve for themselves the right to call Congress back in addition to the President's constitutional power to do so.

Immediate Protest

An immediate protest against failure to include the terminal pay bill on the Senate must list came from Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.).

Baldwin is chairman of an Armed Services Subcommittee which already has approved the measure and the full committee is expected to bring it to the floor on Tuesday.

Baldwin pointed out that the House had unanimously approved the veterans' pay bill, and he promised to work for Senate action "ahead of other matters of more secondary matter." Involved are some $1,800,000,000 worth of five-year bonds held by veterans.

Taft offered no detailed comment on this bill nor on the long-range housing program which he has been backing for two sessions of Congress with Senators Wagner (D., N. Y.) and Ellender (D., La.).

Schedule Listed

1. President Truman's reorganization plan No. 3. The House has disapproved this, but the Senate Banking Committee approved, and unless the Senate reverses its committee, the plan will become effective.

2. A Senate bill for increasing the Government allowances to war veterans who are students under the GI Bill of Rights.

3. A Senate bill to authorize the purchase of automobiles for disabled war veterans who are blind or amputees.

4. A House-approved bill that would allow citizens of Puerto Rico to elect their governor. He now is appointed.

5. A Senate bill to reinstate the Federal mine safety code that operated while the Government held the coal mines.

Five Convicts Are Killed in Ga. Camp Riot

Anguilla, Ga., July 11 (U.P.)—Five Negro convicts were killed and eight wounded at a county work camp here late today in what authorities described as an uprising fomented by newly arrived prisoners.

Police Chief Russell B. Henderson, who was summoned with an armed force to put down the riot, said the men were moved down by camp guards after one, a long termer, "made a grab" for Superintendent H. G. Worthy.

Worthy, witnesses said, shot the man Willie Bell, wounding him. The 26 others in the stockade then scattered in all directions. Thee were killed as they scrambled under a nearby "bullpen," one as he reached the top of the wire enclosure and the other outright.

Henderson said Camp guards did the shooting while his men held their fire.

The 27 prisoners, many of them just arrived from a camp at Folkston, had been returned to the stockade from a road detail after some of them reportedly cursed their guards for prodding them to work, Worthy said.

UMT Opponents Charge Committee Hasn't Played Fair

By The Associated Press

The House Armed Services Committee formally concluded public consideration of universal military training yesterday with a barrage of opposition testimony and complaints of "unbalanced" hearings.

After hearing Norman Thomas, the last of 22 witnesses since the hearing started on June 18, Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) referred the subject of UMT to a subcommittee headed by Representative Towe (R., N. J.).

Towe's group will meet early next week to decide what to do. It may order more hearings, since Representative Short (R., Mo.), second-ranking committeeman, has demanded them with the argument that opposition witnesses haven't had a full opportunity to present their case.

Private polls indicated that the 10-member Towe Subcommittee has a majority in favor of UMT, but not a majority in favor of action at this session of Congress.

Many Seek to Be Heard

The decision to end full committee hearings drew an outburst of complaints from groups that have not been heard. Among the complainers were the National Farmers Union, several church organizations, the National Commission on Christian Higher Education, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the National Council for Prevention of War.

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the latter organization, protested that the hearings have not been "balanced" and have shown favoritism for proponents. More than 100 groups, he said, unsuccessfully sought a chance to be heard.

Norman Thomas, longtime leader of the Socialist Party, said that by adopting universal military training now, Congress would embark on a policy "which contemplates war against Russia" in Europe or Asia within the next 10 years.

Wouldn't "Scare" Stalin

"There is not the slightest evidence that Stalin . . . would be scared" by UMT, Thomas said.

"The last great chance for world peace depends upon an American appeal for universal disarmament under effective but strictly limited world government."

Thomas was preceded by Jesse P. Bogue, executive secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges; Representative Adam Clayton Powell (R., N. Y.), and J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the Joint Committee for American Baptists on Public Relations.

Dawson told the committee the United States, if it adopted UNT, would display distrust of other nations.

Bogue said a recent poll indicated that a majority of school administrators opposed UMT, faculty members were split, and students generally favored the proposal.

Declaring he spoke as a citizen, a minister and a member of the Negro race, Powell said "Conscription will not in any way" prepare this country for modern warfare.

Workers and Bosses Cool Off at Picnics

Kalamazoo, Mich. (U.P.)—Management and labor long have had their "gripe and growl" sessions but employes and officials at the Kalamazoo Label Co. have added a new twist.

Once a month, the 40 employes of the company sit down with their employers at a picnic dinner in the plant and thresh out their problems.

President James J. Murray originated the plan. Informality and equality feature the experiment in industrial democracy. The picnic table is set up in the main production room. The management foots the bills, but details of the dinner are arranged by a committee of workers.

Executives, foremen and workers sit down in shirtsleeves and work clothes just after quitting time on the second Friday of each month. When the dinner is over, no punches are pulled in the discussion. Management gets in as many suggestions as does labor and complaints are settled then and there, if possible. Stenographic records are kept and later posted on plant bulletin boards for those unable to attend.

Oklahoma Spurns Tax On 'Illegal' Liquor

Muskogee, Okla. (U.P.)—Liquor is illegal in Oklahoma and no State tax is levied on it, but the sale of whisky provides a regular source of revenue here, nevertheless.

Since the first of the year, bootleggers and others fined for illegal possession of alcoholic beverages have paid penalties totaling nearly $6000 to the city and county governments.

County and city officials say the intake in fines, fees and bond forfeitures is only a dribble compared with what the revenue would be if a 10 per cent tax were levied on all liquor consumed in this area. Efforts to pass a law levying a 10 per cent tax on "illegal" merchandise" failed during the recent Oklahoma legislative session.

Down From Clouds

Wolfeboro, N. H. (U.P.)—Ken Gould of Laconia is coming down out of the clouds for the first time in five years. He has been chief weather observer atop mile-high Mount Washington for that length of time, but now has been given an indefinite leave of absence to serve as manager for the Brook and Bridle Inn here.

Soviet May Aid Own Bloc

Moscow, July 11 (AP).—Prospects of definite Soviet aid for European nations—especially those which do not eventually associate themselves with the Marshall proposal—appeared to foreign observers today to be a distinct possibility.

On the eve of the Paris conference, Moscow's press and radio maintained attacks upon the American offer, repeating things they have said in past, but making new points also.

The Soviet viewpoint of several issues was more clearly outlined. These included:

1. The prospect that Russia may offer aid in one form or another to European nations. (Previous dispatches have suggested this aid might take the form of grain, industrial goods and, in the case of former enemy nations, reduction of reparations.)

Believe They Weren't Wanted

2. A growing belief by the Russians that they never really were wanted in the arrangements and that they were originally invited to Paris as a polite or necessary gesture.

3. Hopes expressed in some quarters of the world that the USSR might eventually come into the setup are ill-founded.

4. Mounting apprehension that there is a plan afoot somewhere to get western Germany into the Marshall proposal and eventually to include western Germany in what the Russians describe as the "western bloc."

The Russians say they look on the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall proposal—which they do not separate—as primarily aimed at them.

They blame what they chose to call "certain circles" in the United States, Britain's Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Poland Still Hopes for U. S. Aid

Warsaw, July 11 (AP).—Poland is anxious to get foreign assistance for reconstruction and would consider it "lamentable" if her refusal to attend the Paris economic conference created an unfavorable impression in the United States, a foreign ministry spokesman said tonight.

He added that failure to obtain American aid would delay rebuilding, but emphasized that Poland would arise from the ruins of war through the great energy and enthusiasm of her workers. He also said this nation was looking to other countries (not specified) as well as the United States for help.

The spokesman reiterated at a news conference that the German question was one of the biggest stumbling blocks to participation in the Paris meeting. Poland feels, he stressed, that nations which suffered as the result of German aggression should be given priority assistance over Germany.

The government would welcome quick action from the world bank on its application for a 600-million-dollar loan for reconstruction, the ministry official said.

Stalin Gives Dinner To Czech Trade Mission

Moscow, July 11 (U.P.)—Czechoslovakia's Communist Premier Klement Gottwald, Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk and other members of a Czech trade delegation attended a dinner tonight in the Kremlin as guests of the Soviet state.

(Premier Josef Stalin himself was host at the dinner, Radio Moscow said in a broadcast heard in London. The radio said that guests included Gottwald, Masaryk, Minister of Justice Prokop Drtina and Ambassador I. Horak.)

rent control law allowing 15 per cent voluntary increases by agreement between landlords and tenants is mandatory.

"The law means just what it says," he said. "A voluntary increase is one which is agreed to by both parties. No tenant has to submit to an increase if he doesn't think it is justified."

On the other hand, he said, many tenants agree that their landlords are entitled to the extra money.

He said that if the housing problem is acute next March 1 and additional protection is needed for tenants, the law will have to be continued.

Nocente was released on $3000 bond and his wife on $2500 bond to appear before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on Monday.

Clarence William Gomillion, 49, of 1433 T st. nw. was arrested in another raid at 1906 18th st. nw. He was charged with possession of lottery slips and operating a lottery.

Police said they seized $223 in cash including marked money. Gomillion was released on $500 bond for an appearance in Municipal Court.

Man Indicted For Robbing Victim Again

An Alexandria man who had just served a prison term for robbery was indicted yesterday by an Alexandria grand jury for robbing the same man again.

The accused, Charles Comar, No. 2 Butts Court, was one of 24 indicted by the corporation court grand jury. The defendants were arraigned following the jury's findings.

In one case disposed of, Judge William P. Woolls sentenced James Ingram, 531 N. Henry st., to two years in prison following a guilty plea on a charge of auto theft.

A plea of not guilty by Ingram to a charge of attempted rape on a six-year-old girl will be tried Monday, together with the cases of the others indicted.

Indictments were returned against the following:

Charles Bomar, 812 1st st. nw., Washington, felonious assault; Eugene Butts, Fort Belvoir, felonious assault (three couts); J. P. Chialastic, 4662 Lacey ave., Braddock Heights, grand larceny; Charles C. Cockerill, 212 S. Fayette st., Thurman Fitzgerald, 209 Commerce st., and Glen Martin, 1207 King st., assault and robbery; Charles Comar, No. 2 Butts ct., hold up and robbery; William H. Md. State Senator To Ask Community Property Law

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—State Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes (D., Baltimore, 5th) said today he would ask the legislative council, to consider at its next meeting a proposal for the adoption of a Maryland husband-and-wife community property law.

Byrnes, chairman of the council, said the proposal would be referred to the group's 10-man standing committee on budget and financial affairs headed by Senator Sothoron (D., Prince Georges).

Such a law would be similar to laws already in effect in 13 States and Hawaii.

Under terms of the proposal, husbands and wives could report family incomes separately, each claming half, even though the entire amount was owned by the husband.

Governor Lane earlier this week said he would ask the legislature to consider such a statute.

NEA Adopts Policy Against School Strikes

Cincinnati, July 11 (AP).—A no-strike policy for school teachers was adopted by the National Education Association today as it neared the end of its five-day meeting.

"The association condemns the violations of contracts by teachers, believes that the strike is an unsatisfactory method of solving professional problems, deplores existence of conditions which have caused teachers to strike, and urges that those within the profession assume a larger share of responsibility for the removal of those conditions," it was stated in a resolution.

A motion to delete the words saying the association "condemns the violations of contracts by teachers, believes that the strike is an unsatisfactory method of solving professional problems" was defeated.

Miss Mary McGough of St. Paul, where schools were closed by a strike last winter, urged the change.

Higher Pay Indorsed

Another resolution approved by the assembly urged annual minimum salaries of at least $2400 for elementary and secondary school teachers, with annual increases until the pay reaches $5000 or above also was passed.

The same resolution favored at least four years training for teachers, with an ultimate goal of five; elimination of emergency teaching certificates, and steps to encourage young people to enter the profession.

The assembly passed another resolution urging Congress "to make the United States Office of Education an independent agency of the Federal government headed by the National Board of Education composed of representative laymen appointed by the President to long, overlapping terms."

Asks Strong U. S.

On national security, the NEA went on record as follows:

"The National Education Association recognizes that we live in a world in which the structures designed to provide peace have yet to be completed. To be secure in such a world, we must be strong. The NEA is convinced, therefore, that the American people must at this time be responsible for their own security, and calls upon Congress to enact such legislation as may be required to provide an adequate national defense.

"The National Education Association nevertheless condemns any form of legislation which in the name of national security sets up parallel educational agencies that absorb or supplant the programs of educational facilities now in existence . . ."

Taft Favors Relaxation on Labor Press

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday declared himself in favor of amending the 19-day-old Taft-Hartley labor law to relax restrictions on the labor press.

tors Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) and George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) introduced an amendment to the new law designed to remove all threats to all segments of the press.

Last night, Senator Hatch, when informed of Senator Taft's position, said he believed it would be possible to amend the bill in some manner before the scheduled adjournment of Congress July 26 to remove the threat to civil liberties which the present law carries.

Senator Taft admitted in an interview that there were some "dangers" in the corrupt practices section of the law as it now stands.

His comment was made upon learning that preliminary studies at the Justice Department held that the new law prohibits virtually the press—even corporate-owned general newspapers—from making comment which might influence elections for Federal office.

"I'd be in favor of an amendment to the act to exempt bona fide newspapers published the year around—even though they are paid for out of a compulsory allocation of union dues—say $1 out of $5," Taft said. He said an exemption of this kind would allow union newspapers to publish any comment they wanted.

Even if union papers were financed out of compulsory dues "I'd be inclined to be liberal about that," he declared.

The preliminary Justice Department interpretation has held that the prohibitions applied to corporate-owned general newspapers as well as those run by labor unions.

Taft said that it had not been the intention of the drafters of the bill to penalize legitimate labor papers. The intention had been to prevent special election year propagandizing with union funds, he explained.

Former Court Clerk Indicted in Shortages

Fredericksburg, Va., July 11 (AP).—Leroy J. Freeman, 46, was indicted today by a special Fredericksburg Circuit Court grand jury on charges of embezzlement and larceny of $6,642.50 while he was clerk of civil and police courts here.

His trial was set for September 20 by Judge Leon M. Bazile.

Freeman was named clerk by the Fredericksburg City Council in December, 1945, and resigned December 30, 1946, after an auditor's report revealed a shortage of funds. He was arrested the following day and freed under bond of $5000.

The Thrill That Comes Once In A Lifetime

Czech Source Says Kremlin Altered Stand

London, July 11 (U.P.).—A well-informed Czech source said today that the Kremlin originally had approved the participation of Czechoslovakia in the conference opening tomorrow in Paris on the Marshall plan.

This informant, who cannot be identified, said the Russians may have told Czechoslovakia to reverse its stand after getting repercussions from other Soviet satellites. He said Russia would have agreed to let Czechoslovakia take part as an exceptional favor, but certainly would not want pro-western tendencies encouraged elsewhere.

Therefore, he said, the quick about-face of the Czech cabinet yesterday was a "slap into the face of the Czech Communists." He had not doubted that the 10 Communist members of the Czech cabinet had originally approved participation and that before they approved it, they consulted suitable Russian quarters, as is their custom.

Calls Unanimity Fictitious

When Russia decided that, after all, it would not be a good idea for Czechoslovakia to be at the conference, he said, it demanded that the Czech cabinet unanimously withdraw its acceptance, so as to appear abroad as a "solid bloc." But the unanimity in withdrawing the acceptance as mentioned yesterday in a cabinet communique was purely fictitious, he said.

He said the dictum of the Kremlin was accepted only by the Communists and by the left-wing Social Democrats, who stand for unquestioned alignment with Russia.

All other members of the cabinet, he said, were known to back Czech participation in the conference wholeheartedly. He said they changed their vote only in the face of strong Russian pressure.

By James M. Long

Prague, July 11 (AP).—Political informants said tonight the emergency cabinet session which withdrew Czechoslovakia from the Paris conference broke up five times before non-Communist ministers won their sole point—that the announcement make clear the action was taken under Soviet pressure.

The informants, who were well posted on events of the bitter six-hour cabinet discussion, said that was the best the non-Communists could do. They added that Communist Premier Klement Gottwald had demanded from Moscow that the cabinet action must be unanimous.

The informants said the opposition gave up all hope of Czechoslovak participation in the Paris talks on the Marshall proposal when the cabinet received a message from nonpartisan President Dr. Eduard Benes stating simply:

"Under these circumstances I can do nothing."

Benes was reported to have played a large part in getting government leaders to make their original acceptance of the British-French invitation to Paris. Benes was not in Prague, having departed two days ago for a vacation in southern Bohemia.

In the wording of the official announcement—that Czechoslovakia could not take action which might be construed as unwelcome to Russia—the Czechoslovak people found evidence their country was caught in the Soviet orbit.

Heretofore they had been told that talk of Slav interference was western propaganda, and that since the liberation Russia had never interfered in their country's affairs.

Cyclotron

Big Machine Makes Tiny Bits of Atom

Palo Alto, Calif., July 11 (AP).—A devastating smashup of the atom, yielding a whole layout of strange new transmuted elements, was reported today as the first formal achievement of the giant post-war cyclotron at the University of California.

This initial effort of the 4000-ton concrete-caged mechanical monster opens the way for the production of upward of 100 new radioactive elements for scientific research. At present there are about 450 radioactive and 275 stable forms of the conventional elements.

For the first time on record an atom was extensively smashed by a man-made machine. Heretofore, atom smashing has consisted of knocking one or two bits off the nucleus. Even an atom bomb explosion divides a nucleus into not more than five parts.

Hits Arsenic Atoms

The cyclotron wrought havoc by hurling 200-million-volt bullets at atoms of arsenic. The arsenic nuclei were shattered into at least 22 and possibly as many as 30 pieces. At least ten of these pieces were themselves elements of regular matter. At one stroke the big machine had turned one relatively heavy element into many different lighter elements, with some spare parts left over.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg and Dr. Isadore Perlman, who were among the top researchers on the atom bomb, reported the work to the American Physical Society meeting at Stanford University. The experimenters included Dr. B. B. Cunningham, Dr. H. H. Hopkins, Dr. Manfred Linder, Dr. D. R. Miller, Dr. P. R. O'Conner and Dr. R. C. Thompson.

Aids Atomic Medicine

The hitherto unknown products of these operations will increase the versatility of atomic medicine and the various branches of research which use radioactive substances. The different forms of the elements mean different rates of radioactivity or different kinds of radiation.

For example, the first form of radioactive carbon, produced before the outbreak of World War II, was radioactive for only a few minutes. Experimenters in biological research sometimes failed because the radioactivity gave out before the biological process was completed. A radiocarbon of longer life solved their problem. The new elements from the cyclotron will solve other such problems.

His Master's Voice Brings Dog Home

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (U.P.)—Doc, a small black mongrel dog, could not become accustomed to his new neighborhood. Each day he would be found in the part of town where his owners used to live.

Doc was back in his old neighborhood when he was seen by Mrs. Wiliam E. Butters. She called the dog into her home and telephoned Doc's owner, Mrs. Vern Burbridge.

Mrs. Butters put the telephone to the dog's ear and Doc heard his mistress say:

"You start for home right away, you bad dog."

Veterans Stick It Out

Norman, Okla., (U.P.)—Although living costs reached a new high, only 3.49 per cent of the veterans enrolled in the University of Oklahoma withdrew from school during the spring semester. It compared with 4.19 per cent veteran withdrawals during the first semester, and 3.57 per cent withdrawal of nonveterans during the current semester.

Cripps Arrives For Final U. N. Trade Parley

Geneva, Switzerland, July 11 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, President of the British Board of Trade, arrived today for the final sessions on tariffs of the United Nations Trade and Employment Conference.

He is expected to confer soon with United States Undersecretary of State William Clayton. With the world tariff issue out of the way, Clayton returned to Geneva last night, with the idea of breaking the differences between the United States and Australia.

Eric Wyndham White, executive secretary of the conference, said its work during the last three months substantially conformed to the original program. He said five tariff agreements had been completed, 21 were nearly completed and five others were making "good progress" in discussions.

He said the conference had agreed to recommend to the U. N. Economic and Social Council that all countries with an appreciable interest in world trade should be invited to the World Trade Conference. It has been suggested that the trade conference be held in Havana, Cuba, beginning November 21.

Veteran Is Teacher In College at 19

CLEVELAND (U.P.)—A college graduate at 17, Navy translator in Japanese at 18 and college instructor at 19 are the three steps in the career to date of Donald Frifield, youngest graduate of Ohio State University.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Frifield of suburban Shaker Heights, finished 12 years of public school in eight and breezed through OSU in two years, carrying a full load of journalism, German, French, Spanish and Portuguese courses.

He enlisted in the Navy in July, 1945. Mustered out last year, he is now back at OSU studying for a master's degree in business administration and teaching Spanish as a university instructor.

Battle in Clouds

Greeks Oust Rebels From Strong Points

Athens, July 11 (AP).—Capture of two fortified positions in a continuing mountain-peak battle between the Greek army and guerillas near the Albanian border was reported today by the Greek general staff. A cabinet minister said the guerillas were trying to establish a Communist state in the area.

A general staff communique said the guerilla force was being pushed westward despite stiff resistance at fortified points. It added that a "great" number of rifles, 10,000 rounds of ammunition, 15 cases of hand grenades and 13 mortars were seized.

The Greeks said a force of some 4000 guerillas was fighting on the 6000-foot peaks of Mount Grammos, only 15 miles from Albania.

George Stratos, minister of war, told a news conference that the objective of th guerillas was to seize territory for establishment of a KKE (Communist) government in the area roughly west and north of Kastoria, east and north of Konitsa, and southeast of Koritza, Albania.

Stratos said another objective of the guerillas was to clear a way to enter Greece for an international force of 2500, which he said is at the Yugoslav port of Split on the Adriatic coast.

The battle began June 27. It was the first time the guerillas had put up a determined resistance from behind fortified points since April 9. Previously, it was said, they had been told by their leaders not to meet the Greek army or gendarmerie in a frontal war.

Napoleon Zervas, minister of public order, gave new details of what he said was Communist "plan F" for the uprisings and said large stores of arms and ammunition had been uncovered in Athens, Kavalla, Salonika and other points.

Zervas said one phase of "plan F" called for organization of strikes and sabotage to "cultivate the revolutionary spirit."

Troops Threaten Peace, Cautions Cairo Government

Lake Success, July 11 (AP).—The Egyptian government today accused Britain of a hostile policy toward Egypt and demanded that the United Nations order the evacuation of all British troops immediately.

Egypt warned that continued presence of British soldiers threatened world peace.

In a bristling complaint to the Security Council, the Cairo government said Britain was taking advantage of an outmoded treaty to maintain troops "in Egyptian territories against the unanimous will of the people."

Calls Treaty Inconsistent

Egypt said that the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of 1936 covering the presence of troops "cannot bind Egypt any longer, having outlived its purposes, besides being inconsistent with the (U. N.) Charter.

Egypt also asked the U. N. to terminate the British regime in the Sudan to halt "a policy designed to sever the Sudan from Egypt."

Neither Egyptian nor British sources were ready to offer definite figures on how many troops were now on Egyptian soil, the London War Office saying only "a few thousand" troops were there "liquidating" military establishments.

Previously the British cited the withdrawal of wartime forces from cities—mainly Cairo and Alexandria—and claimed to be down to the treaty limit of 10,000 troops and 400 pilots plus auxiliary personnel to safeguard the Suez Canal zone, which is sovereign Egyptian territory. Egyptians termed the British figures too low.

The complaint, signed by Prime Minister Nokrashy Pasha, was handed to the U. N. by Ambassador Hassan Pasha. He said the Premier would arrive here shortly to argue personally the case before the 11-nation Council.

The Egyptian charges reached the Council while delegates were listening to Bulgaria accuse the United States of intimidation in seeking to establish a U. N. border watch over the Balkans.

Dr. N. Mevorah, Bulgarian representative, said American Delegate Warren R. Austin's statement that the Council might have to resort to force if a border commission was not established, was intimidation.

British Ready to Debate

U. N. officials said the Egyptian charges could not be taken up before Tuesday at the earliest under Council rules. But it was indicated that there might be a much longer delay due to the current jam in the Council over the Balkan situation and a proposed world police force.

The British said they were ready to begin debate immediately.

A spokesman for the London government declared that an Anglo-Egyptian treaty covering presence of British troops did not expire until 1956. He said the British had agreed to consider revision but that negotiations had broken down over Egypt's efforts to assert her sovereignity in the Sudan.

The spokesman said Britain looked on any unilateral cancellation of a treaty "as a serious move which undercuts the whole framework of international life." As for the Sudan, he said:

"Our view is that the Sudan must be free to choose its future government."

The Sudan, a large unexploited area of almost a million square miles, has been held under "condominium" rule, flying the flags of Britain and Egypt since 1899.

Colorado GOP Leaders Ride Dewey's Train

En Route West With Dewey, July 11 (AP).—Republican leaders of Colorado boarded Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's train at Limon, Colo., late today and conferred with the New York chief executive on a 100-mile ride to Denver.

The delegation was composed of Rex Eaton and Mrs. Eileen Archibold, national committee members; State Chairman William L. Lloyd; Mrs. Alma Schneider, State vice chairman, and Will F. Nicholson, State finance chairman.

Dewey, en route to the Governors' Conference at Salt Lake City, was unaware that the group planned to board the train until his secretary, Paul E. Lockwood, received a telegram from Mrs. Archibold.

Reports reaching the Dewey party indicated Colorado is leaning toward Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination. One of the State's top GOP leaders, Senator Eugene D. Millikin, is a close friend of Taft. Colorado will have 13 delegate votes at the national convention in Philadelphia next June.

In his train conference with the Colorado leaders and during a two-hour stop-over in Denver tonight, Dewey is expected to try to win Colorado support for his own undeclared candidacy for the presidential nomination.

It was learned, meanwhile, that Dewey had talked by telephone with former Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas before leaving Kansas City last night. Landon's failure to attend a Kansas City luncheon in honor of the Governor inspired speculation that the 1936 Republican standard beared was cool to the New Yorker's candidacy.

Landon himself said he had stayed in Topeka because he had seen Dewey at the latter's Pawling, N. Y., farm late last month and because he wished others to have a chance to confer with the New York Governor.

During the 27-hour stop-over at Kansas City, Dewey received assurances from several highly placed Missouri and Kansas Republicans that those States would support him at the convention.

Marshall Goes to Senate Group About Plan

meet as many ideas on the subject as there are American and British officials in Germany.

General Clay, with some support from Washington, has been arguing for bigger food imports for the Ruhr miners, and also for a decision not to socialize the industries of the Ruhr. The British, with some support from Washington as well as from London, have been arguing that the American zone in Germany has been keeping an unfair amount of Germany's food. They contend that much of the trouble in the Ruhr could be solved if General Clay would only see to it that Bavaria sent more of its food to Ruhr miners.

General Clay yesterday denied a report that he had refused to come to Washington for the conference. It is not yet known whether he will come, who the respective delegates will be, or exactly when the conference will meet.

Marshall Wants Speed

Certainly it will not be delayed until the Paris conference and its committees have submitted their plans. Secretary Marshall is known to be insisting on speed in deciding policy toward the Ruhr, since this is a joint American-British responsibility which does not depend on wider European agreement.

Officially the United States is holding strictly aloof from the Paris meeting today, although the conference was summoned as a direct consequence of Secretary Marshall's speech at Harvard on June 5. Not even an American observer will be present; no American guidance is being offered, except for the talks Undersecretary of State Will Clayton has had with European leaders in the past week.

With all the elaborate gestures of actors in a Chinese play, American officials insist that the Paris conference is a matter for the Europeans themselves. The official "line" is that it is strictly up to the Europeans at this stage to work out programs of self-help, for later submission to the United States.

Government Experts Assemble

Actually, however, officials in several departments are busy with European reconstruction problems, apart from the Ruhr and apart from the political liaison work which Secretary Marshall started yesterday.

Government experts from several agencies, including State Commerce, Treasury and Agriculture, are being assembled quietly into an emergency staff to determine what Europe will really need and how Europe can best use its own resources.

The intention here is to have some yardstick for measuring the accuracy and reasonableness of whatever plans Europe may submit. Later some American technical experts may join as consultants in the work of the European committees that are expected to be set up by the Paris conference.

Harriman to Return

Meanwhile Secretary of Commerce Harriman was expected back from Europe next week. On July 24 he intends to hold his first meeting with his 19-man committee which President Truman appointed to study America's capabilities for helping Europe.

The other two presidential committees, the one on natural resources headed by Secretary Krug and the other on economics headed by Economic Adviser Edwin G. Nourse, are already at work on their studies connected with the Marshall program.

Government agencies are also anxious to learn from American business leaders how American industry can guarantee production and delivery of the most urgently needed reconstruction goods, such as farm equipment and mining machinery.

Senator George Protests

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), former chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and an influential member of the Foreign Relations Committee, protested yesterday against suggestions that Congress might be asked to approve a multi-billion-dollar program for Europe for a three or four year period.

The Senator said he did not reject the basic idea behind the Marshall plan—namely, that the United States would help nations cooperating among themselves for economic revival—but he said a specific commitment over a period of years was "out of the question."

"We must of necessity allot funds as the needs arise from time to time," he said, recalling that one Congress could not bind another on a matter of vital spending policy.

Although Administration spokesmen have talked of a three- or four-year program, costing as much as six billion dollars each year, nobody has ever suggested asking Congress for a lump-sum three-year appropriation. The principle of the long-range program would have to be accepted in advance, but specific appropriations would have to be sought on an annual or even semiannual basis.

Clay Foresees Loan

Berlin, July 11 (U.P.).—American Military Governor Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today that the United States and Great Britain, whose bombers blasted the Ruhr coal mines during the war, may borrow upward of 300 million dollars from the World Bank to step up their production.

Clay said the loan would be made outside governmental appropriations because taxpayers of Britain and the United States probably felt they had done enough by sending in millions of dollars in food relief.

Chemists Ban Talk Of Atom at Meeting

London, July 11 (U.P.).—Discussion of matters relating to atomic energy will be strictly taboo at the eleventh International Congress of Pure and Applied Chemistry here, Sir Wallace Akers, wartime director of British research on atomic energy, told a press conference today.

All scientists attending—there will be over 2000 from all over the world, including Russia—have been asked to refrain from presenting papers on any aspect of radioactivity, Akers said.

$18,136 Is Low Bid for Four Water Mains

The District plans to spend about $18,000 to install four new water mains to serve new housing construction throughout the city.

Bids for the projects were opened yesterday by Chief Engineer Clerk P. M. Lumpkins. Lowest of three bidders, with estimates totaling $18,136, was the Ahl Brothers Construction Co., 7734 Frederick rd., Hyattsville, Md.

New mains are scheduled for installation at the following locations:

Five Teen-Age Girls Rescued

ago, skipper Pat Keen said, and their parents agreed yesterday that all are good sailors and good swimmers.

Pat told how they conquered tiller trouble by holding a crippled rudder with their feet after starting from Shady Side for Annapolis.

After repairs at Annapolis, they set sail again, began shipping water about 5:30 p. m., and watched the mast snap in a gust about an hour later. Their SOS signal (Ann Flagg's T-shirt flapping from an oar) went up when they failed to make headway with the oar against wind and tide.

The South Bend Victory of the Texas Line saw the signal, put out a boat with 10 or 12 men in it—all looking for cigarettes, Margaret Crumbaugh said. The girls had none to offer.

Taken aboard the South Bend Victory, they were given dry clothing and offered the "privileges of my cabin" by Capt. John W. Foster of Baltimore. Their rescue was at 9 p. m., and they slept in the sick bay after Captain Foster had notified the shore of their rescue.

Their catboat, taken in tow at the time of their rescue, had broken loose during the night, but turned up in Baltimore after being taken in tow again by tugboat skipper James F. Waters.

The girl Sea Scouts returned home yesterday with Captain Foster's advice:

"Be careful when you go sailing again."

for coordination of Federal, State and local tax programs.

Millikin termed them "fundamental revisions" that required full committee hearings. Morse termed it "a program geared toward expanding consumer purchasing power without injury to business investment."

After one challenge to "liberal Republicans," Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) asked him to take 10 seconds out to name Republican liberals. Taylor said he could name them all in four seconds. He asked Morse if all those liberal Republicans really existed, or if he saw something that wasn't there, like the imaginary rabbit, Harvey.

Morse merely grinned. "I know when I've taken a good shellacking," he said.

In another speech against the bill, Senator J. William Fullbright (D., Ark.) said the January 1 tax cut proposed in the Knutson bill is "premature" and would "add fuel to inflation."

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) who opposed the original Knutson bill, announced his support of the second venture. Robertson contended there would be enough revenue in excess of expenditures to reduce taxes four billion dollars starting January 1 and still leave a substantial sum for the national debt.

'Poisonous' Case Entered In D. C. Court

A really "poisonous" case was entered on the District Court docket yesterday when the Federal Government and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were sued for $2,376,185.

The suit was filed by the Jardine Mining Co., of Jardine, Mont. It involves 10 million pounds of arsenic (and no old lace).

The mining company said in its brief that it contracted to supply that amount of arsenic to Metals Reserve Co., a Government outfit, in 1944 and 1945.

The Montana company (it says in the brief) went happily ahead with plans for turning out 10 million pounds of arsenic, spending money for plant enlargement, etc.

Meanwhile, it is cintended, the Metals Reserve Co. decided in 1944 that it didn't need the arsenic and so advised the Government agencies to which the Jardine Co. had to apply for priorities on materials, manpower and equipment.

Blissfully unaware of the change of mind, the Jardine Co. says it spent much of its money preparing to fill the contract. Meanwhile, too, the company contends, the War Manpower Commission, the Smaller Warplants Corporation, the War Production Board and other Government agencies, were refusing the company priorities here in Washington.

The company previously filed a claim for damages with the RFC buit it was rejected.

The suit does not explain what use the Government intended for so much arsenic.

Keech Denies New Trial for Anti-Fascists

Justice Richmond B. Keech yesterday refused to grant a new trial or acquit 16 leaders of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee who were convicted of contempt of Congress.

The 16 persons failed to produce records of their organization when subpenaed to do so by the House Un-American Activities Committee. They were subsequently cited in contempt and the case went to trial in District Court, resulting in a jury verdict of guilty.

Justice Keech, in denying the defense motions, set Wednesday for sentencing the defendants.

O. John Rogge, defense attorney, argued that the officials of the refugee group could not have been held responsible for producing records since custody of the documents was with a secretary, Miss Helen R. Bryan. She was not a defendant in this case, he said, although she was named in another indictment now pending.

Rogge also charged that the jury was prejudiced by argument of the prosecutor that the Refugee Committee was a "Communist-front" organization. Rogge said he would appeal the case.

The Government was represented by Charles B. Murray.

Among the 16 convicted persons were Howard Fast, author; Leverett S. Gleason, publisher; Dr. Edward K. Barsky, surgeon, and Herman Shumlin, theatrical producer.

Wife Murderer Gets Her Estate, Ga. Court Rules

Atlanta, July 11 (AP).—A man who murders his wife is the sole heir to her estate in Georgia, in event there are no children, the State Supreme Court held Thursday.

The court ruled in a Fulton County suit brought by Dora Hall, Lula George and Curtis George, the mother, sister and brother of Ruby Keith, who contended Ruby was murdered by her husband, Carl Keith, and sought to recover as heirs on an insurance policy.

In a unanimous decision, the court, in asking whether a man can inherit from the wife he murdered, said:

"Upon first impression it is the natural and human and judicial impulse to say that he cannot. But legal rights are not so determined; and when this initial attack on our sense has subsided and a dispassionate analysis of the law is made, we find no legal barrier to his right to so inherit."

Kingman Lake Dragged for Body of Man

Police were dragging the waters of Kingman Lake, behind the National Guard Armory near Anacostia River, last night for the body of a possible drowning victim.

Police, called by Frank Williams, 54, 3433 14th st. ne., had found some clothes on the bank of the lake, and a wallet containing Navy discharge tpapers made out to Edwin P. Clark.

Williams told police that he and a companion, whose name he did not know, had come to the shore of the lake at about 11 a. m. "to do some drinking." At about 3 p. m., he had gone to watch a baseball game in a nearby field, Williams said, leaving his companion on the bank.

When he returned about an hour later, he told police, the other man had gone and his brown trousers, black shoes, socks and cigarettes were there. The possible drowning victim had talked all day about going swimming, Williams declared. Williams is a retired fireman.

Williams, who said he had known the man for about 15 years without knowing his name, said he thought he was a retired Navy man who lived somewhere around 10th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne.

The discharge papers were dated January 8, 1945, and indicated a present age of 45.

FCC Approves Byrnes' Radio Station Interest

By The Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday approved a plan by which former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will become part owner of a radio station in his home town of Spartansburg, S. C.

The plan involves a rearrangement of holdings in Spartansburg stations WORD and WORD-FM, and WSPA and WSPA-FM. Byrnes, now practicing law at Spartansburg, will become a 5 per cent stockholder in WORD and WORD-FM in association with Walter J. Brown, his long-time special assistant during Byrnes' Government service.

Make It Permanent!

As far as we have been able to ascertain, no drastic changes in American life have come about through the granting of daylight saving time to Washington. Presumably the cows in Louisiana are still giving milk, the crops in the Middle West are not blighted, there has been no sudden onset of divorces, and it is altogether unlikely that turning the clock ahead has had anything to do with the flurry of flying saucers. Indeed, we doubt seriously that anyone in other sectors gives a hoot whether the District is on daylight saving or not. And even some congressional opponents of daylight saving would have to admit, we suspect, that they enjoy the long summer evenings.

This being the case, what valid objection can there be to passage of the McGrath bill, which would make daylight saving a permanent institution in Washington each summer? The measure already has had unanimous approval of the Senate District Committee. It should require little debate, since all the arguments on both sides are still fresh from the temporary sanction in May. The only real criterion in the matter, we think, should be the interest of the people of Washington who, we are convinced, are well satisfied with the benefits of fast time this summer. Here is one chance for Congress to give the District a modern advantage that does not cost money.

Modern Luddite

Mr. James Caesar Petrillo is feeling his oats again. After bowing in unprecedented humility to the Supreme Court decision upholding the Lea Act, he is now busy devising new ways to plague employers and potential employers. It may be necessary, he thinks, for the American Federation of Musicians to counteract unemployment by prohibiting musical broadcasts over radio chains and by refusing to make commercial recordings. It is even possible, he adds, that the AFM may enter the recording business itself. On the basis of his past success Mr. Petrillo, barring legal complications, is just the man to put on the kibosh and make it stick. Congress owes him thanks for his frankness if for nothing else.

It is easy to rail at Petrillo as the personification of an unprincipled labor boss taking out his spite on society. But the case is not so simple. Mr. Petrillo represents in effect the displaced persons of a greatly overstocked profession. He is the modern symbol of resistance to technological change on the part of persons who see their jobs evaporating through greater use of recordings, "canned" broadcasts, movies and juke boxes. It cannot be challenged that these mass media have brought more music—and more good music—to millions of Americans. But as the taste for music has been cultivated, the number of live musicians required to cater to it has greatly diminished.

Mr. Petrillo would answer this dilemma by forcing more widespread employment of musicians through restriction of technological advance. Carried to its extreme, that would mean that no new invention could ever be applied when it meant displacing a worker. Such a practice, which is a form of featherbedding, would soon chill incentive. In Mr. Petrillo's own union is to be found part of the solution. The great majority of AFM members are not full-time musicians. They have come to the realization that there is not enough work to go around for the number of qualified professionals and have adjusted their lives accordingly. They know there is no real security or satisfaction in made work. Mr. Petrillo would earn a great deal more sympathy for the plight of displaced musicians if he sought to ease their transition into other fields instead of merely striving to perpetuate a situation which in reality no longer exists. In this respect, moreover, society has an obligation.

Island Governor

Legislation to permit the people of Puerto Rico to choose their own Government has run almost the full congressional gantlet. It would be a real and great pity if it were to fail of completion before adjournment. The House has already passed a bill providing for election of the Governor. The Senate Public Lands Committee has given its indorsement with the addition, however, of a provision for a coordinator of Federal agencies. This will mean, of course, that, assuming favorable Senate action, the bill must go to conference and then be repassed by both chambers. The two measures are identical in principle and purpose, differing only in the one relatively minor detail. We hope that agreement and final action will be pressed as a gesture of generosity to the people of Puerto Rico before Congress leaves town. It will be a gesture also to the whole world—enhancing America's moral stature and extending in practice the American principle of liberation.

King Taber

In his column in The Post Wednesday, Marquis Childs called attention to the disruption caused in Congress by what may be termed the veto of the purse. Mr. Childs' indignation is well justified by the extent to which the Appropriations Committees have become self-appointed determinants of policy, using their control over funds to thwart measures already approved in substance. The outstanding example of this abuse is the Greek-Turkish aid bill. Understandably both Administration and responsible Republican congressional leaders are wringing their hands over the new hurdle posed by Chairman John Taber of the House Appropriations Committee. Mr. Taber says that the 400 million dollars authorized by both houses after three months of debate is too much, and he is able to block implementation of the bill accordingly.

Though legislation by appropriation is by no means a new practice, the miscarriage has been more flagrant in this Congress than in any of recent date. The record of Mr. Taber's committee is notorious. His negativism, for example, is now blocking the 350-million-dollar European relief bill. His committee made mincemeat of the soil conservation and school lunch programs after contracts had been undertaken. The House committee made a farce of the current rent control bill by denying enforcement funds. It crippled reclamation and power activities of the Interior Department. It blackmailed the Conciliation Service by cutting off the director's salary, and it reduced child labor protection to a joke. Nor is the Senate Appropriations Committee guiltless. In two current instances—the State Department foreign information program and the Civil Aeronautics Administration safety and airport development programs—Senator Ball has led the effort to legislate by forced starvation.

No one can question the duty of Appropriations Committees to scrutinize expenditures. There is a great difference, however, between legitimate inquiry into need and what has been happening. It is unthinkable, for instance, that a little band of capricious men—and capricious is not too strong a term to apply to Mr. Taber's obstructionism—should be permitted to delay and hamstring important tools of our foreign policy. For the appropriations power has been turned into a vehicle of personal aggrandizement. We have witnessed hatchet-wielding, not on grounds of economy, but as an expression of whim and spite. Part of the explanation no doubt lies in the political split between Congress and the Executive. A more strictly enforced party responsibility would cure some of the more obvious inconsistencies in dealing with the national interest and, surely, the times call for it.

Name The Man

One of the serious bottlenecks that the United States has to overcome in its effort to lead the world back to reconstruction is the bottleneck in personnel. President Truman is always complaining that he cannot connect the job with the man for the important offices he has constantly to fill at home and abroad. He says he spends more time trying to persuade Americans to serve the Government than on any other duty. Well, we proffer a suggestion that might save him a lot of trouble. That is to offer appointments in public through his press conferences, instead of allowing secretaries to sound out his selections. In this way a flattering pressure would be put on the choice and, what is in some cases even more important, the nominee's employers. It is hard to say no in public to the President of the United States.

We make this suggestion because some illustrations have recently come to our notice of the lack of efficacy of the present system. There is a case of a person who has ministerial rank and who did an excellent job for our Government in the Middle East. Six months after his return to business, another offer came to him, addressed by the Undersecretary of State, asking him to take another job with ambassadorial rank. He found himself put in the embarrassing position of having to communicate the offer himself to his directors. They advised him to say he could not be spared. Now this particular person felt that he was fitted to carry out the Government's assignment, and that it was his duty to accept it. But in the circumstances he had to return a declination. However, as he pointed out, if he had been named at a press conference, his directors, he felt sure, actually would have urged him to take the post.

It was Mr. Roosevelt's invariable practice in filling war production jobs to send for two or three directors and ask them to release an important employe for war service. He generally won his point. The situation at the present time is equally demanding of American talent, particularly in relation to the working out of the Marshall plan. A presidential initiative on the lines we suggest would relieve Mr. Truman of headaches and at the same time recognize the importance of getting first-class men for the tasks of reconstruction.

Establishing A European Order

It is arresting to contrast the situation in Europe now and after the Napoleonic wars. Europe lay in chaos after Napoleon had been thrown out of Russia. Alexander I could have stayed at home, shut himself off from the world, and sought to repair the domestic ravages of war. But he refused to take the line of least resistance. This half-lunatic, half-genius of a sovereign was convinced that victory would be of no value for Russia without the reestablishment of a European order. And to him belongs the initiative for leading Europe back to pacification and what Secretary Marshall calls a "working economy." Ferrero, the historian, gives the Russian ruler prime credit for saving Europe from suffering the fate of the Roman Empire.

But his successors, members of the Politburo, have different ideas. The veil came off their intentions when Molotov, invited to join in European reconstruction, not only said no, but warned Europe against engaging on the adventure of reviving the old continent. Nobody, we fancy, will take any notice of the published reasons for Russia's refusal. That the great effort is a device, as Molotov sees it, to split Europe and invade the sovereignty of its members is, of course, utterly fantastic. Just the opposite is true. It is solely because Europe saw yawning before it the fate of Rome that the nations are essaying this fundamental attempt to restore a continental system. The prospect alarms the men in the Kremlin. Men who prate the Marxist jingle, "From each according to his ability and to each according to his need," don't want to see it applied among nations, even though interdependence is the insurance of life. They want to see Europe kept on its back, divided and weak, so that it will be easier to tie to the Russian chariot. Out of fear the Europeans have hitherto allowed themselves to be bludgeoned by the Kremlin. Secretary Byrnes in his proposal for a 40-year pact and his famous speech at Stuttgart sought unavailingly to assuage the panic. In his time, so soon after Europe's trial by fire, the Europeans could not exert the effort necessary to shed the new toils in which they were being wound and bound. Time and Secretary Marshall have now shown them a way out.

The dazzling diplomatic initiative of Secretary Marshall was the stroke of the moment which bids fair to rescue Europe. The gathering today will comprise only half of Europe. But eastern Europe will be watching the work with the same eagerness that it betrayed before Russia slammed the door on its participation. It is our guess that the Poles and the Czechs will not quickly forget their public humiliation at the hands of their Russian masters. The Czechs in particular had been seeking to demonstrate their independence of Russian dictation. To be sure, they said, the Communists are in control, but they are Czech Communists, and they are wedded to the parliamentary system. There was no disputing the Czech contention—till (it will be said) now. Accordingly the fact that the Russians have cracked the whip is likely to cause a resentment throughout Czechoslovakia that bodes ill for the tightening and expansion of the satellite system. The way to encourage the Czechs to break away is for the men in Paris to show what can be done when men are seized with the urge of reconstruction in the interests of all. One result of Russia's obstructionism already is plain. By their panicky and egregious demonstration against Czechoslovakia the Russians have destroyed the model, the show-window exhibit, of a freely elected Communist organization of a western country which they hoped to sell to far western Europe.

The Paris conference will not break up into working committees, we hope, before it nails down its unifying purposes in resolution form. The main job, of course, is for the expert committees. Without a doubt the European transport organization, killed by the Russians in U. N.'s European Commission, will be revived. Transport is second only to coal in reviving a working economy in Europe. Transport was the one and only truly international system in Europe, a system mainly dependent on the inland waterways and coastal shipping. Coal used to go from Silesia to Vienna—a distance of some 300 miles overland—down the River Oder, all around Europe, through the Dardanelles and up the Danube. The breakdown of this system is an example of the shattering of those invisible ties binding Europe together that inspired the Marshall initiative.

But something more than mere restoration of a working economy is in the minds of the men who are now assembling in Paris. Long delay has made the problem of recovery so urgent that the pooling of resources and the coordination and allocation of capital expenditures and imports are essential. That may be the thin end of the wedge of political as well as economic integration. "One of the greatest mistakes committed by human indolence," says Ferrero, "is the belief that order is best preserved by keeping it as it stands. It can only be preserved by continually reconstructing it." The facts of our diminished planet plainly show the need for modern reconstruction.

The adventure, in short, may be a turning point in history. The present undertaking is a response to an idea born in desperation as much as to a man, but in the immense work that is about to begin men will be needed who have vision as well as courage.

Polish DPs

Truly democratic people will give the Stratton and McKinnon bills the active support they deserve, for opposition only furthers Soviet aggression.

During my recent tour of European DP camps, I learned that these people wished to emigrate to countries in Europe and to South America but UNRRA sought to coerce them to return to a Soviet-dominated Poland. If permitted to go, some 250,000 to 300,000 Poles might easily be absorbed in Europe and South America, as these countries need them to replace depleted labor ranks and they furthermore want them.

This eagerness for DP's repudiates the misstatement that the United States is asked to bear the whole burden of responsibility for former slave laborers and soldiers. American resources and opportunities would allow for the admission of 400,000 Polish DP's without disrupting our economy, for more than 200,000 are farmers and the balance trained in trades and professions.

The homeless Polish DP's were left exposed, it seems to me, in the path of greedy Communist expansion rather than cherished as our democratic allies. The DP's refuse to submit to Communist regimes; they know that slave labor camps are the fate of those who oppose dictatorial governments.

The speedy enactment of the Stratton and McKinnon bills would legalize the immigration into the United States of some 400,000 Polish displaced persons, including some 20,000 soldiers who fought so valiantly on the side of the Allies and became prisoners of war when Poland was first invaded.

Federal Education Aid

Legislation providing for Federal school aid and a national science foundation is both un-American and unsound. These measures must be pleasing to the Communists and other left-wingers because they represent the fruition of farseeing, subversive scheming conceived many years ago.

As a preliminary to destroying fundamental Americanism the Marxist revolutionaries, working largely through their dupes (some of them in high places), have succeeded in introducing into the American Government the concept that the State should assume responsibility for the general welfare, security and health of its individual citizens.

Then the theory was advanced and enacted into law that under a modern, "liberal" government the lazy, improvident, ignorant and indigent citizens should be supported by the industrious, smart and thrifty.

As a means of implementing the redistribution of wealth and regimenting independent Americans, interest rates have been hammered down, confiscatory taxes have been levied and reckless government spending has weakened the stability of our national economy. As a result the incomes of wealthy, philanthropic individuals and of corporations have been so cut that they no longer can afford the generous contributions which have made possible the splendid development of American educational and scientific institutions which are largely responsible for United States progress.

At the same time these left-wing machinations have so seriously reduced the incomes of these institutions that many of the politically unsophisticated leaders in education and science have abandoned their stanch American independence and self-reliance to consent to charity and control from the Federal Government. Meanwhile, some congressional leaders, who should know better, are advocating these socialistic schemes, presumably as a sop to the voting masses.

Federal aid to education and science under present conditions can scarcely avoid involving bureaucratic control and the infiltration of Marxist doctrines which will destroy the American independence of our educational and scientific institutions and paralyze their progress.

"Pocketed" Crimes

Three very long and loud cheers for your recent expose and follow-up of buried crimes reports by the Washington Police Department.

A couple of years ago we had an experience similar to some of the cases reviewed by your paper. About four months later, I had occasion to require some information from the police report regarding our loss. No report could be found, nor was any embarrassment expressed whatsoever, despite several personal visits by me to the precinct and numerous telephone calls.

I want to express my appreciation for your aggressive and responsible attitude in reporting all news. ROBERT N. HOFFMAN.

"High Handed Tax"

Your editorial of July 8, "High-Handed Tax," certainly hits the nail on the head when you conclude that it is impossible to get a fair income tax on the books for the District; that it should be abolished and something put in its place. However, your suggestion that Senator Cain's bill, to repeal the District income tax law, should be accepted by Congress out of a "decent regard for fair play," and the sales tax instituted, seems to me to be no better solution.

If you are going to talk about "fair play," there is nothing fair about the sales tax. The sales tax is nothing more than a universal excise tax. Its best features are that it is simple to operate; that it would yield large revenue; that its burden is light; and that it affects everyone equally. It's bad features greatly outweigh the good. It does not recognize the principle of ability to pay. It is not progressive. A person making $1500 annually must pay a higher percentage of his income than one making $10,000. In other words, it is a penalty to those least able to pay.

The burden of the sales tax also falls unequally on different industries. If a tax is required on each sale, then a commodity, which in manufacturing requires that raw materials or semifinished products pass through many hands, will have a higher total tax than a commodity, which in its production, passes through few hands. This gives the integrated industry an advantage over the nonintegrated. ROBERT L. GASSER.

Democratic Program For Korea

Early in June, the Allied Joint Commission that had been investigating the situation in Korea published its findings. That preliminary report of the commission gave ample evidence that the United States and Russia are approaching a mutually satisfactory agreement regarding the future of Korea. The Joint Commission intends to consult representatives of the Korean political parties and then to decide the form of the future Korean provisional government.

It must be kept in mind that the answers to Korea's problems are not necessarily exactly the same as the answers to similar problems in other countries. Korea will endeavor to follow the example of the great democratic nations in her struggle for development, but must not just blindly imitate other nations.

The future government of Korea should be a democracy, but it should be a democracy that is led by experts. The leaders of the government must be trained for their jobs. They must be "career men." All but the highest positions, excepting of course elective offices, must be filled by competitive examination.

Korea is divided into 14 provinces that are comparable to the 48 States of the United States. In the institution of a governmental system for Korea, the place to be occupied by the provincial governments must not be overlooked. A balance of power should be sought between the national government and the provincial governments that will insure unity and strength on the one hand, but will provide the means for local development on the other. The national government must not be permitted to succumb to the vices of one-party rule.

Conversely, if the provincial governments are too strong they will overemphasize the wishes of the minority, to the detriment of the country as a whole. In the event that a dispute between the national government and the provincial governments cannot be resolved to their mutual satisfaction, the decision should be provided by a vote of the national legislature.

In the beginning the land should be owned by the state, because the distribution of land at present is extremely unfair. About 80 per cent of the land was owned by Japanese. With the occupation, most of this will be available for distribution by the state. The remaining 20 per cent is owned by large and wealthy landowners, so that none is owned by actual farmers. Farm land should be rented to peasants at the lowest possible rate. Model farms for educational and experimental purposes should be set up. Farming should be industrialized as much as possible. This would have the twofold advantage of benefiting industry as well as agriculture.

Heavy industry and all industry vital to national defense should be owned by the state. Industry as well as capital should be decentralized as much as possible. The cooperative system should be developed in Korea. The state must regulate salaries; the eight-hour day become prevalent.

The cultural problem of Korea is no less important than the political and industrial problems. Four thousand years of civilization were smothered during less than 50 years of Japanese occupation. The ancient Korean culture which was passed down from generation to generation must be revived, but the newest developments—especially scientific developments—must be added to the older standards.

The present low literacy rate must be improved. A campaign of adult education should be inaugurated and free libraries should be established in every town. The Chinese characters which are used traditionally in Korea should be abandoned in favor of the modern Korean alphabet. National technical institutions should be established to bring the Korean people abreast of modern scientific development. The educational philosophy of John Dewey should be taught in order to free the masses from their age-old restrictions and superstitions. Censorship must be avoided and a free press must be established in a strong constitutional foundation.

I have endeavored to present my idea of some of the steps the Korean nation should take in order to achieve its place in the world.

Political Uses Of Glamour

By Malvina Lindsay

Senora Peron's Tour

IN MANY WAYS the European tour of the wife of Argentina's President appears to a watching world a diplomatic extravaganza.

Contrary to Fascist tenets and tradition for women, Senora Eva Duarte de Peron invades Europe on a political and economic mission and is sumptuously welcomed in Fascist Spain, where repeatedly she raises her heavily braceleted arm in the Falange salute.

Decked with jewels and ankle length capes of mink and of white ostrich feathers, this blonde former movie actress, now a feminine symbol of the political right, continues her triumphal tour through poverty stricken, Socialist Europe. Anti-Fascist officials of countries desperately in need of Argentina's grain and meat entertain her publicly.

In a public address she tells Rome's women voters her name has become "a battle cry for women the world over," and adds, "I want to say that women have the same duties as men and therefore should have the same rights."

YET ARGENTINE women are still struggling for national suffrage, and many of them are working underground to regain lost liberties. True, President Peron has offered them the vote by decree, but they have emphatically refused it. They insist their ballot must come by constitutional reform to insure its being permanent, not a privilege held over their heads that might be revoked if they cast the "wrong votes."

Now the question arises: Will Senora Peron be expected to use her influence to make good her high sounding statements about women when she returns home?

Also, it is possible that her tour may have some results not counted on—results other than getting high-priced meat contracts and giving Generalissimo Franco an official pat on the back for his (and Argentina's) "true, distributive democracy." For who can tell what notions Senora Peron is putting in the heads of other women, including those in Fascist Spain, and those in her own country, where she is the first woman to engage openly in high level politics?

In fact, Generalissimo Franco, for all his two-to-three-million-dollar reception to Senora Peron, must have had the uneasy feeling that she was not exactly a little woman to whom he was being gallant for the sake of her husband. Fascist-minded statesmen everywhere have long realized that too much self-assertion by women is risky.

OLIGARCHISTS in Argentina are said to be alarmed by Senora Peron's political enterprise, but in defiance of them she exerts power both with her 50-year-old husband and with the masses—who respond not only to her dramatic declarations about social justice, but to her glamour. This, she realizes, is excellent stock in trade for a woman in public life (unless like Marie Antoinette, she carries it too far), and in Spain and Italy she delighted spectators by appearing in a different costume for every occasion. Even with the mercury at 85 degrees, she didn't let her public down, but wore her full-length mink cape over a red silk dress.

Aiding this legend of luxury was her arrival in an 18-million-dollar airplane, and the spending of $250,000 to prepare her 12-room suite in the Argentine Embassy in Rome. In Spain she was showered with perfumes, jewels, orchids and champagne.

Many are speculating on what will be the next step in Senora Peron's public career when she returns to her duties as Argentina's first lady and to the Buenos Aires office she has opened. She is a young woman (age estimates vary from 27 to 32) and has a future ahead of her—possibly including growth. It might indeed be possible she would become a convert to her own preachings about her sex.

At least her new importance and achievements are likely to give her, and possibly other wives of heads of states, confidence to blaze further trails in public life. Those Argentine oligarchists who opposed her tour abroad may have further cause to regret it.

Terminal Leave Bonds

I would like to congratulate you on your views concerning terminal leave bonds. The early policy of the services in not allowing enlisted men terminal leave was certainly unfair. However, the issuance of bonds, thus providing a small future nestegg seemed to remedy the situation.

Now Congress has me confused, with the Republicans shouting on how much can be saved in interest (and the Democrats saying "aye" for fear of veteran votes) by cashing the terminal leave bonds at the present.

Sure, I can very well use my couple of hundred dollars but I wonder where Congress and many veterans have their true interests. Is it for selfish interests and good records on voting for benefits for veterans, or is it for the good of our country?

Though a poor scholar of economics, I believe inflation could be brought about by such measures as cashing terminal leave bonds and large cuts in taxes.

Czechoslovakia Gets Her Orders

THE CZECHS have the reputation of being the most hard-bitten realists in Europe. They deserve that reputation. But when the going gets tough even realists sometimes allow their hearts the luxury of a hope which their heads tell them is an illusion.

NOVER

Since her liberation in 1944-45, Czechoslovakia's prayerful hope has been to maintain some kind of a balance in her national life between the forces operating on her from the east and the pull she was being subjected to from the west.

It was an extremely difficult tightrope which the Danubian republic found it necessary to walk. Yet until July 9, 1947, the Czechoslovak leaders could congratulate themselves on having done so successfully.

IN FACT, Czechoslovakia has, in more than one particular, been the great international paradox of the postwar world.

By force of strategic necessity and as a result of the bitter memories of Munich, she linked her future and security with that of Russia, whose borders now adjoin hers. Yet she has been the only country in the Soviet bloc in whose internal affairs Russia did not intervene.

Czechoslovakia's program of industrial nationalization has been the most far-reaching in Europe. All industrial establishments employing more than 500 workers, all natural resources, the transportation system, the public utilities, the film industry, all commercial banks and insurance companies, have become state property.

Yet, at the same time, freedom of speech and the press have in large measure survived in Czechoslovakia. Although within the Russian sphere of influence, she has been outside the iron curtain.

Moreover, Czechoslovakia has been the only Russian satellite which has held an election that could really be called free and fair.

In that election the Communists won 114 of the 300 seats in the Constituent National Assembly, having secured the largest percentage of votes cast for any party.

This election led to the elevation of Klement Gottwald, the Communist leader, to the post of Premier. Yet nowhere in Europe have the Communists proved to be more moderate and tractable than in Czechoslovakia.

In its economic relations, Czechoslovakia, even while expanding her ties with Russia and the other nations of the Soviet bloc, sought also to retain and strengthen her links with the countries of the west.

THEN CAME July 9, 1947, and with it proof that Czechoslovakia had been living in a fool's paradise.

She had, for reasons best known to the men in the Kremlin, been allowed to practice the independence she actually did not possess.

Like Finland, but to a much greater degree, Czechoslovakia, up to July 9, was Exhibit A in support of the loudly proclaimed contention that a nation could belong in the Russian camp without losing her independence.

The developing struggle over the Marshall plan proved that this contention was without substance.

Czechoslovakia hailed the American proposal as a beacon light in the dark. She saw in it the means of her own as well as Europe's salvation. So, even after Molotov's brusque refusal of the Anglo-French bid for a common effort to rehabilitate Europe, Czechoslovakia agreed to participate in the Paris conference. She was the only nation in the Soviet camp to do so.

THAT WAS BEFORE Premier Gottwald and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk went to Moscow and were closeted with Joseph Stalin.

When that had happened, the Prague government was forced to the humiliation of withdrawing her acceptance of the Anglo-French invitation. This time Russia made no effort to disguise its iron fist in a velvet glove. The Kremlin's ukase was something which the little Danubian republic could not ignore.

Some time ago Jan Masaryk, son of Czechoslovakia's founder and an American mother, made an address to the Constituent National Assembly at Prague in which he said:

"Our state is neither a curtain nor a bridge, but a link in the democratic chain covering the whole world and keeping this globe together."

That link in the chain has now been broken by Stalin and his cohorts.

The luxury of liberty which they deny their own people they find it impossible to vouchsafe anyone else.

Washington Calling

Implications Of Lewis' Deal

THE AUTHORITATIVE trade journal, Iron Age, says steel prices will advance, on the average, $5 a ton. This is a wallop that may well send all prices up still another notch.

How much of this rise will be due to the new coal contract is not clear. The industrialists who negotiated the coal contract with John L. Lewis want to counteract the impression that it will produce another inflationary spurt in the already strained economy.

That is why they sought a conference with the President's economic advisers. In that conference they gave a number of reasons why they felt compelled to settle with Lewis on terms that seem, on the surface, phenomenally generous.

They pointed out that a strike would have exerted inflationary pressures which would have been felt almost immediately throughout industry. Stocks of coal were low. On the mere threat of a strike the price of spot coal, about one third of the output, went up from $1 to $1.50 a ton.

A settlement meant uninterrupted production and therefore no inflationary shortages. The wage increase in coal may not force coal prices as high as has been predicted. The increase may not be more than 35 to 50 cents a ton.

THE MEN who called at the Executive offices to give their version of the economics of the contract justified it on a long-range basis. From almost every point of view, the miner has been a marginal worker. When his equipment consisted of a pick and shovel, the industry could afford to ignore his marginal status. But today an average of $15,000 per man is invested in equipment. The miner is a skilled worker and his status must be improved. Above all, it is important to keep younger men in the pits, and the best way to do that is to make the individual miner want to stay in mining.

This reasoning made sense to those who heard industry's side of the story. The new contract does give the miner certain breaks he has not had before—gains that workers in other organized fields have had for some time. It assures, for example, an eight-hour day throughout the industry.

When all this is said, however, the economic impact of the coal deal cannot be brushed aside. The President's advisers are following a policy of watchful waiting. Neither they nor anyone else can say with accuracy what the final result will be.

One estimate is that the new contract will cost the consumer approximately 580 million dollars, of which 180 millions would be added onto the bill for steel and steel products, and 400 millions in additional costs for goods and services not directly related to steel production.

It will add to the operating cost of railroads and utilities. Long before the coal contract, the roads were arguing the urgent need for an increase in freight rates. The increase in the cost of coal will give them a new and potent argument. When freight and utility rates begin moving up, the current that is started will make itself felt all the way along the line until it hits the cost of chicken feed and the price of a loaf of bread, which is where it touches the farmer and the city consumer.

WHAT THE industrialists did not talk about in connection with the coal contract was the position of the steel companies. Operating in the present market at nearly full capacity, their profit position is an extremely favorable one, and that is something of an under-statement. A strike would have cut right across the middle of this happy profit picture.

Any further shortage in steel would agitate the touchy question of whether there is sufficient steel capacity in this country. Spokesmen for big steel insist that no more plants are necessary. Walter S. Tower, president of the Iron and Steel Institute, testified before the Senate Small Business Committee that "existing facilities should be more than capable of bringing supply into balance with demand."

But there are those who say that, if we are to have an expanding economy, we must begin at once to expand steel capacity. They want to know, for example, whether there is to be any real competition in steel on the West Coast or whether the familiar domination of the past is to prevail.

These are some of the larger question marks in the deal that Lewis, as boss of the miners, negotiated behind closed doors with the big men of industry.

The Gallup Poll

Truman Still Is Choice Of 71% of Democrats

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 11.—President Truman's popularity among the Nation's voters has dipped slightly in recent weeks, but he still rates high as the choice of Democratic voters for their 1948 candidate.

Today 71 per cent of the Democrats who have made up their mind want him to run for reelection, whole two months ago 79 per cent favored him.

Mr. Truman's popularity with professed Democrats has not shown quite the wide gyrations as the opinion of him held by the population generally, indicating that independent voters have an on-again-off-again feeling about his abilities.

Henry Wallace remains second in Democratic hearts but still lags far behind the man he once worked for as Secretary of Commerce. Twelve per cent of voters in the party interviewed in the current survey feel he should head the ticket contrasted with 9 per cent last April. During this interval Mr. Wallace made a barnstorming lecture tour and he publicly indorsed the Truman stand on the Taft-Hartley labor-management bill.

While some political observers believe that President Truman does not need to worry about the Wallace threat in the nominating convention, the potential drawing power of a third party must be taken into account. Previous Institute polls have shown, that 13 per cent of the voters would support a third party headed by the former Vice President and that such a party would draw much more heavily from the Democratic ranks than the Republican. But a third party to make any impression on the final count would have to get on the ballot in a number of key States which at this writing appears unlikely.

Although it is not entirely correct to classify either General Marshall or General Eisenhower as Democratic politicians, some members of the party persist in wanting them to run next year. General Eisenhower reports to work early in 1948 as president of Columbia University, but might, of course, be open to a drafting movement if a large groundswell of support should develop. Today six out of every 100 Democratic voters hope he will be the candidate, while three put General Marshall as their No. 1 choice.

Democratic Voters with Opinions

	May '46	Dec. '46	Apr. '47	Today
Truman	61%	48%	79%	71%
Wallace	24	24	9	12
Eisenhower	4	8	5	6
Marshall	..	..	1	3
Byrnes	3	10	1	2
Others	8	10	5	6

General Wedemeyer to Study China and Korea for U. S.

By The Associated Press

Lieut. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer, former chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, is going to China and Korea for a six-week survey of conditions there.

A White House announcement yesterday said the wartime American Army commander in China will "make an appraisal of the over-all situation" in the two Far Eastern nations. He will have the rank of Ambassador.

The United States has been faced by diplomatic problems in both countries.

In Korea, a joint Russian-American commission is now trying to thresh out the question of what political groups should be consulted in setting up a provisional government. Korea has been split into Russian and American occupation zones for more than a year.

War Complicates Relations

A civil war between Chiang's Nationalist government and Communist forces has complicated United States relations with China.

Before he was named Secretary of State, Gen. George C. Marshall spent several months there as Ambassador in a vain effort to bring the two sides together.

Last week, the State Department said 130 million dollars worth of rifle cartridges had been sold to Chiang's troops, under an authorization to buy munitions from American manufacturers.

But Secretary Marshall said that did not mean that this country had decided to back the Nationalists all the way in their fight against the Communists.

May Become Ambassador

There has been some talk reported from Shanghai that General Wedemeyer might be named Ambassador to China, succeeding Dr. Leighton Stuart. Wedemeyer has been commanding the Second Army, with headquarters at Fort Meade, Md.

On his inspection trip, the general will act as special representative of President Truman. He will submit a report of his findings to the President on his return.

Accompanying him on the trip will be:

Mark Watson of the Baltimore Sun, public relations adviser; David Jenkins of the Treasury Department, fiscal adviser; Philip Sprouse of the State Department, political adviser; Rear Admiral Carl A. Trexel, engineering adviser, and Melville Walker of the State Department, economic adviser.

Occupation Policy Set

By The Associated Press

The 11-nation Far Eastern Commission yesterday set forth the basic principles which should guide Allied postsurrender policy toward Japan.

American Government officials said the commission's lengthy document, which comes 22 months after United States forces began occupation duty, in effect approves the occupation directive President Truman sent General MacArthur on September 6, 1945.

The 11 nations, including Russia, debated the policy during numerous closed meetings at commission headquarters in Washington.

Allied policy toward Japanese assets outside the home islands was omitted from the document because of the commission's inability to determine whether they should be included among war reparations.

The original American directive called for an inventory of such assets to permit their inclusion in reparations discussions.

Rep. Buck Asks House Probe Draft Evader Serge Rubinstein

By The Associated Press

Representative Buck (R., N. Y.) yesterday introduced legislation calling for the creation of a special five-member House committee to investigate "all the facts" of the case of Serge Rubenstein, New York financier, convicted of draft evasion.

Terming Rubenstein's case "one of the most shocking in the entire history of our country," Buck declared in a House speech:

"While American boys suffered and died, Serge Rubenstein was mulcting millions of dollars from American investors. He utilized those ill-gotten gains to hire highly placed and high-priced lawyers to exempt him from battle by befuddling, delaying and defeating the draft law."

Prior to his present request for the special investigation, Buck introduced two resolutions on June 24 directing the State and Justice departments to turn over to the House Judiciary Committee complete files on all their investigations into Rubenstein's affairs, including "alleged expenditures for the purchase of influence" in Washington.

The information eventually received, Buck said, "was not adequate."

Buck said that Rubenstein, "by his statement—made in the presence of his mother—is a Russian-born bastard," is currently "content" with nine months' imprisonment—"clean, healthy and well-fed—in a tax-supported Federal penitentiary."

"It is true," he continued, "that Serge Rubenstein was given an additional penalty of a $50,000 fine. But that is small change to Rubenstein.

"He knows that his millions will be awaiting him when he steps through the penitentiary doors a few months hence."

Representative Walter (D., Pa.) told the House that, at the request of the Judiciary Committee, he recently visited Rubenstein in prison—unannounced — to determine whether he is living in luxury and receiving an unlimited number of visitors.

Walter said that on the contrary he found the man in a cell block with 40 other prisoners and performing the most menial job in the prison—"he was the gentleman who keeps the gentleman's room clean."

The prison records showed, Walter said, that he has been visited only by his mother and his wife and daughter.

Truman Soon to Issue Another Economic Report to Congress

By Alfred Friendly

Post Reporter

President Truman decided yesterday to render another economic report to the Congress, dealing with industrial and agricultural wages, prices and production.

The decision was announced to reporters by White House Secretary Charles G. Ross. He said the report would go up within the next 10 days.

The report is not demanded by law, Ross emphasized, for in January the President sent to Congress the annual economic message which is required. But, Ross explained, after Mr. Truman and his Cabinet discussed a report yesterday sent to the White House by the Council of Economic Advisers, they felt it would be "a very useful thing to put these findings out for the benefit of Congress and the country."

The Council's report is believed to minimize the effect of the new coal contract on raising prices. But it does contain restatements of the Council's fears, expressed earlier this year, that consumer purchasing power is being reduced by high prices below the level necessary to maintain stable business conditions.

Industry, and many public figures do not share the Council's belief that the wage increase won by John L. Lewis for the coal miners should not cause higher coal and steel prices.

Yesterday, the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., largest commercial producers of soft coal, disclosed that it is making tentative increases in its prices.

A spokesman said the increases would be effective today, the Associated Press reported. A definite price schedule was not announced, but other coal sources reported that price jumps of from 73 to 75 cents a ton were in the making. Strip coal was reportedly going up from 40 to 50 cents a ton.

Turkish Revolt Plot Charged To Opposition

Istanbul, July 11 (AP).—Premier Recep Peker charged, the opposition Democratic party today with trying to kindle a revolt in Turkey at a time when the country's security was threatened by "those who spy on us at the frontier and look for the days of our downfall."

He said the Democrats wanted to seize power by a coup d'etat.

Peker's statement heightened the dispute over domestic policies which had led to recurring reports that his cabinet might collapse. Peker succeeded Sukru Saracoglu as premier in August, 1946.

Last Tuesday Celal Bayar, leader of the Democratic party, called Peker's government one of violence determined to throttle all opposition. Peker, in a reply issued through Ulus, official newspaper of the ruling People's Party, disclosed that he talked with Bayar in the presence of President Ismet Inonu and "let escape my fear of eventual coup d'etate."

"I am convinced that those who speak of pressure from a government of 'terror' do so in order to conceal the grave responsibility of revolt which they wanted to ignite, which they did not succeed in provoking and which weighs on their shoulders," the premier added.

U. S. Surrenders To Soviet, Says German Party

Berlin, July 11 (U.P.).—The Social Democratic Party announced today that it would boycott all parliamentary activity in Berlin city council in protest against an alleged American policy of bowing to the Russians.

The decision followed the acceptance by Brig. Gen. Cornelius Ryan, American representative on the Allied Kommandatura, of the Soviet viewpoint in dismissing Dr. Siegfried Nestriepke, Social Democratic head of the city's education department.

Party Whip Kurt Swolinski said the Social Democratic city councilor hereafter would attend council meetings only once a month, to help expedite the orders of the Kommandatura, and would ignore the weekly sessions.

Indonesians Told to Make Decision Now

Batavia, Java, July 11 (AP).—Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook told the Indonesian republic today that "the time for decision has come" and demanded a new acceptance of all Dutch proposals for the establishment of an interim government for the United States of Indonesia.

"The Netherlands proposals constitute a coherent and indivisible whole," Van Mook said in a radio address. "The republican government has accepted a considerable part, but we have reached the stage where such acceptance must be complete if we wish to establish peace and start work."

Principal issue now is the Dutch insistence upon a joint Dutch-Indonesian gendarmerie to police Java. The Indonesians want maintenance of law and order within the area of the repulic to be the responsibility of Indonesian agencies. President Soekarno in a broadcast today from Jogjakarta reiterated his insistence on that point.

Soekarno said the republic did not reject the idea of cooperation with other federal partners and the Dutch in securing law and order on a federal level, but that republican agencies should handle such matters within the republic.

He offered a personal guarantee that all foreign properties would be restored.

Overdue Subsistence Checks Leave GI Students Here 'Broke'

Some Greater Washington veterans, attending school under the GI bill are broke because they haven't received the Federal subsistence checks they expected June 30.

This was learned yesterday when the Veterans' Administration regional office, admitted the delay was due to the switch from spring to summer sessions and subsequent administrative difficulties in both VA and the Treasury Department.

At least 2000 checks didn't go out until July 8 because Treasury didn't have the funds to cover them and several thousand more still have not gone out, it was said.

Thousands of other checks were mailed, VA spokesman said, but covered only a portion of the monthly pay period.

Dean Mitchell Dreese, director of veterans' education at George Washington University, reported the tieup resulted in "pandemonium" and more complaints have been received in the past two weeks than in the previous six month period.

He said a lot of borrowing has been going on, including loans from the school authorized for such "emergency" purposes, and "some of the veterans haven't been getting too much to eat either."

At Catholic University, Miss Catherine Rich, registrar, reported at least 50 students have complained over non-receipt of their checks.

Paul Banning, chief of the Treasury's disbursing division, said the agency "made payments until our balance on July 2 amounted to only $12 but after that we couldn't make any more payments."

Processing continued, he said, with the "understanding checks could not be released until Congress appropriated funds, which it did on July 8.

The partial payments occurred when veterans were removed from subsistence rolls pending reenrollment for the summer semester, VA officials explained.

'Radioactive' Calves Look and Act Normal

Oak Ridge, Tenn., July 11 (AP).—Eight calves, born about a month ago to cows from the herd brought here from Los Alamos, N. Mex., after the explosion of the first atomic bomb, all appear and act normal, Dr. A. C. Kile, area veterinarian, reported today.

Dr. Kile said the cows still have gray hair along their sides and backs as a result of being near the explosion. The eight were sired by a bull which also was in the vicinity of the bomb explosion.

Red Union Paper Asks Soviet 'Housecleaning'

Moscow, July 11 (AP).—The Soviet trade union newspaper Trud devoted a lead editorial and a full page today to criticism of certain government offices and ministers in Moscow for inefficiency, rudeness to visitors, delay in carrying out decisions and lack of office discipline.

Trud, one of the most authoritative of Soviet newspapers, called upon the government offices to clean house and end petty bureaucracy.

Publisher Hits Proposal to Hike Minimum Wage

By The Associated Press

Ed M. Anderson, Brevard, N. C., newspaper publisher and legislative chairman of the National Editorial Association, said yesterday a proposed 60-cent minimum wage will drive many small daily and weekly newspapers out of business.

The total of such papers has already been reduced from 16,000 in 1910 to 8000 now, Anderson told a House Labor Subcommittee.

The subcommittee is considering legislation to boost the present 40-cent minimum wage required for workers whose products move in interstate commerce.

Floyd B. Quigg of Alexandria, Va., editor of a lumber industry journal, told the subcommittee that the lumber industry opposes any kind of "Government wage-fixing, minimum or otherwise."

FBI Annuity Signed

President Truman signed legislation yesterday to provide annuities for FBI agents with at least 20 years service, and who are 50 or older.

Rationed Bread, Less Meat Proposed for Hungry Nations

Paris, July 11 (U.P.).—Rationed bread, less meat and strict control of food production and distribution were the slim fare proposed tonight for a hungry world by the Emergency International Cereals Conference.

The four-day conference will end tomorrow when a plenary session approves a nonbinding program, drafted by three special committees, to help the 38 participating nations increase food stocks in the coming year.

The six-point program suggests that:

1. Grain-supplying countries, mainly the United States and Canada, do their utmost to make the maximum amount of bread grain available for export—if possible, 32 million tons.

2. Importing countries, which asked for 40 million tons of grain, set up strict bread rationing.

3. Importing countries scrape farm grain sheds clean by serious collection programs.

4. Importing countries adjust agricultural price programs to make grain sales relatively more profitable than meat sales.

5. Importing countries slow down the rate of livestock rehabilitation.

6. Importing countries establish strict economic policing to eliminate black marketeering in grains and meat.

The recommendations, by and large, were a synthesis of British and American viewpoints, with slight modifications supplied by other nations.

'60 Million Jobs' Dream Now Reality, Census Bureau Finds

For the first time in American history, "Sixty Million Jobs" has become a reality. The Census Bureau reported yesterday that employment in June was 60,055,000.

This was a jump of almost two million job-holders from May. It is 3,700,000 more than a year ago. The sharp increase from May and June was occasioned principally by the usual upswing of farm work during the summer. But in addition, there was a 310,000 job gain in nonfarm activities.

But although employment increased, so also did unemployment, rising from 1,955,000 in May to 2,555,000 in June. But this was "technical," ascribed to an influx of students into the ranks of job-seekers, as the summer vacation began.

The more than seasonal increase in farm employment, plus the jump in nonagricultural work, were seen by some economists as setting to rest all fears of a recession this summer or fall.

English Justice Accepts 'Advice,' Trims Sentence

Havant, England, July 11 (U.P.).—Judge Sir Dymoke White said: "You will go to prison for three months."

In the back of the courtroom, Mrs. Reginald Bessant jumped up and cried: "Good God! But that's a bit stiff—his last conviction was 20 years ago."

Sir Dymoke looked sternly down his nose, hemmed and spoke to his colleague on the bench.

"Yes, I see," he said. "I thought I heard 1945, not 1925, for his last conviction."

He then rescinded his first sentence and fined Reginald Bessant $8 for stealing several buckets of coal.

Moscow Trade Talks 'Going Well,' British Declare

London, July 11 (AP).—The Anglo-Russian trade talks in Moscow still are "going well" and the next few days should show whether agreement is possible, the British Foreign Office reported today.

Harold Wilson, secretary for overseas trade and head of the British delegation in Moscow, has made a "final offer" to the Soviets on the Russian request for readjustment of terms of repayment of a 1941 credit, the Foreign Office said.

The offer was not made public, but it goes a long way toward meeting the Soviet request and if it is not accepted, Wilson probably will return to London next week, a spokesman added.

Buying on Installment Plan Liberalized by Senate Group

By The Associated Press

Legislation extending controls on consumer installment buying through December 31 but requiring more liberal credit terms was approved 7 to 4 yesterday by the Senate Banking Committee.

The House Banking Committee has voted to eliminate such controls, currently in effect under a presidential executive order.

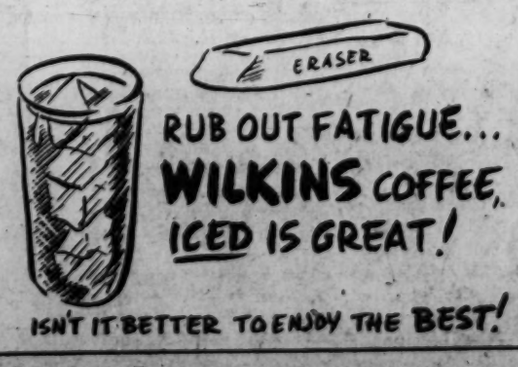
The resolution approved by the Senate committee would prohibit the Federal Reserve Board from fixing less than a 24-month period for paying for consumer goods on credit.

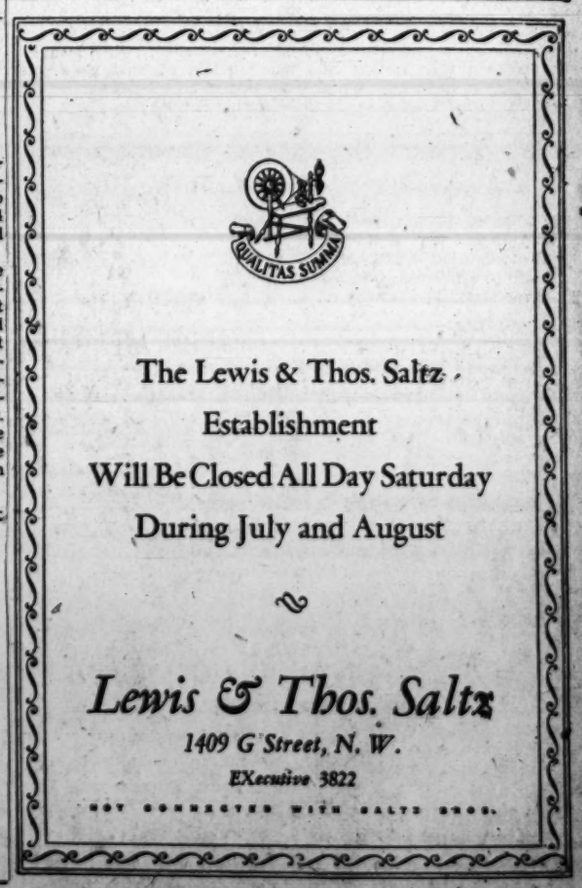
All such goods now covered by the board's regulation "W" must be paid for in at least 15 months.

A committee official told newsmen that under the proposed extension of controls it would be up to the board to decide whether 24 months or some longer period would be the maximum.

The resolution also prohibits the board from requiring a down payment of more than 20 per cent. At present 20 per cent is required for furniture, but a down payment of one third is required on installment buying of automobiles, refrigerators, stoves, washing machines and other consumer items.

Marriner Eccles, chairman of the board, had urged the committee to extend credit controls through July 31, 1948.





One on the Aisle—

Hemingway--Decoded

But His 'Affair' Survives Editing

By Richard L. Coe

ALTHOUGH IT FALLS to pieces at the end, "The Macomber Affair," at the Palace, is a pretty engrossing, exciting film.

The reason it falls to pieces probably is Hollywood's Production Code and its own belief in the contented ending. It has been skillfully adapted from Ernest Hemingway's short story, "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber" and screen writers Casey Robinson and Seymour Bennett are to be congratulated on maintaining much of the original's bite.

But the ending gave them trouble, as it will you. Because a woman kills her husband, our Code insists that she pay The Price. Robinson and Bennett still manage to suggest the possibility she may go scott free. But the point of the Hemingway original (which we've just reread) is that she undeniably avoided paying for her husband's life with her own.

The story centers on three people. Francis Macomber, a wealthy American, is taking his wife on an African safari. Their 11 years of marriage haven't been all bliss. The man at heart is a coward, almost a child, not yet a man. But he does know that his wealth will always tie his wife to him.

"THE MACOMBER AFFAIR." United Artists release produced by Benedict Bogeaus and Casey Robinson. Directed by Zoltan Korda. Screenplay by Robinson and Seymour Bennett from a short story, "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," by Ernest Hemingway. At the Palace Theater.

THE CAST

Robert Wilson ..... Gregory Peck
Margaret Macomber .... Joan Bennett
Francis Macomber .... Robert Preston
Captain Smollet ..... Reginald Denny
Aimes ..... Jean Gillie

The wife despises her husband because he has never been strong enough to master her. A passionate beauty, she is mildly attracted to their guide, who has the quality her husband lacks.

Wilson, the guide, is used to these rich folk who come down to Kenya and hire him to take them game shooting. He dosn't much care what they do. But he does demand a high code of sportsmanship. Once an animal is wounded he must be hunted down and finished off, no matter how dangerous the game.

When the husband runs away from an injured lion, he's disgusted with him, but the next day (after the wife has spent several hours with him while her husband was sleeping) he revises his opinion of the man. Francis Macomber becomes a man and faces buffaloes the way a sportsman should.

No Shadow of Doubt

But Francis Macomber's life as a man is fated to be a short, happy one. He has proved his courage to his wife and now she fears him. When a wounded bull rushes Wilson and Macomber, the two men stand their ground and finish him. But not before the wife, by what could be an accident, takes aim at the bull but kills her husband.

Mrs. Macomber is quite in the clear, Wilson assures her. The gunbearers and photographs will attest to that. But Wilson knows what must have gone through her mind at the chance she had to rid herself of a man she finally had come to fear.

The film goes beyond this. It tells us that Wilson had admitted his love for Mrs. Macomber to her husband. And it suggests at the fade-out that the woman may tell her true story to the jury and that, at all events, Love Will Find a Way.

This, of course, is sheer nonsense. Up to the time he said he loved her, Wilson had behaved in the take-it-or-leave-it manner of a man who was used to wealthy tramps. For him, there must have been many previous Mrs. Macombers. He had grown to respect her husband and to despise her.

Triangle Well Acted

For all that, "The Macomber Affair" is seven eighths convincing. Much of its dialogue is direct from the Hemingway prose, easy, natural and biting. Background shots of the film were made in Kenya. They're so realistic you can practically smell that odor peculiar to Africa.

The casting is fine, too, with Gregory Peck as Wilson and Robert Preston as Macomber. From Hemingway's description of the men you might have thought the casting would have been reversed, but both give fine performances, particularly Preston, whose role is more demanding.

Joan Bennett is her striking, surly self as the wife, though Hemingway's point that she is no longer beautiful enough to risk deserting her rich husband does not exist. The natives, by the way, are unusually convincing.

Despite its final flaw of imposing Hollywood's passion for A Love Story on two people whose habits of living scoffed at such stuff, it's a welcome, adult film with tip-top dialogue.

Schnozzle Mortified, But He Saved Money

New York.—Jimmy Durante stopped to have his shoes shined at a street stand in Hollywood. Passers-by who recognized him shouted greetings. "You must be a big man," said the shoeshine boy . . . "You don't know me?" asked Durante . . . "I do, I do," said the shoe-shine boy, "but I just can't think of your name." . . . "If you can think of my name before you're finished shining my shoes, said Durante, "I'll give you $2." . . . Passers-by continued to greet Durante, but none by name. When Durante finally stepped down the shoeshine boy confessed: "I ought to know you, mister, because you're a big man. But you see, I don't live around here. I'm from Santa Monica."

"Frankly, no," said the newspaper publisher . . . "That's the way it is with my paper, too," said the lady . . . "What's your paper?" asked Connelly . . . "The Binghamton News," said the lady . . . Metro Plans to Use Olympics As Set for Esther's Picture

Hollywood.—Esther Williams already is set for the Olympic games next year in London, where Metro plans to get background shots for a big Technicolor musical starring Esther, titled "Olympic Queen." It's Joe Pasternak's idea. But I'm wondering if Esther will be eligible for the Olympics. I should think that all the pictures she's done would take her out of the amateur class. Ricardo Montalban will costar with her in the film . . . I hear that Olivia De Havilland has been subpenaed to appear before Congress in September for the probe on un-American activities. At one time Olivia was persuaded to join some organizations with pink tinges, but she resigned ages ago . . . June, who was in Chicago for personal appearances, hopes to get an annulment of the marriage—not a divorce—upon her return here.

Date to Remember

The other day David Niven phoned "This is purely a social call. I'm off to London. Will you dine with me November 31?" I accepted the invitation. Two minutes later he called again. "O, gosh," said he, "I forgot that November has only 30 days. Let's make our date for December 1." The following day he telephoned he couldn't get out of town because of retakes on "The Bishop's Wife." Now he doesn't know when he'll be able to sail for England. But our dinner date still stands.

But when the prospective customer learned the dimensions of Kurt's swimming pool, the deal was off. He wanted more water on the property. That's what I called letting $45,000 go down the drain. . . Kirk Douglas tells me that his first stage role was that of an off-stage echo in a Katharine Cornell play.

Corn Crop Gloom Sends Prices Aloft

Touches Off Buying Spree in Nation's Grain Markets

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Thursday's Government Crop Report, predicting a 600 million bushels drop in this year's corn crop compared with a year ago, set off a wild buying spree in the Nation's grain markets yesterday.

Corn shot up to a new all-time high for the tenth time in four weeks on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At one time corn was up $2.21 a bushel, almost 7½ cents above Thursday's close. The previous high was $2.17¼ set last Monday.

Wheat followed suit, jumping early the full 10 cents a bushel allowed in one day to $2.39¾.

Farm and livestock experts said the reduced supply of corn, the Nation's greatest grain crop, and the basic feed for dairy, poultry and meat products, may cut the supply of meat, with resultant higher prices.

The weekly average price of slaughter steers this week reached a new all-time high of $26.48 a hundred pounds, and top-grade steers sold at above $30, against an all-time high last January of $31.

Corn buyers paid little attention to comment from the Agriculture Department that corn would be virtually removed from the list of commodities to be exported this year.

At the same time, livestock markets ignored the possibility that exports of meat this year will be cut down to practically nothing.

The price of cattle has risen for ten weeks, from a starting point of $22.90. Declines in meat supplies will eventually be reflected in retail prices, experts say, although the most serious effects will be noted in six to eight months.

High corn prices will induce many farmers to send lighter animals to market, and swine experts fear it will cause a reduction in the fall pig crop.

At the close yesterday, both corn and wheat sold off as the result of profit-taking. Corn closed at $2.17½, up four cents from the day before.

Five-Year Plan

Sugar Quota Bill Passed By House

Opposition to the sugar quota bill in the House collapsed yesterday, as proponents pushed through the measure fixing allocations for the next five years.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure has already been indorsed by Senators from 33 sugar States.

The measure directs that the Secretary of Agriculture shall administer quotas for the benefit alike of grower, processor and consumer.

It provides for:

1. Incentive payments to sugar beet and cane growers.
2. The Secretary of Agriculture to determine a "fair and reasonable price" for the grower.
3. The Secretary to determine each year the minimum wages to be paid to sugar agricultural workers, mainly migrant laborers.

The following quotas would be assigned:

Domestic beet, 1,800,000 tons; domestic cane, 500,000; Hawaii, 1,052,000; Puerto Rica, 910,000 and the Virgin Islands, 6000.

Cuba would be allocated about 28.6 per cent of United States consumption, plus 95 per cent of the sugar the Philippines are unable to supply of their 952,000-ton quota.

House Group Approves Bill For Carriers

By The Associated Press

The House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday approved the Bulwinkle bill to exempt railroads and other carriers from antitrust action in making rate and service agreements, when the agreements are approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The measure now goes to the House floor.

The Senate passed a similar bill June 18 by a vote of 60 to 27. Senate Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky, then voiced hope President Truman would veto it as "vicious legislation."

Two Government agencies clashed on the bill.

The Justice Department, in a statement filed with the House committee, contended it would encourage monopoly. The Interstate Commerce Commission argued that the legislation is necessary to prevent chaos in the transportation industry.

Representative Bulwinkle (D., N. C.) is author of the bill. Sponsors contend it merely sanctions procedures of rate making that have been operative for many years but recently have been challenged by the Justice Department in antitrust actions.

The House committee wrote in an amendment stipulating that the files of rate bureaus and conference committees, set up by carriers for rate making, shall be subject to inspection by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC, under the amendment, also could require certain files to be kept by the bureaus and conferences.

Wage Hikes Send Personal Incomes To Record High

Increased wage and salary payments boosted personal incomes during May to a new record high equivalent to an annual rate of 178 billion dollars, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

Expansion of factory payrolls as a result of recently negotiated wage hikes—not including this week's coal miners' contract—were cited as the principal factor in the May rise.

The department observed that average weekly wages in manufacturing industries increased almost 3 per cent from April to May. The report covered, besides wages and salaries, the net income of business and farm owners, dividends and interest, net rents of landlords, relief and other types of individual income.

French Union Puts Off Strike to July 15

Paris, July 11 (U.P.).—Civil service workers, on orders from the giant French Communist-dominated labor union CGT, today postponed their strike until July 15 so the nation's celebration of Bastille Day—independence day—on July 14 will not be marred.

The decision was taken after the government offered a compromise wage increase which sent the state employes' strike committee into a 2 p.m. conference with officials of the General Confederation of Labor. There was a possibility the strike may be called off altogether.

Christenberry Picked for U. S. Judge in La.

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday nominated Herbert W. Christenberry, one-time political associate of the late Huey P. Long, to be Federal judge for the Eastern District of Louisiana.

Christenberry

When Christenberry was nominated in 1942 as Federal district attorney, he was bitterly opposed by some leading Louisiana citizens, including Representative James Domengeaux.

His service as district attorney however, appears to be regarded with favor by both the regular Louisiana machine and his former independent opponents.

Domengeaux, close friend and political associate of New Orleans' crusading mayor, DeLesseps Morrison, said last night he had heard no criticism of Christenberry's service as district attorney, and did not contemplate opposing this appointment.

Morrison, reached by telephone at New Orleans, said that although he was in the opposite political camp, he was "very happy" to learn of the nomination. Christenberry, Morrisin declared, had given "creditable service" as District Attorney.

The 49-year-old New Orleans attorney was one of three candidates suggested to the White House. Suc suggestions would normally be made by the two Louisiana Senators, Allen J. Ellender and John H. Overton, both Democrats.

The other two candidates were aonther New Orleans attorney, and a member of the Louisiana State Supreme Court.

Christenberry is the brother of Earle J. Christenberry, former secretary of the late Kingfish of Louisiana politics.

He was nominated to succeed the late Judge Adrian J. Caillouet.

Five Va. Soldiers Identified Among Philippines Dead

Richmond, Va., July 11 (AP).—Identification of five Virginia soldiers who died in the Philippine Islands as Japanese prisoners of war and previously were listed as unknowns, was announced today by Col. John H. Featherston, executive of the Virginia Military District.

They were Pvt. Oscar J. Caldwell, Richmond; Tech. Sergt. Tarcisio B. Machado, Newport News; Pvt. Warren Meyer, Lynchburg; Master Sergt. Charles E. Powers, Nichelsville, and Master Sergt. John O. Streightif, Fort Belvoir.

The Virginians and 199 other American soldiers were among a group of 1600 prisoners buried in the Camp O'Donnell prisoner of war cemetery on Luzon.

Romania Latest to Ask Admission to U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., July 11 (U.P.). Romania joined the list of countries seeking admission to the United Nations today.

Vlad Mardarescu, acting Minister to the United States, submitted the application, joining two other former enemies of the Allies—Italy and Hungary—and Austria. The Security Council must report on applications to the General Assembly by August 10.

Reds Rescue Filipinos

Tokyo, July 11 (AP).—Russians have rescued the 35-man crew of the stranded Philippines Freighter Dona Trinidad and have taken them to Otomari, on Russian Sakhalin, a Japanese salvage tug radioed today to U. S. Navy headquarters here.

The 3931-ton ship went aground June 25 on Nijogan Rock, in the strait between Sakhalin and Hokkaido.

Truman Gets Export-Import Control Bill

By the United Press

Congress yesterday sent to the White House a compromise bill to extend export-import controls over oil and other scarce commodities until March 1, 1948.

The measure, worked out by Senate-House conferees, was accepted by both Senate and House. It extends export controls on 397 items, including petroleum and petroleum products, industrial chemicals, fertilizers, fats and oils, meats, coal and steel mill products.

In addition, it authorizes export priorities on materials or products which the Secretary of State certifies must be shipped abroad to carry out American foreign policy. This provision is aimed at preventing bottlenecks in the foreign aid program.

It also continues until next March 1:

Import controls on fats and oils, nitrogenous fertilizer materials, rice and rice products.

Allocation controls in this country on tin and antimony and on quinine products stockpiled by the Government.

Freight car and other rail facility controls exercised by the Office of Defense Transportation.

Newburyport Plan Sponsors Give Up, Express Regret

Newburyport, Mass., July 11 (AP). The demise of the Northeast Essex Development Council, sponsors of the widely publicized "Newburyport Plan" to reduce retail prices, was announced "with regret" today by Thomas E. Littlefield, council president.

Littlefield said that the decision to disband the organization which brought national publicity to this old seacoast city, followed a membership drive which he described as "a dismal failure."

Executive Secretary Norman J. Randall, who led the group's campaign to cut prices, said that he was "amazed that retailers and businessmen of th lower Merrimac Valley wouldn't support an organization which has done so much to develop commercial and recreational business of the region.

Eastern Church Drafts Plan of Improvements

Eastern Presbyterian Church, 8th st. and Maryland ave. ne., soon will launch a $20,000 reconstruction and renovation project.

The Rev. William Nesbit Vincent, pastor and former Navy chaplain, said last night that the Washington City Presbytery had approved the project and also a loan to partly cover the cost of the job. The congregation will finance some of the cost. Ward Beall, chairman of the church's board of trustees, presented the project and loan request to the Presbytery.

The list of improvements scheduled to be made include the erection of a new chancel and rheredos, with new pulpit and lectern, all in light oak; new lights and ceiling; enlargement of the kitchen and several Sunday School rooms, and repairs for Sunday School rooms.

Mr. Vincent has expressed the hope that the project will get underway by early next fall.

Dedication Rites Set for Church Mission

The River Terrace Church will dedicate its first permanent edifice at outdoor rites July 17 at 6:45 p. m. at Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne.

The church is a mission functioning under the Right Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese. The Rev. Milton Al Cookson is vicar.

According to Lawrence Choate, who helped start the congregation, the chapel was formerly a building used by the Red Cross for blood donors' service. It stood behind the Acacia Building near Capitol Plaza. When the Red Cross sold the building to Acacia for one dollar at the war's end, William Montgomery, the Acacia president, donated it to the River Terrace Church. He also financed the transportation of the building to the River Terrace site and made a personal contribution of $200 toward the church.

Jack Cory, whose band is appearing at Glen Echo Amusement Park and whose children attend River Terrace Church, will bring some of his musicians to the dedication service and will lead the hymn-singing.

Tickets are available at the Fairway, 13th and G sts. nw., and at Griffith Stadium

With Carols

Christmas (In July) to Be Observed

It may be a hot day tomorrow, but the Calvary Baptist flock will be singing Christmas carols in the church at 8th and H sts. nw.

The occasion will be the annual "Christmas-in-July" service, with the collection going toward furnishing a room in the new George Washington Hospital in memory of Dr. William Allen Wilbur.

Dr. Wilbur, who died January 26, 1945, was for 40 years a dean at George Washington University, and a member of Calvary Church. In previous years, the proceeds from the Christmas-in-July services were used to buy gifts for shipment in August to reach distant mission posts by Christmas. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Church, will conduct tomorrow's service.

Of Personal Interest

Greenbelt Priest Will Be Feted; Fr. Jacobs Is Named Provincial

The Very Rev. Herome Jacobs, S.D.S., superior and rector of the Divine Saviour Seminary, Lanham, Md., since 1942, has been elected provincial of the American Province of the Society of the Divine Saviour.

Selection of Father Jacobs was made by the Most Rev. Francis Emmenegger, S.D.S., newly elected superior general of the society, and his council, at the Salvatorian motherhouse in Rome.

Father Jacobs studied philosophy and theology at Catholic University, where he was ordained in 1935. He was master of discipline at the Salvatorian Seminary at Catholic University until he was assigned to the Lanham post.

A reception honoring the Rev. Victor J. Dowgiallo, new pastor of the Greenbelt Catholic Church, will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Greenbelt Elementary School Auditorium. Guy R. Moore of 7-H Crescent rd., Greenbelt, is in charge of arrangements.

Church Breakfast To Be Held Sunday

A corporate communion and breakfast for men of King George's Episcopal Parish, Oxon Hill, Md., will be held tomorrow.

The communion will be celebrated at 7:30 a. m. at St. Barnabas' Church, Oxon Hill, followed by a breakfast at the Williamsburg Restaurant.

The King George Parish also includes St. John's Church, Broad Creek, below Oxon Hill on the road to Indian Head, Md. The Rev. Robert F. Henry, rector of the parish, will celebrate the communion and preside at the breakfast.

Arlington Church Closes Its Charter Membership List

The charter membership list of the Memorial Baptist Church of Arlington has been closed, the Rev. James W. Farmer, pastor, announced last night. The church, organized April 28, 1947, now has 109 members.

Andrew Wallen of 4652 North 23d rd., Arlington, has been elected church treasurer, replacing Mrs. Marvin J. Broyhill, temporary treasurer. The congregation will sponsor a family picnic Tuesday from 4 p. m. to 9 p. m. in Lubber Run Park, near Arlington.

The congregation meets Sundays at 11 a. m. in the Glebe Theater, Lee hwy, and North Glebe rd. Sunday School begins there at 9:45 a. m., with Joel L. Baskin of 4201 25th st. North, Arlington, as acting superintendent.

Work to Start Soon on New Md. Building

St. John's Episcopal Church, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, has completed arrangements for construction of its new church building at Wisconsin ave. and Bradley lane.

Richard H. Akers, senior warden, and Charles G. Embrey, chairman of the construction committee, announced this week that work will begin without delay by the Parkhill Construction Co., general contractors.

The Rev. William F. Creighton, former Navy chaplain and son of the Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, has been rector of the parish since early 1946.

The new brick church, facing Wisconsin ave., will be of Southern Colonial architecture. External features will include a tower on the south side, a Colonial front entrance, and high, multipaned arched windows.

The spacious nave, with graceful tapered columns on either side, and the traditional gallery, will comfortably seat 500 persons. The plans and specifications, prepared by Faulkner, Kingsbury & Stenhouse, architects, provide for radiant heating, modern acoustical treatment and divided organ chambers.

The main unit is scheduled for completion in about nine months. It will include the church proper, a chapel to be used temporarily for parish offices, and a large finished basement for Sunday school classes, meetings and dinners, kitchen and heating plant. The existing church, on the same grounds, will be available for continuous use at least until completion of the new building, so that services in the present structure will be uninterrupted. Breaking of ground for the new structure will be marked by a simple ceremony in the near future.

The rector and vestry of the parish have expressed the desire and intention that the projected new church quarters, in addition to providing a fitting place for worship, will be available to the fullest possible extent for worth-while community activities, especially for young people.

After completion of the main unit, future building plans call for completion of the bell tower and construction of a second unit containing permanent parish offices, a large auditorium, additional church school facilities, guild room, library and choir robing room and rehearsal quarters.

'Heeding Call' Is Topic

The Rev. Hubert S. Beckwith will speak at 11 a.m. tomorow at First Congregational Church, 10th and G. sts. nw., on "Heeding the Call."

Head of Lincoln Park Service Is in 36th Year at Job at 77

"Being 77 years old is no reason for waiting around for the undertaker," says John L. Bateman, now serving his thirty-sixth straight year as chairman of the Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon services.

"Early to bed and early to rise and not taking any unnecessary chances" is Bateman's recipe for longevity, and he finds that religious work keeps him happy and contented.

He retired in 1940 as Government auditor, and is now deskman on the "Sky-Beach" of the Central YMCA, 1736 G st., a job that keeps him "just busy enough" and in close touch with "Y" activities.

"God has been god to me," says Bateman, "and I hope to live to be a hundred."

Frequently during the day, Bateman slips into the office of Dr. Page McK. Etchison, the "Y" religious work secretary and president of the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association. Bateman has been interested in these groups for years.

Bateman has been active since 1910 at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., one of the Northeast and Southeast churches that sponsor the Lincoln Park services in cooperation with the YMCA. He has been board member and music committee chairman of the church and is treasurer and past president of the Berean Men's Bible Class. He and his wife live at 806 Maryland ave. ne. Born in Martinsburg, W. Va., he was for 19 years secretary of the West Virginia Society here. For 20 years he was song leader of the adult department of the Bible School of Ninth Street Christian Church.

The summer services in Lincoln Park, 12th and East Capitol sts., were started in 1907. Bateman became interested in the project when he came here in 1910. The Rev. William N. Vincent, pastor of Eastern Presbyterian Church, will address services tomorrow at 4 p. m. in the park. Mrs. Margaret R. Moffat is organist.

PROJECT NEEDS VOLUNTEERS

Washington headquarters for the Church World Service Center at New Windsor, Md., have been established at Epiphany Parish Hall, 1317 G st. nw. Volunteers are needed to answer the phone for a day or half-day. The Epiphany Center is not a collection depot for food and clothing, but information is available there (National 4604) about the church relief depots scattered throughout the city.

"We have brought 6000 pounds of relief goods up from Washington last week on our truck, mostly clothing, bedding and shoes," says Graham R. Hodges, an official of the Church World Service Center at New Windsor, Md.

"We also need volunteers at the Windsor Center to help process the flood of materials," he declared. We prefer individuals who can stay as long as a week and would thereby become quite efficient before their departure. We can provide room and board. Anyone wishing clothing bags in which to send material to New Windsor, and eventually to Europe, may have them by writing to New Windsor, said Hodges. About 15,000 such bags have already been circulated, he stated.

BAPTISTS HONORED

Five Washington Baptists have been named to the Northern Baptist Convention's public relations committee, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, convention president. They are W. W. Everett, chairman; Dr. M. Chandler Stith, executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention, committee secretary, and Drs. Clarence W. Cranford, Edward B. Willingham and Edward H. Pruden.

RE: CHAPLAIN HIXON

The Rev. George S. Hixon, formerly pastor of the Mount Rainier First Baptist Church, is being released from the Army Chaplain Corps and plans to study at the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill.

According to a letter received by this department, the Rev. Mr. Hixon and his wife had made arrangements to stay in Japan for another year. But they had to change their plans and sailed for America last week. Mr. Hixon will be assistant librarian at the Theological Seminary. He once worked at the Congressional Library here.

REV. BEATTY HONORED

Member of Georgetown Lutheran Church, Wisconsin ave. and Volta pl. nw., this week honored the Rev. Harold Beatty's twentieth anniversary as pastor.

Master of ceremonies for the occasion was Dr. Gould J. Wickey, pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church 30 years ago, now executive secretary of the Lutheran Board of Education and a member of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle. Mr. and Mrs. Beatty were given a purse on behalf of the congregation.

Mormon Youth Program Aids Personality

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Development of a well-rounded personality is the aim of the Mormon youth program—one of the oldest such endeavors in America.

The social, recreational, religious and cultural program at the Washington Mormon Chapel here encourages everyone to participate—from the Beehive Girls, a 12-14-year-old group—to the young adult special interest groups.

Throughout the Mormon faith—officially known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints—Tuesday nights are set aside for the Young Men's and Young Women's Mutual Improvement Associations. Both these national organizations began about 70 years ago with meetings at the Lion House, Brigham Young's home in Salt Lake City.

Summer months excepted, the Tuesday programs at the Washington Mormon Chapel, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., open with general assembly. This is folowed by classes on drama, speech, dancing, music and special interest subjects. In addition to the Beehive Girls, there are the Gleaners' Club, the M-Men, a young men's organization; the Senior Scouts, the Junior Girls and other groups.

This reporter visited the Washington Chapel on a recent Hawaiian-keynoted "Talent Night," and found that even a thunderstorm couldn't keep the crowd away.

Mrs. Pualani Avon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Maussman, prominent in Mormon church work in Hawaii, presented interpretative native dances. Ralph Roberts, a Department of Agriculture official who once lived in Hawaii, described the Mormon Church's work there and recited several of Don Blanding's poems about the islands. Edgar Fernely sang, following group singing led by Mrs. Jack Butler. Mrs. Virginia James was chairman of the program, which ended with a dance in the chapel gymnasium.

Superintendent of the Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association of the Washington Ward is Carl H. Dorny, chief of the division of budget and finance, Soil Conservation Service, Department of Agriculture. Mrs. Marcia C. Steele heads the Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association of the Washington Ward.

Both Mrs. Steele and Dorny are members of the Chevy Chase Ward, which is meeting with the Washington Ward on Tuesdays during the summer. The Washington Mormon Stake, or diocese, is divided up into wards, such as Washington, Chevy Chase and Arlington, among others.

Accent on Youth

Czechoslovaks Hope to Link East and West at Conference

Czechoslovakian church youth hope to make their contribution at the World Conference of Christian Youth in Oslo late in July by helping to serve as a "bridge between the East and the West."

Oslo delegates told Mr. C. W. Li, Chinese staff member of the World's Committee of the YMCA, that they "could see both sides," and that they "tried to form objective opinions on this crucial matter."

Upon his return last week from Prague, Mr. Li reported that the youth conference preparatory to Oslo in which he took part was the first ecumenical youth gathering undertaken by the different Christian bodies in Czechoslovakia. Eighty delegates from the YMCA, YWCA, Student Christian Movement, Evangelical Church of the Czech Brethren, Czechoslovak Church and other denominations, were present.

Live discussion on the 10 Oslo questions revealed genuine concern on problems growing out of the Oslo question on "Who decides what is good and evil." After their experiences, in which lying against the Nazis was the normal thing, it was a problem to reconsider values in the postwar world, Li said.

Czech youth were also concerned, he said, about the relations between formerly occupied countries like themselves and the now defeated nations like Germany. They expressed an urgent desire that the Oslo conference would help to bring reconciliation.

Li spoke to the youth assembly on the first Oslo question, "How is Christ Overcoming the World," giving examples in history, the missionary movement and in current events.

"Singspiration Set"

The Federation of Christian Youth will sponsor a "singspiration" and devotional program at 7 p. m. tomorrow on the lawn of the Sidwell Friends' School, 3901 Wisconsin ave. nw. Thomas Potter of Calvary Methodist Church will lead the singing. Miss Ann Webster of Tabor Presbyterian Church will conduct devotions. The Rev. Hubert S. Beckwith, associate pastor of First Congregational Church, will speak on "A Call for Pioneers." A similar program will be held August 17, with Leon Wright of Howard University speaking.

Missionary to Be Honored

Miss Ielene Ufkes, who will sail July 25 from San Francisco to serve as a missionary in China, supported by the Luther Leagues of America, will be honored at a tea at 6 p. m. tomorrow at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st. The tea will be sponsored by the two missionary societies and the four Luther Leagues of the congregation.

Maier to Speak At Christ Church

Dr. Walter A. Maier, widely known radio preacher and evangelist, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Christ Lutheran Church, 16th and Gallatin sts. nw. Dr. Maier returned last week from Europe, where he made a survey of educational institutions for the United States Government. He speaks Sundays on "The Lutheran Hour." From Washington he will go to Chicago to attend the Lutheran Layman's League Convention.

Newsom Goes to Yanks on Waivers and Squawks About It

Big Boy Angry Because Griffith Would Not Give Him an Unconditional Release

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 11.—Bobo Newsom, unpredictable as ever, roared "raw deal" on the day he was released from bondage with the seventh-place Nats and sold to the league-leading Yankees at the $10,000 waiver price.

While the big pitcher who will be 39 years old a month from today, couldn't quite conceal his satisfaction today at finding himself with the Yankees, with the prospect of a share of the World Series spoils, he lashed out nevertheless at Owner Clark Griffith of the Nats.

"Mr. Griffith didn't do the right thing by me," said Newsom. "I asked him for my outright release a few days ago so I could sell myself to another club, but he put me on the waiver list, and got the $10,000 sale price for himself."

Newsom declared that as a 14-year man in the major leagues he was entitled to his unconditional release.

"Connie Mack let me go outright when I asked him for my release last year," he said, "And didn't put me on the waiver list.

"I didn't cost Mr. Griffith a penny, and now he sells me. That's what I call a raw deal."

When Newsom asked Griffith for his release, he was hopeful of selling his services to another club and thus pocketing the sale price money, he said.

"I knew there were clubs in both leagues who would take me on," said Bobo, "and it would have meant a nice piece of change for me."

Another item in connection with his sale to the Yankees is disturbing Newsom. It concerns his custom of taking Mrs. Newsom on road trips with the team.

"Mr. Griffith knew that I liked to take my wife on the trips," said Newsom, "and I had a verbal contract to that effect with him like I did with Connie Mack when I was with the A's. "But he didn't mention to the Yankees that we had that kind of a contract. The least he could have done was to advise the Yankees of my wishes. Now I have to take it up with them myself."

In his anger at the Washington owner, Newsom made the veiled threat of refusing to report to the Yankees, but added there was small chance of that.

"The Washington club wouldn't get its $10,000 if I stayed out of baseball," said Newsom. "Mr. Griffith knows I have a couple of offers to go on the radio, and suppose I took one of 'em?"

Then he added, "But I'm going to pitch for the Yankees. I always wanted to be with that club."

Newsom after a good season in 1946 when he won 14 and lost 13 with the Nats and A's, has had a ragged record with Washington this year, winning 4 and losing 6.

"But I've pitched good ball in almost every start," he declared. "Winning for this Washington club is a burden on a pitcher."

Manager Ossie Bluege of the Nats declared that Newsom's sale had no connection with his recent flare-up at Boston where he lost a game in which the club made six errors.

On that occasion, Newsom had words with Outfielder Stan Spence and in the clubhouse he ripped off his uniform shirt, sending buttons flying.

"We can get along without Newsom," said Bluege casually. "He wasn't helping us much. I asked Mr. Griffith to put him on the waiver list."

Conceding Griffith's right to sell him, Newsom declared, however, that he should have been shown more consideration, "In view of all the money I've made for the Washington club. How about the crowds I've drawn for that team, and the profits they've taken in deals for me?"

"The second time they bought me, it was from Detroit for the $7500 waiver price in 1942. The next year, Griffith sold me to Brooklyn for $45,000.

"In 1944, they trade me to Philadelphia for Roger Wolff," who was a 20-game pitcher for them the next year.

"And last year, don't forget, they got me from the A's for nothing except my $22,000 salary.

"I haven't done badly by the Washington club, but when the time comes that I can make a deal for myself, they won't give me my release but sell me."

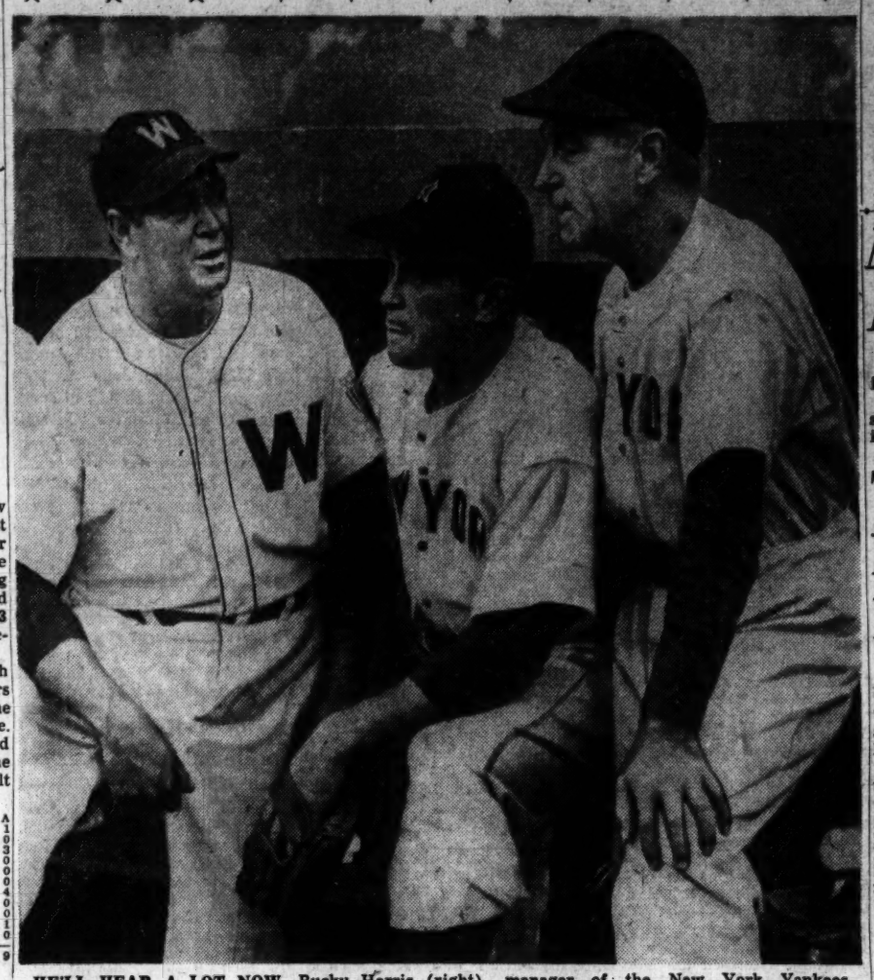
Originally Newsom came to the Nats from the Browns in 1935 for a $40,000 purchase price, and his sale to the Yankees marks the sixth American League club he has joined, plus Brooklyn and Chicago in the National League.

He has had a greater tour of it than any other pitcher in history. The only American League clubs he has missed are the Indians and White Sox.

He joins the Yankees at a time when the club is trying to secure its 8½ game lead in the pennant race. A $6,000 World Series share is in store for Newsom.

Manager Bucky Harris is expected to use him as a starting pitcher in view of the failure of Floyd Bevens, and a shortage of handedness in starters. Only Spud Chandler, Frank Shea and Allie Reynolds have started and won consistently for the Yanks.

Hop From Lowly Nats to League Leaders May Net Him $6000 Cut in World Series



HE'LL HEAR A LOT NOW—Bucky Harris (right), manager of the New York Yankees, listens as Bobo Newsom (left) does the talking before a recent Washington-New York game at Griffith Stadium. Caught in the middle is Allie Reynolds, Yankee pitcher. With Newsom acquired by the Yankees from the Nats yesterday on waivers, Bobo now will be in a position to advise Harris how to win the pennant

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, July 11.—The bleating of Buck Newsom that he "wasn't done right by" when Clark Griffith sold him to the league-leading Yankees today at the $10,000 waiver price is another manifestation of what can be loosely referred to as Newsom's thinking processes.

POVICH

He gets kicked upstairs to the Yankees at a time when that club is making a runaway of the pennant race with its promise of a $6000 World Series share, and he complains that Griffith didn't treat him right. Only Newsom would be capable of that reaction.

Buck is a manipulator. He wanted to join the Yankees but on his own terms. That is, he wanted Griffith to release him outright, and then sell himself to the Yankees and pocket the $10,000 sale price or whatever bonus he could command.

For the past few days he has been rubbing his hands at that prospect. But, Newsom-like, he took too much for granted, and when Griffith declined to make him a $10,000 gift of himself, he ranted against the Washington club owner.

THE TROUBLE with Newsom is that he has been spoiled. He talked Connie Mack into giving him his outright release last year and promptly sold Griffith the idea of signing him at a big $22,000 salary on the argument that otherwise he was costing Griffith nothing in the way of a purchase price. It was a neat deal for Newsom, who thus was getting a salary raise and getting away from the hopelessly mired eighth-place A's.

Why on earth Newsom permitted himself to suppose that he could handle Griffith so easily when the time came to make another move, is not apparent to anyone except Newsom. Maybe he was deluding himself into thinking that as Griffith's favorite pinochle partner, the old gentleman would be a soft touch for that kind of a deal. He reckoned without businessman Griffith, and now he is sore.

Griffith didn't do anything wrong in selling Newsom at the $10,000 waiver price and putting the money into the club treasury, instead of giving Newsom his unconditional release and letting Newsom sell himself.

The Nats' owner was merely doing the businesslike thing, however much Newsom may not like it. Newsom may have practiced his blandishments successfully on Connie Mack, but Griffith is a smarter operator, smarter at least than operator Newsom.

IT'S ALL RIGHT with Manager Ossie Bluege that Newsom has taken himself to other parts. Bluege has a certain respect for Newsom's pitching ability, but where Newsom plays there's turmoil.

He's the headache boy of the manager. He fussed with Hornsby at St. Louis, with Cronin at Boston, with Durocher at Brooklyn, with Bucky Harris in Washington, and though there has been no open break with Bluege, the latter is happy to get out from under.

Nobody ever did accuse Newsom of not giving his all, anywhere, but he's an expressive fellow who gets sore quickly. Bluege this season posted a bulletin forbidding his ballplayers to visit Griffith's front office, commanding them to bring all their problems to him. Newsom brushed that off and visited Griffith's office whenever the urge struck him, which was often.

Griffith had an obvious liking for Newsom, but not to the extent of making him what amounted to a $10,000 gift. There have been cases where veterans of 14 years' service like Newsom have been given their outright release and later signed with other clubs at a bonus, but club owners are not bound to that generosity, especially when a player obviously lines up a deal for himself.

DESPITE THE FAILURE of his little scheme to enrich the Newsom coffers by getting his release from Griffith and selling himself to another club, Newsom is a lucky guy. Certainly there's nothing unlucky about leaving the Nats to be with the Yankees. But that's not what I mean, wholly.

The fact is that Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees didn't want Newsom. He still doesn't. He's had Newsom before, a couple of times, and he's not fond of him. But in this case he's taking on Newsom because he has no choice. It's on orders of Yankee President Larry MacPhail.

MacPhail bought Newsom because he didn't want the Giants, across the river in New York, to get him. That was the deal Newsom had lined up for himself—to join the Giants who are suffering from lack of pitching at a time when they can take it all in the National League.

MacPhail, who likes a showman, didn't want to see the colorful Newsom pitching in the Polo Grounds in the fierce battle for patronage between the two New York clubs.

So Newsom lands with the Yankees as a preventive measure. But there's no underrating the guy. Only a personality could command that kind of bidding.

Yanks Make 3 Hits, Beat Browns, 3-1

St. Louis, July 11 (AP).—The New York aYnkees made the utmost use of the trio of hits Ellis Kinder allowed them today, and with the aid of some fancy clutch pitching by Allie Reynolds, they whipped the luckless St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1, for their tenth straight victory.

Kinder, bidding for his sixth victory, had the erstwhile bombers completely subdued most of the time and deserved a better fate. All three Yankee runs were scored after two were out and one came in on a muff of a high fly by Walt Judnich.

Hogan, Demaret Lead 4-Ball; Furgol, Schoux 1 Point Back

Toledo, Ohio, July 11 (AP).—The tenth Inverness four-ball matches settled down to a two-team race at the end of three of the seven best-ball rounds today, with defending champions Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret firing a pair of 62 totals to take a 1-point lead.

The sensational sophomore pair of Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., the 28-year-old with the withered left arm, and George Cchoux, 27-year-old from San Francisco.

The champions had a plus 11 under the unique scoring system, but Furgol and Schoux were right up there at plus 10 despite a 1-down loss to National Open Champion Lew Worsham and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., this morning.

This afternoon Furgol and Schoux, who set a course record 60 in the first round, came back with a 31-30—61, 10 under par, to hand San Snead and Dr. Cary Middlecoff a 5-up beating, despite the fact that "Slammin'" Sammy birdied six holes in a row from the ninth through the fourteenth.

The rest of the field of eight twosomes was far back, Worsham and Palmer holding third place with plus 1.

In sheer scoring, the Furgol-Schoux duo was tops. The two youngsters, each of whom turned pro less than two years ago, were 28 under par for 54 holes.

The two leading pairs meet tomorrow morning over the 18-hole route, and it may be the match which decides the outcome. Demaret-Hogan are 24 under par for the 54 holes.

SATURDAY'S PAIRINGS

Morning round Snead-Middlecoff vs. Mangrum-Little; Hogan-Demaret vs. Furgol-Schoux; Vic Ghezzi-Ed Oliver vs. Worsham-Palmer; Vines-Heafner vs. Herman Baron-Herman Keiser.

Afternoon round—Hogan-Demaret vs. Worsham-Palmer; Mangrum-Little vs. Vines-Heafner; Snead-Middlecoff vs. Ghezzi-Oliver and Baron-Keiser vs. Furgol-Schoux.

Arlington Has $80,000 Purse

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Lured by an $80,000 purse, 17 2-year-olds today were nominated for the Arlington Futurity tomorrow at Arlington Park.

Although the fast-stepping Bewitch, who bucked her shins this week, will be missing, the Futurity record of 1:10 2-5 set by Occupation in 1942 may tumble on a fast strip. Papa Redbird, owned by Joe A. Goodwin of Lexington, Ky., and Norman W. Church's May Reward, are both rated sharp enough to hang up a record-breaking triumph. May Reward took last week's Primer Stakes at Arlington.

K. C. Horse Show Set For Renewal July 26

The annual Knights of Columbus horse show, curtailed since the Army Emergency and Navy Relief Societies benefit in 1942, will be renewed Saturday, July 26, at the Meadowbrook show grounds, Chevy Chase.

Attractive prize lists have been announced by the K of C committee in hopes of assuring fine entries.

Giants Slam Cards, 17-9, After Loss

New York, July 11 (AP).—The New York Giants ambushed the St. Louis Cardinals after dropping the first game of a double header today, 4-3, and pole-axed the world champions in a 17-9 second game that was shortened by the merciful intervention of darkness in the eighth inning.

Six Giant homers, two each by Billy Rigney and Sid Gordon and one each by Clint Hartung and Willard Marshall, his twentieth, completely submerged the Cards in the second game after they had taken a five-run lead in the first inning.

Ron Northey's pinch-hit homer off loser Larry Jansen had sewed up the first game, a comparatively tame affair, in the seventh inning. Del Rice of the Cards hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning.

Truman Signs Bribery Bill

President Truman signed a bill yesterday making bribery or attempted bribery in sports a jail offense in the District of Columbia.

Known as the O'Hara (R., Minn.) bill, the measure provides penalties for corruptly influencing "participants or officials in contests of skill, speed, strength or endurance."

Penalties range up to a year's imprisonment and a $5000 fine for those participating in sports who accept bribes.

Those who offer bribes are punishable by a jail sentence of five years and a maximum fine of $10,000.

Endeavour Gets Bareback Drill

New York, July 11 (AP).—Endeavour, the giant Argentina racing champion, came out today for his first stiff workout for next Saturday's Empire City Gold Cup and not only impressed the clockers, but had the local jockeys' eyebrows popping.

The reason for the eyebrow acrobatics was that Juan Pedro Artigas, Endeavour's regular jockey, put the South American galloper through a mile-and-a-half workout while riding bareback, which is something that the jocks hereabout just don't do.

Assault, Stymie Race for $50,000

New York, July 11.—Assault, top-weighted at 135 pounds, and Stymie, carrying 126, renew their money-winning championship rivalry tomorrow at Jamaica in the $50,000 Butler Handicap.

Other horses entered in this rich tuneup for next Saturday's $100,000 Empire City International Gold Cup feature at Belmont, were Risolator, Gallorette, and Rico Monte.

Stymie now holds the top spot in the duel of purses with Assault by merit of last week's record-breaking win at Delaware which shot his winnings total to $595,510.

Masterson Has 2-0 Lead Over Chisox

Chicago, July 11.—Walter Masterson held a 2-0 lead for the Washington Nats over the Chicago White Sox in the sixth inning tonight.

The last time Masterson faced the White Sox here he hurled 16 scoreless innings, was relieved, and the Nats won in the eighteenth inning.

Before a crowd of 24,000, the Nats were held hitless in the first four innings of a scoreless pitching duel between Bob Gillespie of the White Sox, and Walter Masterson.

Only one Washington player reached first base, Stan Spence, who walked against the rookie Chicago righthander. He personally threw out six men in the first four innings, on balls batted back to the pitcher's box.

Masterson allowed the White Sox one hit in each of the first three innings, but was never in serious danger. Luke Appling, who singled in the first was out stealing, and Cass Michaels who singled to start the third was a double play victim.

Washington's first hit of the game, a double to right by Spence, paved the wya for the Nats to take a 1-0 lead in the fifth. Spence held second while Appling threw out Vernon, and moved to third on Travis' grounder to Appling. Gerry Priddy scored him with a hot single between Gillespie's legs into center field.

Jockey Tammaro Triple Winner at Charles Town

Bill Bennings

At Charles Town.

Dear Folks:

An elderly fan, seeing racing for the first time in 30 years, watched a start in front of the grandstand and was interested in the starting gate. When the horses broke, he turned to a friend and said, "When the horses come around the track again do they have to come through those slots?" Without smiling his friend replied, "Yes, and they have to go through the same numbered stalls they came out of." A. L. Leith succeeded Bill Wright as trainer of E. B. Lee's horses—Dan Scotch, Looter and Mud Time today. Wright claimed Dan Scotch. Stanley Austin will do the riding for this stable. Only eight more days of racing here before the bangtails shift onto the Maryland circuit with the first stand at Bel Air. Hagerstown, Cumberland and Timonium follow. Marlboro is still a possibility, but if not then the fans hereabout will have to wait for the opening of Laurel. See you on the rail.

Ace Regains Peak Despite Injured Leg

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 11.—Jockey Johnny Tammaro, who left this track last December with a leg so badly mangled that it was believed he would be a cripple for life, has shown you cannot keep a good man down.

Johnny, a Baltimore boy whose father was killed in a steeplechase accident, has been gradually regaining form. Today he demonstrated he is at "tops" again with two victories in the day's purse races and in the opening event.

Shoos Tintrel In

In the featured Belmont Purse, Johnny climbed aboard S. H. Hall's Tintrel and rode so energetically that the 5-year-old came into the wire four lengths ahead of G. Y. Booker's Oyster K, with Mrs. Lelia D. Rogers' How Happy third in a field of eight. Tintrel, coupled in the betting with Outcome, paid a $7 mutuel and was clocked in 1:21 over a fast track.

In the fifth event, Johnny took Halogi, owned by S. H. Rogers, jr. of Washington, to the lead and stayed ahead of G. Pell's Tap Lightly and J. H. Van Wert's Bit of Nerve.

Tammaro did a nice job of holding the grey gelding together, much to the delight of the favorite players who collected $3.40. Halogi was clocked in 1:17 3/5 for the six furlongs, 120 feet.

Tammaro had to do some neat riding in the early stages of the Tintrel race. Approaching the first turn he was on the inside of How Happy and Oyster K and all but drove through.

Wins With Sprint

How Happy held on to the far turn, though Tintrel shook off this 3-year-old. From that point to the wire, the 5-year-old drew out gradually. Oyster K disposed of the tiring How Happy.

Johnny's first race win came aboard Tres Chic, a filly from the Rogers barn, and the 2-year-old paid $6.40 while showing the way to Sweet Bobby and Equinow. When Dr. H. B. Langdon's locally owned Some Moose won the second race at $73.20. There was a $288.40 pay-off on the daily double.

Sachon Will Coach, Play With Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., July 11 (AP).—Pistol Pete Sachon, former Catholic University star and veteran campaigner with the Norfolk Shamrocks of the Dixie Professional Football League, will serve as head backfield coach of the 1947 entry in the Southern circuit, Harry Howren, club owner, announced today.

Sachon, in addition to assisting Head Coach Bob Masterson in his capacity as mentor for the ballcarriers, will hold down the quarterback post on the club.

Eastern Wins 2 Games on All-Star Bill

The Western Division insect All-Stars deprived the Eastern Division of a clean sweep of the triple-header boys' club All-Star baseball program yesterday by defeating the Eastern insects, 11-3, before about 1000 kids at Griffith Stadium.

The Eastern Quins midgets (12 years old and under) walloped the Eastern All-Stars, 23-4, in the curtain raiser as 22 errors were recorded. In the peewee game (for 13 and 14-year-olds), Eastern outslugged Western, 13-10.

One hundred and twenty-five boys took part in the games that served as a buildup for next Friday's All-Star game at Griffith Stadium between a picked group from the insect teams and an all-star team from Brooklyn.

Tommy Evans of Wilson High and Jack Malarkey of Western High just about clinched berths for the big game with their performances yesterday.

Evans, who started on the mound for the Westerners, pitched three hitless and runless innings, striking out three and walking only two. And Malarkey collected three hits in five trips, scoring three runs and driving in a fourth.

Mrs. Glick Repeat Champion In Maryland Women's Golf

Mrs. Maurice Glick defeated Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, 2 and 1, to win the Maryland State Golf championship yesterday at the Kenwood Country Club in an all-Baltimore final.

The petite Woodholme star's triumph in the event was her second in a row and her third in four years.

Mrs. Glick never trailed, always regaining the lead whenever Mrs. Schluderberg managed to deadlock matters.

A birdie 4 on the second, and a birdie 3 on the third, gave Mrs. Glick a 2 up lead which she held until the ninth when Mrs. Schluderberg shot a par 4 to slice the lead to 1 at the turn.

Mrs. Schluderberg then evened the match by winning the tenth, but lost the eleventh. She came back to win the twelfth by virtue of a lon giron shot that missed giving her an eagle 3 by a hair. Her birdie 4 won the hole to even things once more, but never again did the Baltimore Country Club star threaten.

Mrs. Glick won the thirteenth and fourteenth to go 2-up, and they halved the remaining holes although Mrs. Glick 3-putted the sixteenth.

The cards:

Women's
Par Out	454	453	434—36
Mrs. Glick, out	543	544	445—39
Mrs. Schluderberg, out	554	554	444—40
Par In	345	544	435—37—73
Mrs. Glick, in	445	544	535—39—78
Mrs. Schluderberg, in	354	654	536—41—81

Mrs. Glick Outputted

Each golfer had 15 putts on the outgoing nine, and Mrs. Schluderberg took only 11 putts to Mrs. Glick's 15 coming in.

Although the match ended on the seventeenth, the women played out the round. Mrs. Glick's score for 18 holes was a 5-over-par 78, and Mrs. Schluderberg ended with an 81.

Results in the other flights:

Second Flight—Mrs. F. Menoher, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. W. F. Peterson, Elkridge, 3 up.

Third Flight—Mrs. R. Hanson, Congressional, defeated Mrs. F. O. Awalt, Congressional, 4 and 3.

Third Flight Consolation—Mrs. A. A. Morrill, Kenwood, won a bye.

Committee Head Holds Situation Needs Quick Action

The rate of crime increase in Washington is greater than other comparable cities, Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) of the House District Committee said yesterday.

"This is an unhappy showing and merits immediate and vigorous attention," he told the committee.

Washington's percentage of crime increase, was greater than that of 36 cities with populations in excess of 250,000, he said.

Crime Trends Compared

"Moreover," he added, "a comparison of 1945 and 1946 indicates that crime trends in nearly every classification was greater in the District of Columbia than in the geographical area referred to as the South Atlantic States, of which Washington is a part."

Dirksen said he began his study about two months ago from official statistics furnished by the Police Department.

An investigation by The Post disclosed that not all crimes were being reported to the statistical branch. The study was limited to robbery complaints for 11 eleven months of this fiscal year. Official police statistics showed 761 robbery complaints. The Post found more than 1350. More than 600 complaints had been marked "hold" at the request of the detective bureau and never reported on the teletype from which statistics are gathered.

FBI Check Planned

Dirksen said he planned to submit the 1947 official police statistics when they are released to the FBI "for review."

"When we get the new report we'll look at it with a good, scrutinizing eye," he declared. It will be part of the scrutiny to determine how the statistics were compiled, he added.

In the fiscal year of 1946, Dirksen said police reported 8426 felonies. This was 2186 more than the previous year. There was an increase of 65 per cent in robberies, 49 per cent in housebreaking and nearly 26 per cent in murders, he said, from 1945 to 1946.

(All the robbery complaints studied by The Post investigators were hidden during the 1947 fiscal year.)

No Job for "Sissy"

Without adding any explanatory comment, Dirksen declared that direction of policing Washington "is no job for a sissy or panty-waist."

Dirksen made it "abundantly clear" that his report was not a criticism of police, but he added; "I want to emphasize that the Superintendent of Police must bring to his job a sense of justice. Washington takes tough policing."

"Many cities," he declared, "have crime commissions to supplement the work of the policing authorities. There is such an agency in Washington and its very existence is confession of the fact that in the field of law enforcement and the disposition of criminal cases something is wanting.

"I have examined the work of this agency (the Washington Criminal Justice Association, a Comunity Chest organization) in the belief that perhaps its operations might be energized to meet the problems of law enforcement.

"However, a vigorous, competent, alert police force would make this unnecessary, and I trust that the operation of the department" under Barrett's direction "will make it unnecessary to consider other means and methods for making this the safest, most secure metropolitan center in the Nation."

PBA Grants Rise

Great Plaza Parkers Face 150 Pct. Hike

Motorists will have to pay up to 150 per cent more to park their cars at the Government-owned Great Plaza parking area, 14th and D sts. nw., beginning next Wednesday.

Lever for the rate boost was provided by the Public Buildings Administration, which asked for competitive lease bids on the basis of an increase from $2 to $5 in monthly rates for Government workers.

PBA also removed the former ceiling rates of 25 cents per day and 15 cents after 6 p. m.

$11,300 Per Month Rent

Dominic Antonelli, jr., and F. Warren Brokaw will take over the 1150-space lot on a two-year lease July 15. Their $11,300 per month rental bid topped those of eight other bidders, including the present lessee, when PBA opened bids July 1.

Brokaw said last night that new all-day and hourly rates had not yet been set. "But in no case will they exceed the increase the Government has set for the monthly rental to Government workers," he promised.

He said this tentative rate schedule was being considered:

All day parking, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.—50 or 60 cents.

Night parking, from 6 p. m. to midnight—30 or 35 cents.

Hourly rate—30 cents for the first hour, plus 10 cents for each succeeding hour up to the all-day maximum.

940 Spaces Reserved

Under the terms of the lease, 940 spaces must be set aside for Government workers, who must pay not more than $5 per month. (Of this number, 105 will be assigned to District employes.)

Rates for the remaining 210 spaces may be set by Antonelli and Brokaw. The 940 spaces reserved for the Government during the day may be used for transient trade after 6 p. m.

The lot has been operated for the past three years by the Grand Plaza Parking Company at a monthly rental of $3800, PBA officials said. The company's bid of $11,151 per month for renewing the lease was $149 under the winning bid, they revealed.

Pistol Practice Ordered for All Policemen

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett announced yesterday that from now on all policemen are going to have regular pistol practice. His goal is, every man a marksman.

Sergt. Sheldon R. McKee will be in charge, and officers will practice regularly by precincts at the White House range, Bladensburg rd. and M st. ne.

The police have a good indoor range in the basement of the Municipal Center, but it is being used as a cafeteria.

Barrett said there had been no regular pistol practice since 1932, and that only about a third of the force are qualified marksmen now.

Barrett also announced these changes:

Precinct captains will no longer be allowed to use station clerks as secretaries, a change he expects to free a number of men for street duty.

District inspectors will have power to transfer officers in their discretion, calling on the executive office for replacements, instead of following the present practice of recommending that shifts be made on the next regular transfer date.

Woman Tells of Case 'Lost' in Police Files

Last Christmas Eve, Rosa Fellabaum had her pocketbook snatched as she walked in front of her home at 837 3d st. ne.

It contained $15, a new pair of glasses worth $27 and sundry other things. She complained to police of the Ninth Precinct.

Detective Sergeant Hardy of the robbery squad told the precinct to mark the complaint "hold." It was not reported on the police teletype, the file in the detective bureau is marked "no assignment." It was hidden, along with 600 other robbery complaints uncovered by The Post. It was never included in police statistics of crimes committed in Washington.

"Police came to the house once after my purse was stolen," she told The Post yesterday. "I never heard from them again."

Actress Paid Thugs $2000, Witness Says

Hollywood, Calif., July 11 (U.P.).—Pretty Film Actress Madge Meredith today was accused of paying three men $2000 to kidnap and beat her former business manager, Nicholas Gianaclis.

Verne V. Dagis, who said he was a companion of Gianaclis June 30, testified at the preliminary hearing of Miss Meredith and three men that they tried to bribe their assailants.

"We're not interested in your dough," one of the men told Davis, he said. "We're getting $2000 for this job."

The three men who are accused with the actress of kidnaping, robbery and assault with intent to do bodily harm are Albert W. Tucker, James Hatfield and Damon Klinkenberg.

Gianaclis claims the kidnaping and assault resulted from a dispute with the actress over a house he deeded to her to hide it from his estranged wife. He said she refused to give it back.

Davis testified that he and Gianaclis were driving down Laurel Canyon June 30 when Miss Meredith swung her car in their path. A second vehicle pulled up behind them and three men got out.

"They struck me two or three times," Davis said. "I was practically knocked out. I don't know what happened to Gianaclis, but when they pushed us into their car, he was bleeding awfully bad."

The victims said they were taken to isolated Lopez Canyon, where one of the trio remained on guard while the other two said they were coming back to "bump us off."

Davis and Gianaclis managed to overpower the guard, Klinkenberg, and took his gun away. They summoned deputy sheriffs who arrested him and later took the other two men into custody.

Miss Meredith sat quietly in court as the testimony was given.

"SHOW-WINDOWS-ON-WHEELS"

Carry Washington's Biggest Daily Audience

Every public transit vehicle in Washington is a "show window on wheels." Each one displays a full complement of colorful, interesting Transitads (car cards).

To hundreds of advertisers these Transitads are the "show-windows" in which they can display their goods or services to the biggest, day-after-day audience in Washington.

Each Transitad, multiplied many times to appear in every Washington transit vehicle, is shown before a Washington audience that averages 1½ million riders per day. This immense audience, that gathers in Washington transit vehicles over every 24-hour span, stays "put" for an average 27 minutes per ride.

Next time you board a street car or bus, you'll be part of that audience. Remember the "show-windows" overhead . . . and window shop as you ride.

Shea New Bursar At U. of Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., July 11 (AP).—Vincent Shea, of the University of Virginia's bureau of public administration, was elected by the Board of Visitors today to be bursar, succeeding Elmer Irving Carruthers, who has resigned after serving as the University's chief financial officer for 35 years.

President Colgate W. Barden, jr., announcing the action of the visitors, added that they had adopted a resolution commending Carruthers for his long service since he took over the office of bursar October 1, 1912, from the late Capt. I. K. Moran.

Shea also succeeds Carruthers as secretary of the Board of Visitors.

Finlay Medal Awarded D. C. Pediatrician

Dr. Joseph S. Wall, 3312 35th st. nw., veteran Washington pediatrician, last night was presented with the Carlos J. Finlay Medal for his services in advancing intercontinental pediatrics.

Dr. Wall

The medal, named for Cuba's noted yellow fever authority, was presented at the annual dinner of the Pan-American Congress of Pediatrics at the Mayflower Hotel.

Sharing honors with Dr. Wall was Dr. Clifford Grulee, of Evanston, Ill., who was awarded the honor with an officer's degree. Dr. Wall's degree was that of commander.

Final sessions of the Congress will be held at the Mayflower this morning.

At the afternoon meeting, two Uruguayan pediatricians urged study throughout the Americas of rheumatic heart disease. Only through greater research and study of the disease, which has reached "alarming" proportions in some countries, they said, can cures be found.

The two children's specialists, Dr. Victor Escardo y Anaya and Dr. Bolivar Correa, told of a questionnaire they had sent to 22 countries in the Americas. The answers showed that rheumatic heart disease exists in all countries in this hemisphere.

It seems to be more common in temperate and cold countries, especially the United States, Argentina and Uruguay. They noted greater incidence of the disease in city areas and over crowded sections where food and sanitation are inadequate.

The congress, under way at the Mayflower since Wednesday, will be concluded this afternoon. At the final session, delegates are expected to name the city in which the second Pan-American Pediatric Congress will be held in 1950.

Zabawa Is Named Music Minister At Reformation

Jule Zabawa, a member of the music faculty of Eau Claire (Wis.) Teachers' College, has been appointed to the new post of minister of music at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st. His apointment will be effective September 1.

During his Army service of four years, Zabawa directed a glee club and chorus. He was formerly soloist with the famous St. Olaf's Choir and assistant director of that group under Dr. F. Melius Christianson. Mrs. Zabawa has also been active musically, serving with her husband on the faculty of Eau Claire State Teachers' College.

Fingerprints on Drinking Glass May Break Plank Slaying Case

A broken drinking glass from the Fairfax County, Va. house where Norman L. Plank was found shot to death early Monday yielded a "perfect set" of fingerprints yesterday.

Facing Fairfax authorities now is a fingerprint check of the eight persons who attended Plank's party Friday night. If the prints do not compare, they may have their first concrete clew on identity of the stranger who was with Plank Saturday and whom police have sought since the slaying.

Plank was found at 12:30 a. m. Monday at the foot of the basement stairs in the home at 4108 Forest la., Chesterbrook Woods, where he lived with his sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer. He died of a bullet wound in the head, apparently inflicted by a .22 caliber pistol found several stairsteps from the body. No prints were found on the weapon, but a towel was lying nearby.

The slaying victim, at first termed a suicide, was a 29-year-old clerk in the District's Small Claims Court.

Sought, in addition to the man Plank brought to the house Saturday, is his sister's 1940 Buick sedan, which has been missing from the house garage. Nationwide, daily lookouts and a systematic search of Washington streets have failed to produce the car.

USES Activities Skyrocket During First Half of 1947

Activity at the District office, United States Employment Service, skyrocketed during the first half of 1947, according to a report made public yesterday.

Fred Z. Hetzel, director, reported 40 per cent more visits to the office up to June 30 in contrast with the first six months of last year.

Simultaneously, he noted that:

1. Veterans are still the largest single element in the labor supply.

2. Fewer job opportunities were available in the local offices this year in comparison with last.

3. Local employers are getting more carefully selected applicants.

Reception contacts climbed to 484,000 in the first half of this year, compared with 338,689 in the first six months of 1946, Hetzel said. He reported, too, a higher ratio of job placements this year over last.

A "complete reversal of the position of veterans and nonveterans" was noted by the USES chief. During the spring peak load of veterans in 1946, new applications for jobs totaled 26,073 for veterans out of an over-all total of 34,812, he said. This year, however, the new applications from veterans dropped to 11,773 for the first six months out of 30,769 job bids all told.

A marked increase in new registrations, attributed to seasonal layoffs and the Federal economy cuts, was recorded in June. Total placements for the month declined by 6 per cent while placements for women increased 6 per cent.

Senate Group Would Keep Reports Unit

The Office of Government Reports, consigned to limbo by the House, yesterday won a reprieve from the Senate Appropriations Committee.

OGR was granted an appropriation of $400,000 for the fiscal year of 1948, which began July 1, and thereby the jobs of most of the 150 employes were saved. The House had entirely eliminated the $600,000 request of the information service.

Actually, the subcommittee dealing with the appropriation recommended only $200,000, but the full committee doubled that figure yesterday.

In permitting continuation of the office "on a restricted basis," the Senate committee expressed the opinion that the agency "has overexpanded," and set a $7500-a-year maximum salary limitation. During the past year 11 OGR jobs paid higher than the newly imposed ceiling.

The Senate committee recommended that enough funds should be provided for continuation of the "effective operation" of the advertising, liaison and the library sections of the office. OGR also contains a Government information service, liaison section, and press-clipping unit.

Senate Unit Votes Slum Plan Funds Of $95,000

Clearance Program Revived; $200,000 Also Approved for Parkway Land

The District's long-range slum clearance program, stymied by House refusal to appropriate planning funds, was revived yesterday by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The committee restored an appropriation of $95,000 for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in the funds bill for fiscal 1948.

The planning funds would be spent in the following manner: $45,000 for publication of the comprehensive plan; $15,000 for a survey to establish the lowest 20-per-cent income group; $35,000 for a survey to determine the blighted areas.

No Demolition Now

The House Appropriations Committee had eliminated the $95,000 item on the grounds that removal of housing should be delayed until the housing shortage eases up. However, testimony presented to the Senate Committee pointed out that the planning stage called for no demolition of homes here.

The committee approved, as did the House earlier, $200,000 for the acquisition of land to develop the George Washington Memorial Parkway, which is to run from Washington on both sides of the Potomac to Great Falls, where the two prongs of the road will be connected with a scenic bridge.

Money for Two Play Sites

Also okayed was an item of $79,000 for the acquisition of two playground sites in the District and for operating expenses of the commission.

The Senate Committee followed the House in deleting some three million dollars from NCPPC funds request, this for the development of the suburban Maryland park area. The sum was rejected despite a plea by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) that it would be more economical to buy the necessary land now, than later on when the land is build up into subdivisions.

Jobs of Many May Be Saved

Interstate Commerce Commission, $400,000; Securities and Exchange Commission, $300,000; Smithsonian Instituteion, $100,000, and a shift of funds was recommended for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics which would allow that agency to increase its staff here by about 75 employes.

At least 4000—if not more—Agriculture employes will be called back to their jobs if the recommendations of the Senate Appropriations Committee are written into law. The committee added about 200 million dollars over the House approved budget for that department. The House action resulted in provisional layoff notices to upward of 12,000 Agriculture people and most of them are still on payless furloughs.

Increases in House Budget

These are among the increases voted over the House budget that would bring about cancellation of many layoff notices:

Rural Electrification Administration was given a million dollars more for salaries which would enable it to recall most of the 325 employes it has laid off. However, the committee warned the agency to economize by downgrading employes in the higher pay brackets.

Federal Crop Insurance Corporation was given five million dollars compared to one million dollars voted by the House. The Senate was told that the agency would have had to liquidate under the House action.

Farmers Home Administration was given six million dollars more for salaries which it would use to recall about 2000 of the 4000 people dismissed under the House bill.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics was given $500,000 more than was voted by the House, enough to recall about 150 laid-off employes.

The Bureau of Animal Industry was voted $6,140,000 additional to keep the 3000 Federal meat inspectors on the Federal payroll. The House ordered the meat industry to pay their salaries on a fee basis.

The Soil Conservation Service was given an additional $750,000 for its research work here. If the figure sticks, about 200 employes will be returned to their jobs.

The solicitor's office was given $200,000 more than was approved by the House among several minor increases approved by the Senate group.

Priority for SEC

On the proposed return here for the nine decentralized agencies, the committee emphasized that Securities and Exchange Commission was to be given priority. It was estimated that 643 of its 897 employes would move here with the agency from Philadelphia.

These are the other agencies that would be moved here under the committee proposal:

From Chicago: 112 of the 167 National Park Service employes; 204 of the 306 Indian Affairs employes; 240 of the 2[illegible] and it was cost the employes.

Wildlife people, and 6 of the 10 employes in Interior's personnel office.

From New York City: 500 of the employes in Veterans' Administration insurance actuary offices, and 250 of the 350 employes in the Bureau of Employes Compensation.

From Philadelphia: 551 of the 937 employes of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Also SEC.

From Winston-Salem, N. C.: 105 of the 195 employes in Civil Service's fourth regional office.

FBI: The President yesterday signed the bill into law which will allow FBI agents to retire at 50 after 20 years of service. The pension in such cases would average $2000 a year. After the bill was reported headed for a veto. Attorney General Tom C. Clark is reported to have appealed to the President that he sign the bill.

GOLD STAR: The Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday approved the bill to extend veterans' preference to the mothers of boys who died in the military service . . . It also okayed another bill to authorize the Census Bureau to gather statistics on linseed and cottonseed oil . . . The committee voted to hold a hearing Tuesday on the Flanders-Baldwin bill that would raise salaries of Cabinet officers and other top officials.

RETIREMENT: The House Rules Committee again has been asked to give the compromise Stevenson retirement bill the "green light" for House debate. A hearing has been tentatively set for early next week. Meantime, employes who have studied the bill are split in sixes and sevens over whether its benefits are worth the added 1 per cent it will cost the employes.

1946-47 Proves Busiest Year For D. C. Court

5000 Divorce Cases On Docket; 4093 Civil Actions Disposed Of Marital troubles put almost 5000 divorce cases on District Court's 1946-47 civil docket, a fiscal report released yesterday disclosed.

The report, which disclosed the court's busiest year in history, was submitted by Assignment Commissioner Jack Sullivan.

It pointed out that some of the divorce actions were left from the 1945-46 calendar, but it showed disposition of 2233 noncontested cases. Actions in that category totaled 473 more than those in the 1945-46 period.

Covering the period from July 1, 1946, to June 30 of this year, the statistics reported disposition of 4093 civil actions—an all-time record by 717 cases. A speedup in disposition of jury trials by one month over the preceding fiscal year also was reflected in the figures.

No acceleration was noted in disposition of nonjury cases, which include divorce actions.

A general decrease was shown in the number of cases remaining on the docket from six months to one year or more. There are 548 cases one year or more old on the docket, compared with 402 in the last fiscal year and 1379 in the 1938-39 court year.

On the criminal calendar, 2067 remained on the calendar at the end of the fiscal year, including 1754 new indictments July 1, 1946, through June 30 of this year. Cases disposed of totaled 1821, with 1327 of them handled by plea or dismissal and 324 by jury trial.

OPA Loses Suit on Technicality

The Office of Price Administration, which lost four bosses in its reign, yesterday lost a million dollar damage suit because Headman Bowles gave way to Headman Porter.

The two-year-old suit in District Court was lost because of a technicality.

The technicality was that the OPA attorneys neglected to insert Paul A. Porter's name as plaintiff in the case when he took over the proprietor, Samuel Siegal. OPA The suit was brought in the name of Chester Bowles, who resigned as OPA head in June, 1946.

Under the court rules, substitutions of plaintiffs must be made within one year. However more than a year elapsed and OPA attorneys did not move to substitute Porter for Bowles, nor did they substitute successor agencies after Porter resigned.

The case involved alleged price ceiling violations by the Wright Beef Co., 1254 4th st. ne., and its proprietor, Samuel Siegal. OPA agents had charged they noted price violations over a period of a year by the firm.

For the two years the suit was pending in the courts, the lack of substitution went unnoticed. However, recently Siegal hired Attorneys Joseph B. Danzansky and Bernard Margolius, who called it to the attention of Justice James W. Morris.

The OPA argued that where Government officials sue in their official capacity, their successors need not be named in the suit should it continue until a successor is appointed.

Justice Morris ruled, "It would seem clear that the Congress required a successor of an officer of the Government, who had instituted an action, to make a showing that said action should be maintained within a stated period in order to be substituted thereon and continue the action to a conclusion."

Vatican Scientists At Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—Three Jesuit astronomers from the Vatican Observatory at Castel Gandolfo, summer residence of the Pope, visited Johns Hopkins University today as part of their tour of United States instrument plants and research laboratories.

The visitors are the Rev. Alois Gatterer, S. J., an Austrian, director of the astrophysical laboratory of the Vatican Observatory and a member of the Pontifical Academy of Sciences; the Rev. Joseph Junkers, S. J., a German, vice director of the Vatican Observatory; and the Rev. Walter J. Miller, S. J., an American, who once taught physics at Georgetown University and was a former faculty member at Woodstock College, Md.

Fathers Gatterer and Junkers are the authors of the "Atlas of the Rare Earth," a book on spectroscopics.

Md. Tax Check Won't Extend To D. C. Stores

But State May Use Its Authority to Make Concerns Fall in Line

As 28 investigators yesterday began checking Maryland stores on possible violations of the retail sales tax law, Walter E. Kennedy, head of the tax division, assured District merchants that no similar action was contemplated here.

Kennedy said he was still expecting to receive "cooperation" from the local retailers and disclosed that several have already applied for the $1 sales tax licenses. He said an exact tabulation of District applications had not yet been completed.

As the total number of licenses issued reached 39,000, J. Joseph McDermott, investigation chief, said he was convinced "many, more licenses will be issued to retailers who do not have them now."

Answering an inquiry on what authority Maryland officials could act against District dealers delivering into the State without collecting the tax, Kennedy said he could use "all powers of the State governing foreign corporations doing business in the State" which included levying of fines or liens by courts.

Kennedy said that although he had made no plans for halting District store-owned delivery trucks, the tax division attorneys had declared the division was on "firm ground" in considering delivery into the State as constituting "doing business in the State."

The Maryland Firemen's Association yesterday asked Kennedy for a ruling on whether volunteer fire company purchases were exempt under the act.

Across the border, the Retail Business Men's Association of Martinsburg, W. Va., entered a formal protest against a reported plan for imposing a city gross sales tax. Mayor Paul B. Martin said the measure was being considered.

Dirksen Favors Tight Movie Laws For Juveniles

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), yesterday suggested tightening District laws to keep juveniles from going to the wrong movies.

The proposal grew out of his investigation into the complaint of Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) against showing "Duel in the Sun" here.

Dirksen told his committee one thing he had found in checking on "Duel in the Sun" was a report by Police Women's Bureau Pvt. Agnes Ferrill on her review of the movie:

"A film of sordid details and should be for adults only. So filmed that there is no violation of law, but the inference is easily recognized regarding the relationship between the half-breed girl and the white man."

Jacques Was Carried Away By His Scooter—But Not Judith

Jacques L. Burke and his wife, Judith—who has red hair—started out on their motor scooter for a turn through Rock Creek Park yesterday. But they rode straight into a comedy of errors.

Judith fell off somewhere in the park. When her husband, a Naval Gun Factory boilermaker, missed her, he turned back and tried to find her. But he didn't.

After that Jacques called a couple of hospitals and then the police. So at 3:18 a. m. the police radio called on all cruisers to look out for Mrs. Burke.

And Jacques went on looking, thus coming to the attention of Policeman John W. Bonomo in a Seventh Precinct cruiser. Jacques poured out his troubles to the police, but just the same he had to forfeit $3 for running his scooter without lights.

Then word came over the police radio that Judith was safe at home, 4107 Maryland dr., Brookmont. She had got tired of being looked for and had taken a taxi.

So everything was all right. Except that Mrs. Burke lost her handbag.

Jury Acquits D. C. Driver In 2 Deaths

Defense Contends Man Had Seizure Before Car Leaped Curb Last Year

A Municipal Court jury debated for 30 minutes yesterday, then acquitted Cecil Patterson, 44, of negligent homicide in the traffic deaths of two men here last August 6.

Patterson was driver of an automobile which mounted the sidewalk at 14th st. and New York ave. nw. last year and plunged into a morning throng of pedestrians.

Two persons, Joseph A. Scannell, 45, 1929 Pennsylvania ave. nw., and John Lowe, 52, 420 11th st. ne., were killed, and five others were injured.

During the trial, the defense inthony indicated that Patterson had suffered a seizure shortly before the car went out of control. The prosecution contended, however, that Patterson had had such attacks before and was negligent in driving a car with the knowledge that he was subject to such seizures.

Patterson, a Government Printing Office linotypist, took took the stand yesterday and related that he "blacked out" just before he swept into the crowd.

Before the case went to the jury, Judge Nathan R. Margold for the second time during the trial denied a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

In his instructions to the jurors, Judge Margold informed them that they were to vote as they saw the case, but that "if I were a juror I would vote for this man's acquittal."

Coroner's Jury Holds Man in Traffic Deaths

Edward C. Butcher was held for grand jury action yesterday at an inquest into the auto deaths of Mrs. Beatrice Chambers and Melvin Plater last week.

The same coroner's jury released Talburt Ashby, 27, of Herndon, Va., after reaching a verdict of accidental death in the fatality June 27 of William I. McCarthy, Dorchester, Mass. Both parties were held "equally responsible."

Butcher, 26, of 715 1st st. nw., testified he was hurrying Clarence Moss, 37, same address, to a hospital July 5 with a nose hemorrhage when the accident occurred.

His automobile raced through a red light at N. Capitol and H sts. nw., and crashed into another driven by Oscar Crowder, 26, 317 15th st. se. Crowders' vehicle, which carried four adults and six children, rolled over three times and spilled out five of its occupants.

Mrs. Chambers, 58, of 1612 D st. se., and Melvin, a child of two, were killed instantly.

Witnesses testified Crowder, a Postoffice employe, was driving across the intersection on a green light at the time. He was returning from a visit to the zoo.

Butcher was continued under the $2000 bond he posted when police charged him with reckless driving and manslaughter. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald conducted the inquest.

Meanwhile, it was learned, Inspector Arthur E. Miller has instructed all traffic department men to enforce strictly a regulation which permits only police autos pursuing fleeing criminal suspects and fire apparatus on the way to a fire to run through red lights.

Man, Son Hospitalized After Md. Collision

A Washington man and his 8-year-old son were hospitalized as result of a collision in nearby Maryland yesterday in which his wife and another son, aged 5, received slight injuries.

The collision occurred at Central ave. and Crain hwy. in Prince Georges County. An auto driven by John F. Bennett, 41, 1908 Florida ave. nw., was struck by a trailer truck driven by Leon Sapienzo, 31, Egg Harbor City, N. J.

Bennett suffered scalp lacerations and his son, John F. Bennett, jr., a broken nose. Both were taken to Garfield Hospital, where Mrs. Sophie Bennett, 39, and Robert Bennett, the younger son, were treated for minor cuts and bruises. En route to the hospital, the ambulance of the Marlboro Rescue Squad broke down at Largo. The injured were transferred to a vehicle of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad for the remainder of the trip.

Sapienzo suffered only minor bruises when the heavily laden lumber truck he was driving turned over after striking the Bennett car. He was treated by members of the Marlboro rescue unit.

Both drivers were charged with reckless driving, with a hearing tentatively set for Monday at Marlboro.

Holdup Men Complain When Victim Shoots

New York, July 11 (U.P.).—Two holdup men complained to police Thursday that their intended victim, in an attempt at robbery, shot one of them and fled.

Elbert R. Marcel, 19, and John Dutra, 22, said they stopped the man and rapped him on the head with a hammer, intending to knock him unconscious. The plan failed when the victim, instead of collapsing, whipped out a revolver and shot Marcel in the left leg.

GAO Favors Fiscal Powers For District Under Charter.

House Group Gets Plan

It was delivered to the House District Reorganization and Home Rule Subcommittee during a hearing at the Capitol.

Committee aides, surprised that the plan came from the GAO, said it was one of the most important proposals placed before the subcommittee.

Subcommittee Chairman James C. Auchincloss (R. N. J.) said earlier, however, that "it would seem essential that Congress should retain control over budget and tax matters of the District."

The GAO plan was presented by W. L. Ellis, assistant to Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren, and J. D. Denit, chief of GAO accounting.

Whether the District government should get complete control over its finances, said the GAO report, "will depend upon whether an adequate home rule government otherwise is set up."

"If that were done with adequate safeguards to insure a capable local government, no reason suggests itself why the fiscal operations of the District should continue to be integrated with those of the Federal Government.

Congress now says what taxes District residents are to pay. It also says, through the annual District appropriation bill, how the money is to be spent. Besides tax money, the District gets a Federal payment, 12 million for next year. Before clearing through Congress, the annual spending program clears through the Federal Budget Bureau. Local revenue goes into the Federal Treasury to the District's credit. The city spends it under the appropriation acts of Congress.

The GAO said "if home rule is determined upon as a matter of policy, it would seem to follow that such delegation would carry with it the inherent right to control local financial affairs."

Loans Favored

If the taxing power were turned over to the District government, the GAO said it should include power to get temporary and long term loans. The report said short term loans should be kept within the revenue of any year, while long term loans should total no more than 10 per cent of the total assessed property value in the District.

The GAO said the Federal payment should be left to Congressional policy, but that the District should get the same money grants that the States do.

To run the District's fiscal affairs locally, the GAO suggested a three-part setup.

1. A fiscal director, appointed by the President on recommendations from the local government, and holding long-term office. His job would include auditing and accounting and general control over District financial transactions.

2. A treasurer, appointed by the head of the District government with approval of the local legislative body, for a four-year term.

He would be in charge of collecting and paying out actual money, under general control by the fiscal director.

3. An annual audit by an outside organization. Results would be reported to Congress, the President, and the head of the local government. Its purpose would be to give both the public and Congress a check on operations of the local government.

Auchincloss' group also received a Treasury Department report saying that in any District self-rule setup the local government should be allowed to continue using Treasury services on an optional, rather than mandatory, basis.

"It is believed that the District can realize substantial savings by utilizing certain Federal facilities in lieu of establishing new facilities, and that such economies will be reflected in lower local government costs," the Treasury report said.

It was signed by E. H. Foley, jr., as Acting Secretary of the Treasury. The report was presented by W. T. Heffelfinger, Stephen J. Spingarn, and W. B. Freeman.

J. L. Keddy, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian, told the subcommittee he had formerly handled District budget estimates for 11 years.

Keddy said that even with District home rule, the Federal Government should continue an annual payment to the District, based on the amount of property here it has taken off the tax rolls.

He recommended that the city be run by a five-member council, elected at large and not by wards, and a city manager appointed by the council on a three-year contract. Council members would have four-year terms. He suggested that council ordnances be subject to congressional veto.

7 D. C. Bills Signed; 10 Ready for House Vote

Sports Bribery Now Felony With Heavy Penalties For Offenders

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

President Truman teamed with Congress yesterday to clear up this year's District legislation.

The President signed seven bills, including one to attack sports bribery with heavy new penalties.

The House District Committee, headed by Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), approved 10 bills, clearing them for House action on Monday's District Day. The list included bills to put Washington's Commissioners in full charge of public welfare, and give them a hand in the Recorder of Deeds Office.

The House completed congressional approval of a bill to set up a 15-member commission for planning Washington's 150th anniversary celebration in 1950.

The White House announced President Truman had signed the sports bribery bill, which makes it a felony to offer or accept bribes with intent to influence an athletic contest. The President also signed measures to:

1. Authorize District financial support for the Metropolitan Police Band.

2. Let Congress appropriate up to $10,000 a year for the Commissioners to entertain visiting officials.

3. Make the District pay property owners their legal costs in condemnation suits which the city finally abandons.

4. Put the Capitol Police board in charge of traffic regulation for the Capitol grounds

Two other bills signed by the President authorize $25,000 each to plan additional office facilities for House members and for Senate members.

But Brief Discussion

In the House District Committee, the 10 bills cleared with brief discussion in what will probably be the final meeting of this session.

The welfare reorganization bill, long urged by the Commissioners, would strip the present administrative Board of Public Welfare to a purely advisory role. The board has fought the change, urging that it be given a freer hand to run welfare.

In the proposed setup, the board could make investigations, inspect city welfare activities, and make recommendations to the Commissioners. It would have up to $10,000 a year for that job.

The Recorder of Deeds bill cleared the committee minus the original plan of its author, Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) to put the office under the Commissioners.

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) said the question of transferring the Recorder's office should be reviewed by the House District subcommittee on reorganization and home rule.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West explained that the bill would give the Commissioners authority to make regulations on how recording is to be done, and to fix fees for the Recorders' Office. It also calls for a preaudit of recorder funds by the District auditor, and places the job of recording automobile liens under the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. Another result would be to make it legal for the Recorder's office to change over from typewriter to photographic recording.

Other Bills in Detail

Other bills approved by Dirksen's group would:

1. Limit television and radio towers in residential areas to locations where they would not endanger home, schools, playgrounds and other recreation facilities.

2. Let the Police Department give captain's pay to lieutenants in charge of four key headquarters detective squads.

3. Revamp District insurance regulations to let the industry operate without being subject to the antitrust laws. Joint action between separate companies in making rates would be permitted subject to control by the District superintendent of insurance.

4. Make the Interior Department repay the District for Park Police expenses which the city now pays.

5. Let Municipal Court reporters collect fees for transcripts as is done by reporters in other District Courts.

6. Let Episcopal parishes and congregations in Washington write their own by-laws for vestry elections.

7. Give police and firemen credit for military service in fixing the amount of benefits from their relief fund.

8. Boost from 20 to 50 years the period for building up the District teachers' retirement fund to the point where all the extra starting costs would be paid off.

Two 'Reprieves'

Montgomery Playgrounds To Stay Open

A threatened shutdown of two Montgomery County playgrounds has been averted by a "pronounced increase" in attendance in the last week, the Maryland - National Capital Park and Planning Commission announced yesterday.

The play centers, Hillendale at Hillendale Park, and Parkside at Silver Spring, were scheduled to be closed today unless the daily attendance was doubled, according to an announcement by the commission last week. The commission had made tentative plans to transport children of the neighborhood to other playgrounds in the event of closure.

Apparently as a result of the threatened shutdown, however, daily attendance of Hillendale has increased from 16 to 36 and the daily average at Parkside has jumped from 20 to 40. If present averages are maintained, the commission said, the two centers will be maintained for the rest of the summer season.

Meanwhile, representatives of the commission said that four sites are now being considered for establishment of a playground to serve the Chevy Chase-Martin's Addition area. A selection will be made after prices on all four can be determined.

The proposed playground is being planned as a result of petitions submitted by about 200 residents of the area between Connecticut ave. and the Rock Creek Recreation Center, north of Western ave.

Polio Rate May Hinge On Weather for July

New York, July 11 (U.P.)—The weather during the next two weeks will determine whether there will be epidemics of infantile paralysis this year, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said Thursday.

The dread disease reaches epidemic proportions in hot, dry weather and foundation officials believe the wet, cold spring of 1947 may keep the number of poliomyelitis cases dawn.

Since the beginning of this year, 1200 polio cases have been reported, the foundation said. Although this figure is above average, officials said it is far below the disease rate for the same period last year.

Ball Raps Quiz Of Candidates In Arlington

Attorney Frank L. Ball, a lifetime Democrat, strongly criticized the Arlington Democratic Executive Committee yesterday for quizzing committee candidates "behind locked doors" on their party loyalty.

In a letter to Harry A. Grant, chairman of the special subcommittee making the investigation, Ball spoke for his client, H. Smith Rucker, who had refused to appear before the group.

35 Questioned

The five-man subcommittee questioned 35 candidates at Democratic headquarters Monday and Thursday of this week. Fourteen other committee candidates did not attend.

Pointing out that seven subcommittee members are themselves executive committee candidates Ball asked:

"Since when has it become American for one set of candidates . . . to compel other candidates to submit under oath to an inquisition conducted by themselves?"

He called the hearings "illegal," "immoral," and termed them a "gratuitous insult" to his client, Rucker, whom he described as a life-long Democrat and a veteran of 26 months service in New Guinea.

Ball himself served as County Commonwealth's Attorney from 1916 to 1924, as State Senator from 1924 to 1932, and as member of the executive committee for 11 years.

Earlier this week Grant had declared that candidates unwilling to come forth publicly as adherents to democratic principles are presumed "not to be Democrats." He said the questioning was a rountine matter.

"When was this routine established and . . . who proposed it?" Ball asked. He said in his years on the committee he had "never heard of it."

He declared that party strength could only come by welcoming to the committee "men of vision" above factional politics, and begged Grant not to send them away with the impression that the Arlington party "is narrow, provincial, and reactionary."

Watergate Audience Gets Treat

From Yesterday's Late Editions

Brahms: Academic Festival Overture; Mendelssohn: Italian Symphony; Prokofieff: Peter and the Wolf; Granados: Jota; Meyers: Sarabande; Tschaikowsky: March from the Sixth Symphony. National Symphony Orchestra, Howard Mitchell, conductor, Hollis Wright, narrator.

By Paul Hume

You can't scare a Peter and the Wolf audience with a little rain.

Last night's crowd stuck staunchly by as a little water fell out of threatening clouds, and received its reward in fine fashion. With Hollis Wright as narrator, Howard Mitchell and the orchestra did a beautiful job on Prokofieff's spry tunes.

It is interesting to see how this music holds up after 10 years of public hearings, for it is built on slight themes. The secret may well be not only in the wonderful fairy tale underlying the whole thing, but also the high percentage of Peter tunes one can whistle.

Hollis Wright, whose voice is known to Washington radio audiences, brightened up the story with his lively and well-timed narration. His backing from Mitchell and the players was equally subtly shaped.

Earlier there had been a most unacademic but decidedly festive reading of the Brahm's overture, and a sensitive performance of the A Major symphony of Mendelssohn. Mitchell has an unerring sense of the exact tempo for something like the opening movement of this symphony, as well as in the march movement from Tschaikowsky's sixth, which closed the program.

The conductor who will resist the temptation to slow down the Tschaikowsky is as unusual as he is intelligent. Mitchell resisted.

Local premiere hearing of Emerson Meyers' Sarabande revealed a work of what we may call American impressionism, richly scored, with a harp solo made beautiful by Sylvia Meyer's artistry.

The enthusiastic and consistent applause of the hardy audience won them Ferde Grofe's Mardi Garras, and a stunning hearing of the Lohengrin third act prelude for encores.

One of 1122 GI Loans Here Is Foreclosed

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington building and loan associations yesterday reported a remarkable record on GI home loans. A poll of three of the largest institutions showed that out of 1122 such mortgages for $9,367,114, there has been only one foreclosure for $5750 over the past 32 months.

Officials of the associations were unanimous in praising the veterans. "This should dispel any doubts about the stability of the average GI," said one.

Another commented that only 16 of the 659 GI loans made by his institution were delinquent at present for more than two weeks. The one reported foreclosure, it was explained, was quickly wiped off the books when another former soldier took over the mortgage.

The three reporting institutions were Perpetual Building Association, First Federal Savings & Loan Association, and Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association.

First GI loan in the United States was recorded November 17, 1944, by First Federal.

Town Talk—

By Eva Hinton

COURAGEOUSLY beating Congress to the draw by a day, the ladies of the AWVS tried an Army-Navy unification plan of their own and it worked FINE! They took a group of hospitalized servicemen, half from Bethesda Naval Hospital and half from Walter Reed, on an outing together.

Hostess for the occasion was one of the Capital's best and most gracious, Mrs. Randall Hagner, and the scene was her Maryland farm. Hosts and guests cooked hamburgers on the outdoor grill and gorged on good things from the farm.

One of the guests from Bethesda was an old-time Navy cook who began by keeping his distance from the grill. Said it wouldn't be any holiday for HIM to cook! But he couldn't stand the strain of letting the "hack-drivers" do it. So he took over and "DID something to those hamburgers" that made the Army want to join the Navy.

One hospitalized soldier with a nonhospitalized appetite ate 16 of the Navy's hamburgers.

Mrs. Hagner told her guests to do exactly what they wished. So one spent the whole afternoon in the kitchen listening to the ball game on the radio, and doubtless getting tidbits from the cook. Another took a book to the drawing-room. But most of them piled into and on top of the station wagon with the hostess' daughter, Bella, and Bella's canoe, and drove down to the canal. There, like the lucky kids in a fairy tale, they met up with a very nice man who lent them some excellent rods and reels and even took a pitchfork and dug bait for them.

When Mrs. Alvin Roseman, who was AWVS hostess and driver, said, "Time to go home," everybody obediently said "O. K." but nobody moved an inch. And when they finally arrived at their respective hospitals they'd missed the evening meal, but nobody cared.

THE popular Robert M. Scottens (he recently retired as United States Ambassador to Ecuador) have taken Mrs. Richard Southgate's house on Woodland dr. for a few months while looking around to buy a house in Washington.

Dropping by the Scottens' home at cocktail time the other day, one found Philip W. Bonsal being welcomed home on leave from his post as First Secretary at the American Embassy in Madrid. He is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bonsal, in Georgetown while his attractive wife is with her own family in Tennessee.

"And where is Emily?" I inquired, checking up on the family.

Emily is (I should say WAS) an innocent-looking, small, black Scottie with a taste for high society. She preferred her society in small bites, near the ankle.

After she reached Spain, Emily developed a tremendous yen for the grandees of that country. When she had nipped fourteen of the finest the Bonsals had her put to sleep in the interest of international relations, without ever being really sure whether Emily had an incurable taste for the upper crust, or was just a very democratic dog trying to get along.

Stuckey.

MRS. DONALD EVERETT BOYD
... Married yesterday

Boyd—Borden

Miss Betty Louise Borden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Borden of Arlington, Va., and Donald Everett Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Boyd of Washington, were married yesterday evening in Clarendon Baptist Church. The Rev. Frank Snyder officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white street length dress with pink accessories and a nosegay of summer flowers. Miss Nancy Kurtz, maid of honor, wore a pink dress and white accessories. Miss Louise Speaker, wearing aqua, also attended the bride. Robert Boyd was best man for his brother and ushers were George Menish, Dean Reighard and Joseph Armstrong. A reception followed.

The newlyweds will make their home in Arlington.

Whiteman—Hapke

Married on July 4 in Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Alexandria, Va., were Miss Mildred Eunice Hapke, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. Paul Hapke, USN (ret.), and Mrs. Hapke of Arlington, Va., and Marks Lincoln Whiteman, son of Mrs. Mayard Whiteman of Roswell, N. Mex. The Rev. August E. Gyson officiated.

The bride chose a white suit and white accessories with an orchid corsage. Mrs. Jerome Marcus was matron of honor and Richard Cornwell Whiteman was his brother's best man. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed, after which the newlyweds left on a honeymoon to New York, Maine and Canada.

The bride was graduated from University of Wisconsin. Mr. Whiteman served with the Army Air Forces.

Wedding Bells Ring

Phillips—Jones

A wedding of special interest to Army circles took place in the Fort Myer Chapel last night when Miss Anne Alicia Jones, daughter of Col. and Mrs. H. Crampton Jones of Washington, became the bride of Lieut. Paul Washington Phillips, son of Col. and Mrs. Robert E. Phillips, Fort Revere, Mass. Seven-branch candelabra lighted the chapel as Chaplain Gregory Lock performed the ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, larkspur and palms.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown with bodice of white alencon lace and full mousseline de soie skirt featured by long, lace-paneled train. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a spray of gardenias and stephanotis.

Attending her sister-in-law as matron of honor, Mrs. H. Crampton Jones, jr., was costumed in light blue marquisette with matching headdress of tulle and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a new white dress that became stained from a red artificial flower. Thinking the dress was cotton or linen, I tried to remove the stain with chlorine bleach. It left a large brownish spot, which leads me to believe the dress is part rayon. Is there any way to remove the brown stain? D. H.

Your dress must contain either rayon, silk, or wool or the chlorine would not have had the effect you describe. Unfortunately, once such fabrics are injured by chlorine, there is little you can do to remove the discoloration.

How can I remove spots made by orange juice and by halibut liver oil from a baby's white clothing? E. E. S.

To remove the orange juice spots, stretch the stained fabric over a bowl and secure with an elastic band. Pour boiling water through the stain, holding the tea kettle spout two or three feet above the stain.

Sponge the halibut liver oil spots with carbon tetrachloride to remove the grease. Launder while still wet with the cleaning fluid. If the stain remains, use a chlorine bleach on white cotton or linen clothing.

I have a linoleum floor which is sticky after mopping, although it looks clean. Could this be because the floor was waxed when there was grease on it, or when it wasn't entirely dry? What will remove the stickiness? Also, our dining room floor of varnished oak has accumulated a number of grease spots over the years. How can we get rid of them before refinishing? S. W. B.

There is probably an accumulation of old wax on your linoleum that won't come off with washing. I'd suggest using one of the prepared wax removers now on the market. It's advisable to buy one that doesn't present a fire hazard.

Sanding or cleaning your dining room floor with varnish remover before refinishing will undoubtedly remove the grease spots. This should be done in any case as it's inadvisable to apply a new coat of varnish over an old one.

We have recently reopened our home after an absence of several months and find that a number of books have been damaged, apparently by silverfish. We have not seen many of the insects around but would like to kill those that remain and stop the damage. What would you suggest? T. R. T.

One of the most irritating qualities of silverfish is their elusiveness. They are shy little creatures who like to hide by day in damp basements or dark corners, then come out at night to feed on books, wallpaper, and stored starched clothing.

Spray 5 per cent DDT oil solution around all places in your living room where silverfish may hide during the day or crawl at night. Check your basement and attic. If they are infested with the insects, apply 5 per cent DDT oil spray or a water spray made with DDT powder to all wall surfaces ceilings, and pipes. Use the water spray if there is a fire hazard.

What is the best way to clean a rayon lamp shade at home? I have a pale green one that has become quite dirty. It's trimmed with pipings of darker green. R. R. N.

Washing is an excellent way to clean shades of this kind if the piping is sewed on and color-fast. If possible, test a tiny piece of the dark green material to see if it fades. Wash the shade by dipping up and down in lukewarm suds made with mild soap. Rinse by dipping up and down in clear lukewarm water. Change the rinse water three or four times until it remains clear.

The whole washing process should be done quickly to prevent the wire frame from rusting and staining the fabric. Dry quickly, too, but without the aid of direct sunlight or any source of artificial heat that might hurt the fabric. An electric fan may be used to speed drying, and the shade should be turned frequently so that it will dry evenly.

If the piping on your shade is not color-fast, clean it by dipping it up and down in a bowl of cleaning fluid. Be sure to work out-of-doors with inflammible fluid.

Good Breakfasts Will Help Put Thin Girls in Trim

By Ida Jean Kain

As summer simmers on, you thin girls are quite likely to lose your appetite and not get it back again until the frost is on the pumpkin! But it can't all be blamed on the heat, it's partly malnutrition.

Not having a robust appetite at any time, and none to speak of during a hot spell, you practically stop eating. And the less you eat, the more languid you get and the less you want to eat . . . it's small wonder the pounds melt off.

Well, brace up, girls, take a hand in things and you can gain weight, weather or no. To encourage that lagging appetite, step up the vitamin B-one, scientifically termed thiamin. Ask your doctor about taking five milligrams of thiamin a day. This will not only stimulate appetite, but will feed the nerves and promote better digestion.

Then encourage your appetite by eating. Everyone wakes up earlier these mornings, so get up earlier and take the time to eat a good breakfast. Whether you take breakfast or leave it is mostly habit. You can build an appetite for breakfast simply by eating a good breakfast. And it can make an amazing difference in the way you feel. I can almost promise that if you will eat a good breakfast every morning this summer, you can pick up curves despite the heat waves.

Have some crispy, ready-to-eat cereal with fresh peaches or berries, served with milk and cream. And a couple of slices of hot buttered toast, perhaps with honey. And drink a glass of milk with a raw egg whipped into it. That's a real pickup. A good breakfast helps anyone stand up to the heat of the day because it gives more energy.

Vary the breakfast menu. Hunt up a shop that bakes delicious "homemade" bread. Have eggs in place of cereal . . . fluffy scrambled eggs, or bacon and eggs. And a good cup of coffee with plenty of cream.

For a between meal pickup, there is nothing better in hot weather than a big glass of orange juice. There is a connection between a lack of vitamin C and heat exhaustion.

Try to have lunch at a regular hour. If you go past it, you'll lose the edge and then you won't care whether you eat or not.

At the end of a warm, wearying day, if you have no appetite for dinner, take a dip in a cool pool. Then have a leisurely dinner. The way to keep your appetite is to eat regularly.

Tomato Blight Threatens in Southwest Va.

Blacksburg, Va., July 11 (AP).—In a series of suggestions the VPI Agricultural Extension Service said today that extended hot, dry weather in eastern Virginia had reduced the danger of tomato late blight and that the section probably would not suffer much damage from the disease this season.

In mountainous southwest Virginia, however, late blight is an imminent threat, the service said and urged farmers who have not already done so to begin immediately a copper spray or dusting program.

Plant pathologists said no late blight actually had been reported in the State to date although there has been considerable of the less damaging early blight. Late blight caused an estimated one million dollars damage in Virginia last year.

Wider Virginia use of "managed milking" techniques was urged by Agricultural Extension Service Dairyman R. G. Connelly, who estimated the streamlined system would increase milk yields more than 10 per cent and cut down requirements by 25 per cent.

Managed, or rapid, milking can be employed with either machine or hand milking and when in full operation will enable a cow to be milked in 4 minutes or less, Connelly said.

The system, developed at the University of Minnesota, is now in use on some Virginia dairy farms, and, Connelly explained, is based on precise and unvarying practices which will encourage cows to acquire the habit of "letting down" their milk promptly and completely at each milking time.

Dr. H. J. Smith, associate economist at Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, reminded State farmers of the value of honeybees in raising seed crops of any of the clovers or alfalfa.

Smith pointed out that pollenation by either wild bees or honeybees was a must with these seed crops and said honeybees, either rented or from the farmer's own hive, would prove good insurance to the man who plans annual seed crop production.

Continued hot weather means State cucumber growers should begin an immediate copper dusting program to guard against downy mildew, which already has appeared in North Carolina counties bordering on Virginia, Plant Pathologist S. B. Fenne of the Agricultural Extension Service said.

Downy mildew, a fungus disease causing yellow leaf spots and eventual withering and death of the leaf, is favored by wet weather and appears at about the time cucumbers are picked for pickling, Fenne said.

He recommended weekly dusting with a five to six per cent metallic copper dust until the cucumbers have been picked or until dry weather resumes. Picking has begun in parts of middle Virginia, the chief cucumber section, he added.

Va. Newsmen Hear Coverage In D. C. Lauded

Roanoke, Va., July 11 (AP).—Reporters who cover Washington, "news capital of the world," are doing "by and large an honest, conscientious and aggressive job," Paul Miller, head of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press for the last five years, told the Virginia Press Association today.

"Don't let anybody tell you otherwise," he said.

Miller—who has just resigned from the Associated Press to join the Gannett Newspapers effective August 1—traced the growth of Washington as a news center. A small army of newsmen—737 reporters and editors, 127 radio correspondents and 102 news photographers—is on the job today as compared with a total of 347 in 1939, he said in a luncheon speech.

Safer Building Code Discussed At Richmond

Richmond, Va., July 11 (AP).—Enactment of a State-wide building safety code was discussed before the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council Committee of fire hazards in the capitol today.

J. Ambler Johnston, Richmond architect, the first witness at the hearing, said that there is too much law governing the citizen's use of his property in Virginia but that the State by all means should end its police powers and enact sufficient legislation to require a property owner to protect other people who come on his property.

Johnston said that the preparation of a State-wide code would be a complicated matter, but that it could be done before the next Legislature if some hard work is applied to it and if full use is made of various uniform building codes and standards of the National Fire Protection Association.

The architect said that he did not know whether it would be best to adopt a law setting up State-wide requirements or to pass an enabling act which recommends certain standards for the localities.

John Cahill, jr., of Norfolk, spokesman for the Norfolk Association of Real Estate Agents, said that a State enabling act would make it easier for the localities to adopt workable codes.

Cahill also recommended that a strong inspection service be maintained and that arson investigations be separated from routine inspection work.

The committee on fire hazards is headed by Senator M. M. Long, of St. Paul. Members include Arthur E. Chapman, L. O. Freeman, jr., W. D. Fuller and John Hopkins Hall, of Richmond, and J. Duval Lee, of Lynchburg.

Trial Magistrate L. Shanley Ford was the accident victim.

Truman Drove Only 50 MPH, Police Assert

By The Associated Press

Col. C. W. Woodson, jr., superintendent of Virginia State police, questioned yesterday the accuracy of press reports that President Truman was escorted from Charlottesville to Washington last Sunday by a State trooper at speeds ranging up to 65 miles per hour.

In a memorandum to Governor Tuck, copies of which were transmitted also to all State police and examiners, Woodson said:

"This memorandum is written for the purpose of correcting a story that appeared in many of the country's newspapers to the effect [illegible] a Virginia State trooper escorted President Truman from Charlottesville to Washington, D. C., on July 6, 1947, at speeds ranging up to 65 miles per hour.

"President Truman was escorted from Washington to Charlottesville on July 3 at a speed of 40 to 45 miles an hour and was escorted from Charlottesville to Washington, at a speed of 45 to 50 miles an hour.

"Since we are charged with the responsibility of promoting highway safety we are naturally receiving a tremendous amount of criticism because of the article which was in error. Our speedometers are checked and calibrated. I am naturally unable to say what speed was indicated by the speedometer of the news reporter's vehicle.

"This is merely for your information."

Funds Lacking For Resources Legal Aide

Annapolis, Md., July 11 (AP).—If the State is to have a special attorney general for its conservation agencies, it will be up to the Board of Public Works to furnish the money.

The suggestion to have a special attorney for the various agencies connected with the Board of Natural Resources was set forth by William Bayliff, executive secretary of the Board, in a report on law enforcement last year.

Bayliff contended that the legal aspects of resources or conservation were so interrelated that it was advisable to have a special assistant attorney general to handle them.

"We need someone to take up our cases and carry them through the courts," he said.

He said today the new head of the Board of Natural Resources, John E. Clark, had taken up the question with Attorney General Hall Hammond.

Hammond was in favor of the proposal, but had no funds to pay any such special assistant, Bayliff said.

It is expected that Clark will ask the Board of Public Works for funds to pay the special assistant.

The only source the mony could come from would be the $500,000 emergency fund which has been set up in the Governor's budget for each fiscal year of the current biennium. None of this money has been allocated.

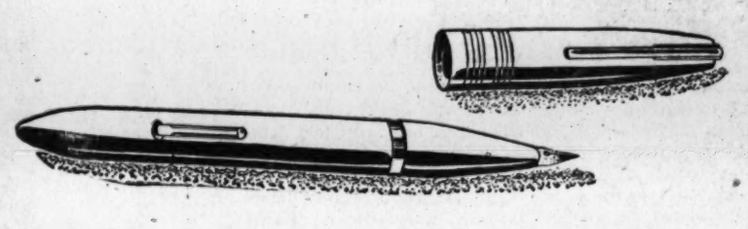
Judge Upholds Forestry Law In Maryland

Cumberland, Md., July 11 (AP).—Judge George Henderson, in a Circuit County opinion announced today, has upheld the constitutionality of a Maryland forestry law which gives district forestry boards power to regulate timber cutting, set up conservation rules and license sawmill operators.

The ruling arose from the trial of Troy Friend and Sherman Franzee, Garrett County sawmill operators charged with failure to register properly and pay the required license fees.

As a nonresident of the State, Friend was accused of not paying a $25 license fee, and as a resident, Frazee was charged with ignoring a $10 fee.

In convicting both, Henderson imposed fines of $50 on them but said there would be no imprisonment "as in both cases there has been a bona fide attempt to test the constitutionality of the forestry law, rather than merely to evade the payment of the license fees."



Wonderful! Marvelous!
(and then see what happens!)

Here is the miracle pen to end all miracle pens!

It won't write under water. It won't make 28 cartons. But, brother—that's smalltime stuff! Look what it can do!

It can help send your children through college. It can help buy you a home. It can help you retire—or help send you around the world!

How does it do all this?

Simple! You just use it once to sign your name on the application form that will put you on the Payroll Savings Plan. Or on the new Bond-a-Month Plan at the bank where you have your checking account.

Then—automatically, regularly—your banker or employer will buy U. S. Savings Bonds for you.

Isn't that a wonderful trick for a pen to do?

Nothing more for you to do to buy Bonds except watch them pile up and collect that smooth, velvety interest—2½% in ten years!

So grasp this marvel of science firmly in your hand and sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan or Bond-a-Month Plan today.

It's the easiest, surest way there is to save the money you need for the things you want.

Save the easy, automatic way—with U.S. Savings Bonds

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Joins in Laugh On Missouri Situation

By Drew Pearson

The Nation's top county agents—diligent promoters of bigger American crops—came away from the White House the other day convinced that the President not only was a perfect host, but also had a sense of humor — especially when it came to the subject of Missouri.

Dewey

"You fellows are in pretty much the same position that I am," Truman told 16 leaders of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. "The people in farm States look to the county agent for help on every conceivable problem affecting their welfare, and he's got to produce."

Truman added that none of the county agents he knew ("I put the first one to work in Jackson County, Missouri, years ago") had shirked his responsibility.

"I think all of you are to be congratulated on the swell job you are doing in helping to feed the country," said the President.

One of his visitors remarked that he understood the President worked "farmer's hours" himself.

"That's not far wrong," smiled Truman. "I'm on the job from five o'clock in the morning until midnight most days."

The subject of Missouri and its mules was injected into the discussion when the President was reminiscing about some of his experiences at county fairs. He was always a great devotee of county fairs, he observed jokingly, until he witnessed an unfortunate spectacle at one several years before the war.

"They imported two Kansas mules to race a pair of home-grown mules at a fair near Independence, Missouri," he replied. "But the act backfired, because those Kansas critters won the race hands down. It was the most humiliating thing that ever happened to Missouri."

Wall Street Teams Up With Lewis

When Harry Truman and Cabinet colleagues first heard that J. P. Morgan's U. S. Steel Corporation and the Mellon-controlled Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Co. had handed John L. Lewis a 45-cents-an-hour wage increase, plus welfare fund, plus almost everything else he asked for, they were flabbergasted, shellshocked and left gasping for air.

And though they are still somewhat stunned, they have begun to rub their eyes and try to figure out what hidden motives the Mellons and the Morgans had in giving John L. Lewis the greatest contract in labor history. By now they think they know the solution—politics, and Dewey-politics at that.

To understand Mr. Truman's sense of shock it should be remembered that many people considered him something of a hero last December for slapping down John L. Lewis.

Furthermore, it was only one year ago that the coal operators complained bitterly about Secretary of the Interior Krug's giving Lewis an increase of 18½ cents—the same increase already given the steel, auto, and other unions. The Government, according to the wails of the operators, was surrendering all its profits to John L.

Bill Gold's column "The District Line" will be resumed in this space Monday morning. His radio preview of the Washington Post will be resumed Tuesday night at 11 p.m. over Station WINX.

And six months later, President Truman threw everything he had into the battle against John L., including an injunction and the Supreme Court, in order to end what most of the Nation thought was an unfair demand by Lewis to renege on his contract.

Reversing all this, Ben Fairless of U. S. Steel and George Humphrey of Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal have now given Lewis everything he asked for. In fact, they have given him more than he ever dreamed he could get.

As usual, Lewis had started out by putting his demands high. If he had followed previous patterns, he would have accepted a compromise considerably lower. But he didn't have to. As he saw the big coal and steel companies willing to yield, he increased his demands and even tacked on provisions nullifying the Taft-Hartley Labor Act. His victory makes every other labor leader green with envy.

Lewis Loves Dewey

Truman Administration sleuths, busy all week trying to find out why the steel industry surrendered so supinely, now think they have found the answer.

John L. Lewis, sworn enemy of the Democratic Party, for some time has been making political love to Tom Dewey. It was known that during the Taft-Hartley battle, Lewis and Big Bill Hutcheson, head of the AFL Carpenters Union, sent word to Albany urging that Dewey keep mum about the labor bill. Whether because of this advice or his own shrewd political judgment, Dewey said absolutely nothing.

Now that the battle is over, Lewis plans to revive labor's Nonpartisan League, hopes to weld this into a potent force to back Dewey, and has vowed to destroy both Taft, whom he hates, and Truman, who used the Supreme Court and an injunction against him.

In return for Lewis' support of Dewey, Administration leaders claim a deal was worked out by which J. P. Morgan's United States Steel Corp. and the Mellon-controlled Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Co. boosted Lewis' prestige with labor by handing him the juiciest contract ever negotiated.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

3 ♣	Pass	Pass	3 ◇
3 ♡	Dble	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ◇.

"The opponents could have scored a no-trump game, so I was doubly pleased with the result," he writes.

"Two diamonds were led; I trumped the second round, exited with a club, trumped the diamond return and exited with another club. West led back the spade king, and I took the ace and cross-ruffed three spades in my hand and two clubs in dummy. At the end West ruffed my last club with the heart king, and I took the final trick with the heart ace."

South made three hearts, doubled, losing a diamond, two clubs and the king of hearts. He won two diamond ruffs, three spade ruffs and the heart ace in the closed hand, and the spade ace and two club ruffs on the board.

Declarer can make his contract even with two heart leads by setting up the club king. He wins five hearts and the club in South, and the spade ace and two hearts in North.

Come Back to Me

Each weary day and lonely night . . . I think of you and pray . . . That you will soon come back to me . . . And never go away . . . I miss you every moment, love . . . I call to you and cry . . . But only empty echoes fill . . . The hours passing by . . . The sky is gray all morning and . . . Throughout the afternoon . . . And there is nothing beautiful . . . About the stars or moon . . . I long to find you in my dreams . . . But when I go to bed . . . There is no real or peaceful sleep . . . To keep me comforted . . . Whatever else may happen or . . . My heart may be denied . . . I want you to come back to me . . . And never leave my side.

Russians Rate Truman Low, Sergeant Reports in Korea

(Sergt. James R. McDonald, North Hollywood, Calif., one of 120 Americans who went to Pyongyang in the Soviet zone of North Korea last week, talked to a Russian officer about American politics. Following is his report as given to United Press in Seoul.)

By James McDonald
As Told to United Press

Seoul, Korea, July 11.—The Russians in Pyongyang didn't know whether the late President Roosevelt was a Republican or a Democrat but they had a very low opinion of President Truman and a high one of Earl Browder, deposed United States Communist leader.

I found this out on my third day in the capital of Soviet-occupied Korea. We had just been taking pictures of formal ceremonies marking the opening of consultations between Koreans and a joint allied commission. There were four of us—a three-star Russian officer (I think he was a lieutenant general), a major, a civilian cameraman and myself.

It was only by chance I ever got to speak with any Russian at all. "I think it was the beer that did it, and maybe American cigarettes.

We were drinking beer in a little room off the main hall when the Russian "general" came right out and asked me:

"Are you a Communist?"

"Definitely not," I said.

Perhaps, I thought, that was a bit too emphatic, but the Russian officer didn't bat an eye. He grinned sort of sheepishly and said "I understand." Then he asked me whether President Roosevelt was a Democrat or a Republican. I told him, and he said:

"Yes, he was a very good man, but this fellow Truman . . ." From then on he sounded like some people back home used to on the subject of Hitler, or sometimes Roosevelt. He got so excited that I got a bit hot under the collar.

"Did you ever hear of Earl Browder?" I interrupted

"Yes, we know him very well," he replied. "A good man . . . a good man."

Then I told him:

"Browder has been running for President back in the States on the Communist ticket. He's been running for years, but he'll never get in. The people don't want him."

I guess that kind of broke up the conversation. I never got another chance to speak to any Russians after that."

'Flying Disc' Reported Found In Idaho, Given to U.S. Officials

Butte, Mont., July 11 (AP).—FBI Agent W. G. Banister said an object which appeared to be a "flying disc" was found today at Twin Falls, Idaho and turned over to Federal authorities there.

Banister, special agent in charge of the FBI in Montana and Idaho, said the bureau had reported the discovery to the Army at Fort Douglas, Utah.

An FBI agent in Twin Falls inspected the "saucer" and described it as similar to the "cymbals used by a drummer in a band, placed faced to face."

The object measured 30½ inches in diameter with a metal dome on one side and a plastic dome about 14 inches high on the opposite side, anchored in place by what appeared to be stove bolts. The gadget is gold painted on one side and silver (either stainless steel, aluminum or tin) on the other. It appeared to have been turned out by machine.

The FBI agent declined to elaborate further.

At Fort Douglas, a high-ranking officer, who declined to permit use of his name, would not comment. He refused to confirm or deny that Army authorities had heard of the reported discovery, or were investigating it.

Senate Unit Votes Atomic Agency 75 Millions More

By The Associated Press

A 75 million dollar increase in 1948 operating funds for the Atomic Energy Commission was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday after a heated argument.

Chairman Bridges (R., N. H.) said the decision to boost the funds over the amounts voted by the House and a Senate subcommittee was reached "after a hot argument and a very close vote."

"Some of us did not have too much confidence in some of the personnel down there," Bridges said, referring to the Agency.

The increase lifted the total of cash operating funds for the Agency from 175 million dollors, voted by the House to 250 million dollars. In addition the Senate group approved contractural authority of 250 million dollars as voted by the House.

Synod Elects Officers

St. Louis, July 11 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. L. W. Goebel of Chicago defeated the Rev. Dr. Paul M. Schroeder of Rochester, N. Y., for reelection today as president of the General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. Also reelected was the Rev. Dr. William E. Lampe of Philadelphia as secretary, and F. A. Keck of St. Louis as treasurer.

Yank Accused By Yugoslavs

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PFC. WALTER FLOREK of College Point, N. Y., a member of the United States graves registration unit in Yugoslavia, yesterday was attacked by authorities as having a link with Yugoslavs on trial in Belgrade

Chinese Lays Defeats to U. S. As Reds Gain

Nanking, July 11 (AP).—Chinese government troops suffered new setbacks in Shantung Province today while the National defense minister blamed the United States for the Communists' strength and the Foreign Office directed a second protest to Moscow over the month-old Sinkiang incident.

The official Chinese Central News Agency said the government garrison of Taian, 33 miles south of Tsinan, Shantung provincial capital, had "moved to new positions in the face of Red attacks." This is a usual Chinese way of acknowledging a loss.

(The Communist radio broadcast without qualification that its forces had captured Taian and also Feihsien, 75 miles farther southeast.)

Taian, a strategic station on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, has changed hands three times since the first of the year.

Meanwhile, Pai Shung-hsi, Minister of Defense, told the standing committee of the People's Political Council that the American policy of protracted mediation (which finally was abandoned last January) had prevented the government attacking the Communists a year ago when they were weak and had allowed them to grow strong under the guise of negotiating for peace.

Pai also said he had been able to collect only about one seventh of the 40 million piculs (about 270,000 tons) of foodstuffs scheduled to be furnished to the army during the current year.

Yugoslavs Hint Graves Unit Acted as Spies

Belgrade, July 11 (AP).—The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug attacked a former U. S. Army Graves Registration unit today for what it called developing a spy network "under the mask of registering graves of American fliers."

Its comment was in connection with the continuing espionage trial of Yugoslav citizens allegedly hired by the unit and now accused of espionage.

Tanjug asserted the trial had "provoked deep resentment and disgust of the entire Yugoslav public not only against these traitors, but also against their employers."

The graves unit reached Yugoslavia in October of 1945.

The indictment of the Yugoslavs on trial asserted there was a connection between the defendants and Pfc. Walter Florek of College Point, N. Y., a member of the graves unit, who later was fined $25 by a court martial in Italy for disorderly conduct for an incident in Belgrade.

(Florek testified at the trial that he "took down a decoration bearing Yugoslav colors" in a Belgrade bar when he heard Yugoslavs say "the Americans had no right to fly over our territory. . . . It's a good thing those fliers were killed."

(He said he threw the colors at the Yugoslavs, because the men in question, who had been killed when Yugoslav fighters shot down an American army transport plane, were his personal friends.)

Tanjug said the graves unit used the services of Louisa Modric, former employe of the U. S. Embassy. Miss Modric is now believed to be in Washington.

Rep. Hebert to Have Sight-Saving Operation

Blind since youth in one eye as a result of an accident, Representative F. Edward Herbert (D., La.) has developed a cataract in the other.

He told reporters yesterday he will undergo an operation this fall in a last-chance attempt to save his sight.

He long kept his growing blindness a secret and it would have been a secret still had it not been for the complaints that he was snubbing friends.

Red Coup Story Author Expelled by Czechs

Prague, July 11 (Delayed) (AP).—Franz Van Der Bijl, newspaper correspondent who sent the London Daily Mail a story last month that a Communist coup d'etat was expected in Czechoslovakia June 11, left Prague by plane today for London.

(In London, an editor of the Daily Mail's foreign news staff said: "We understand that Van Bijl was ordered to leave Czechoslovakia, but we have been given no official reason for his expulsion." He said Van Der Bijl was an Englishman born of South African parents.)

Crop Waste Seen

Price Relief Asked by Nut Processors

By The Associated Press

Peanut processors testified yesterday the industry will use "very little" of the 1947 crop unless there is relief from what they termed "extravagantly high" prices.

William H. Fischer, representing Jewett & Sherman Co., Milwaukee, told the House Banking Committe that "unless something is done, and done within the next few days," peanut processors will be able to use only a small part of the new crop.

Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) testified in support of his bill to authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation to sell edible peanuts at less than parity prices in addition to selling peanuts for processing into oil. He said the present setup is discriminatory and "a throwback to the wartime" when the Government encouraged peanut growing for oil.

Fischer said the agency is authorized to sell peanuts for oil on the basis of market prices.

"In this bill we are asking the same thing for edible peanuts," he added.

The cost to the Government would be great, he said, adding "it will be greater if the crop doesn't move through the ordinary channels."

"We ask for legislation," he added, "which will permit the 100-million-dollar peanut butter industry to remain in existence through this trying period."

Stepup Asked In Foot-Mouth Disease Fight

Representative Miller (R., Neb.) says he is pessimistic about the progress of the campaign against foot-and-mouth disease in Mexico.

"It may cost into the billions of dollars before we are through," he told a reporter yesterday.

Miller visited Mexico recently as a member of the congressional committee which inspected the joint eradication campaign being carried on by the U. S. and Mexican governments.

"You have several real problems there," Miller continued. "First, the standard of sanitation is low, and the Mexican farmers are not well educated in the need for this work.

"As long as they can keep the disease in the quarantined areas, they will be all right. But if it ever breaks out of there it will never stop. The cost will run into billions.

"If that ever happens, I will be in favor of pulling our men out of Mexico entirely and setting up a quarantine strip 75 to 100 miles wide on this side of the border. Keep every cloven-hoofed animal out of that strip, and keep the disease from moving up over the border.

Miller made his comment after a press conference in which the committe told reporters of their inspection trip. Representative Gillie (R., Ind.), chairman, said the committee will ask the House to speed action on a 60-million-dollar appropriation to carry on the work.

Congress already has voted $15,500,000 for the program, and estimates of the ultimate cost have run as high as 400 million dollars.

Elizabeth Flashes New Ring At Cricket Match Spectators

Before a delighted crowd at Lord's cricket ground, where she attended the traditional Eton-Harrow match with husband-to-be Philip Mountbatten, the 21-year-old princess held up her left hand as she alighted from the royal car and the three-diamond ring glistened.

Then she lowered her hand, Mountbatten took it in his, and they joined the King, Queen and Princess Margaret in the royal box.

It was an afternoon of relaxation for Elizabeth and the former Prince of Greece, who have been kept busy shaking hands, murmuring "Thank you," and fulfilling public engagements almost constantly since their betrothal was announced Wednesday night.

The couple left Buckingham Palace later with the King, Queen and Princess Margaret to spend the weekend at the Windsor royal lodge.

In London's swank Regent st., crowds gathered outside a fashionable jewelry shop while Queen Mary browsed inside for two hours. Afterward a shop assistant said the princess' grandmother "was buying something in connection with the engagement."

Before going to the Eton-Harrow match, Elizabeth and Philip called on Philip's mother, Princess Alice of Greece, who is staying in Kensington Palace.

(President Truman extended "cordial felicitations" to Britain's King and Queen on the betrothal of the Princess Elizabeth.

(The message to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth said:

"On the happy occasion of the bethrothal of Her Royal Highness, Princess Elizabeth, it is with the greatest pleasure that I extend to your majesties cordial felicitations in the name of the people of the United States and in my own, and request that these greetings be conveyed to Princess Elizabeth and Lieutenant Mountbatten."

(A message to Princess Elizabeth said: "On the occasion of your betrothal to Lieutenant Mountbatten, Mrs. Truman and I wish to extend our sincere best wishes to you both.")

Senate Group Restores Most Of Agriculture Budget Cuts

More than half the cuts voted by the House in Agriculture Department appropriations for this year were recommended restored by the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday.

The committee's appropriations would provide the Agriculture Department with $1,048,286,136 for the fiscal year, or $200,664,160 more than voted by the House.

The report was recognized as a victory for the Senate farm bloc. One member frankly stated "the members have heard from home since the House action."

Others saw in the action an effort by the Republican majority to make peace with farm groups, not wishing to add their enmity to that of labor leaders incurred by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Restore Conservation Funds

Outstanding in the funds restored were:

1. About 295 million dollars for the soil conservation and use program, in place of 165 millions voted by the House, plus authorization of 150 million for next year, entirely wiped out by the House measure.

This will enable the department to meet all payments to farmers authorized a year ago; retain the agricultural adjustment program with hundreds of farm committees throughout the country, and provide for continuation of the tobacco marketing program and the peanut quota program.

2. The full 75-million-dollar national school lunch program, in place of the 45 million dollars voted by the House.

This was done by removing the entire amount from direct appropriations, and authorizing use of Section 32 funds. These are a portion of customs receipts set aside for the benefit of agriculture. The House had directed most of these funds returned to the Treasury.

Million for Flood Control

(3. Added one million dollars for flood control in the Upper Mississippi Basin, and along the Ohio and Missouri Rivers and their tributaries, to the $500,000 funds voted by the House.

This item had not been included in either the budget estimates or the House measure. The Senate Committee also added $100,000 for control of Dutch elm disease, also an item not included in any previous computations.

4. Restored the full 250-million-dollar loan fund asked for the Rural Electrification Administration, which the House had cut 25 million dollars, and authorized that the full amount be borrowed directly from the Treasury instead of from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. as at present.

Meat Inspection Funds

5. Funds for Federal inspection of meats were increased to 11 million dollars from five million, and a House plan for requiring meat packers to pay these costs was eliminated.

6. Authorized a 20 million dollar fund for loans to veterans and tenant farmers for purchasing farms. The House had eliminated this item as tending to add to the inflated value of farm lands.

Other increases recommended were:

Added $500,000 for the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

"The committee considers the work in crop and livestock estimates to be the most efficient organization of its kind and wishes to lend it full encouragement," the report said.

Sustained the $300,000 cut in the estimate for the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, stating as a reason: "The committee considers that the work of this office has been handicapped by its close association with the Department of State."

Cut the appropriation for Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics $245,000 below the House measure.

Added $250,000 to funds for naval forest protection and management, bringing the total to $24,014,891.

Restored $250,000 of the $535,000 House cut for forest products investigations.

Increased funds for forest resources $750,000 to $823,000, which is still $250,000 below budget estimates.

Added $250,000 to the House item of $500,000 for the purchase of lands for the national forests.

Raised appropriations for forest roads and trails to 11 million from the House figure of forest roads; and increased funds for forest highways from $5,300,000 to $8,360,000.

Added $100,000 to the House appropriation of one million dollars for marketing farm products.

Restored six million dollars of a 12-million-dollar House cut for Farmers Home Administration.

Recommended five million dollars for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, in place of the budget estimate of $9,330,000, as item entirely removed in the House bill.

Sustained the budget estimate of 48 million dollars in Section 32 funds for the exportation and domestic consumption of agricultural commodities. This item was originally cut out entirely in the House bill. During floor debate, 40 million dollars was voted by the House through a last-minute amendment.

Student Driver Wrecks Bus, Killing Instructor

Dayton, Ohio, July 11 (U.P.).—William Bagford, 34, Sharonville, Ohio, veteran bus driver, was killed and at least 20 persons were injured today when a bus en route from Cincinnati to Dayton with a student driver at the wheel was wrecked six miles north of Lezanon, Ohio.

The bus crashed into a culvert and plunged into a creek. Many of the 38 passengers of the bus were trapped beneath the wreckage and it took some time to rescue them. Bagford was accompanying a new student driver, David Rutherford, 28, of Cincinnati.

Suspicion and Doubt Alarm Eric Johnston

Warsaw, Poland, July 11 (AP).—Eric Johnston said today he had told Foreign Minister Sygmunt Modzelewski "We must find a way to bridge the torrent of doubt and suspicion" between the eastern and western powers or the eventual result would be conflict.

Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., said Modzelewski has told him Poland had intended to go to the Paris conference on the Marshall proposal but changed her decision when she was informed that political questions would not be discussed and that the conference would last only two days.
